BANAGHER GREAT FAIR.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BANAGHER, Saturday.

The sheep fair to-day was small, and only a shadow of its great past. The number of buyers was up to average, and prices showed an advance of from 5s. to 6s. on those of recent fairs in the neighbourhood. There was good demand for lambs, and very few were left unsold. Prices for all kinds were voted slightly better than last year's great fair. Mutton made from 5d. to 6d. per lb. Mr. Joseph Martin, victualler, Banagher, purchased 20 fat wethers at an average of 30s. each; Mr. George Flemmings, East Galway, sold lambs (30) at 21s. each, and said the price was 3s. less than last year, and about 6s. better than last July; Mr. Jackson, Shinrone, paid 16s. to 17s. for lambs, and secured 65 at these prices. There were not many breeding ewes on offer, and prices ranged from 20s. to 27s. 6d. Pure-bred Shrop rams made 70s. to 90s. each. Mr. Dolan, Moate, made some large purchases at average prices. Messrs. Searson, Dignan, Hoar and O'Neil purchased average lots, and the fair all round had a lively tendency.

In the foreign section Africans attracted good attention, with first dry Capes sold at 6½d. and unbathed Adis Abebas at 5½d. to 5⅝d., according to weight. Prices of sole leather were steadily maintained, but the demand was disappointingly quiet, as manufacturers generally appear to be unwilling to buy ahead at current rates. Repairing bends had a quiet trade, and some tanners are asking a slight advance for high-class bends. Offal continued to meet a steady inquiry, and both bellies and shoulders made very firm prices. In upper leathers there was a better demand for patent than of late, and a steady business was reported in reptiles. Glazed black kid more inquired for, whilst box and willow calf remained rather quiet. Prices all round remained steady.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

LONDON STOCK MARKET FEATURES.

CHEERFUL CONDITIONS.

THE RISE IN TOBACCO SHARES.

FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Sunday.

Occasional reactions are experienced on the Stock Exchange, but they amount to very little, and the general tendency of markets is very firm. There are several reasons for this, apart from the continuance of very cheap money. The latest Board of Trade returns, the revenue figures, and the railway traffics confirm the belief that the trade of the country is gradually improving. The strength of the leading gilt-edged securities, therefore, is not surprising, though if the commercial movement of the country became much more active, thus leading to dearer money, some reaction in his particular section would follow.

The big Australian Government conversion loan was regarded as a bull point rather than an adverse influence, for the terms reflect the great improvement in the credit of the Commonwealth in the last year or two, and the immediate success of that issue was one of last week's outstanding features, even allowing for a considerable amount of "stagging."

AMERICA'S EXPERIMENT.

Opinion in the City inclines to the view that inflation in the United States is now inevitable, but it is also believed that the adoption of such a measure would fail to bring about the hoped-for industrial recovery. The great experiment is being attended by considerable difficulties. Labour troubles have been unpleasantly numerous; at least one leading industrialist will not accept the code in respect of his particular business, and the bankers do not believe that prosperity can be achieved by a big increase in the volume of credit. The bankers are fighting for sound banking, because they recognise that a contrary policy, with, perhaps, unbridled inflation and a heavy depreciation of the currency, would probably bring about a state of affairs as bad as that from which the country is now trying to recover. In other words, there would be another banking crisis, possibly more severe than the last.

A VICIOUS CIRCLE.

Inflation would give advantages to some interests, but only for a time. There would be a sharp twist-up in commodity prices, but the resultant increase in the cost of living would lead to demands for higher wages, and the time lag between the two movements would probably not be great enough to restore prosperity to the country. Europe has had some experience of the fact that inflation operates as a vicious circle, with wages engaged in a vain endeavour to catch up with the rise in the cost of living. For a time inflation in America would cause a substantial appreciation in all "equities," a movement that would probably be reflected on this side, and one of the most objectionable effects would be the stimulus it gave to speculation.

HOME INDUSTRIALS.

To some extent the demand for English industrials is based on the prospect of Great Britain being compelled to inflate. Happily there is no indication that the authorities will adopt such a policy, and so far the Government pins its faith on a rise in commodity values through a natural recovery in trade, helped by the continuance of very cheap money. Otherwise there would be much less reason for the firmness of gilt-edged and similar securities, for if inflation came the present moderate yields from the best investments would, in effect, be reduced substantially through the lessened purchasing power of money. There is little doubt that the powers that be desire a continuance of easy credit conditions, and, if necessary, will take steps to ensure this.

TOBACCO SHARES.

Last week's spurt in the leading Tobacco shares is an interesting development. It was based on a strong belief that the Imperial Tobacco Company (of Great Britain and Ireland) and Carreras have agreed to abandon, not necessarily at once, the gift coupon business. It is said that the keen competition in this matter has involved both undertakings in a very heavy additional expenditure. There is no expectation of an increase in the dividend on Imperial Tobacco stock for the current year, the general belief being that the company will again pay 20 per cent. tax free, but market opinion is more optimistic in regard to the Carreras prospects. This company, it is considered, would benefit proportionately much more than the Imperial from a cessation of the gift coupon competition, and the more bullish operators say that, because of this and because the company is doing a very big business now, there is a fair chance of an increase in the dividend in the future beyond the 35 per cent. paid for the last two years.

MODERATE YIELDS.

The rise in Tobacco shares from the lowest prices of last year has been almost spectacular, especially in the case of Carreras, which went to a shade below 3¼ during 1932, whereas last week they touched 8⅞. If the dividend were not increased, the current yield would be less than 4 per cent. Imperials on a 20 per cent. tax free dividend basis give little over 3⅜ per cent. net, equal to 4⅞ per cent. less tax. Even allowing for the strength of the financial position and for the reduction in interest rates generally during the last year or two, it can scarcely be denied that these returns to some extent discount the future.

KAFFIRS.

The reaction in Transvaal gold shares that followed the sharp fall in the price of gold was short-lived, partly because the metal rallied, and the subsequent recovery brought some shares almost to the best level yet touched. It would seem that the buying of Kaffirs is both of an investment and a speculative character. There is no doubt that the shares have been acquired by trust companies in the belief that they are reasonably safe investments, with the added attraction of a good return on the money invested in them. On the other hand, it is apparent that the market is supported on any reaction by the "shops," that is, the finance houses, to whom an appreciation in share values is of great importance, and the operations of the "shops" are followed by a crowd of speculators who go for a quick turn and rush to sell on any adverse development.

ATTITUDE OF THE PUBLIC.

The investing public, therefore, may find it difficult to determine whether to take a hand in the market at current prices, quite irrespective of the question of the maintenance of the price of gold. Where shares were acquired considerably lower down no problem is involved, for in that case the holding should be retained for dividends. If, however, fresh purchases are decided upon, it would be best to restrict them to shares of well-established companies where the life of the mine can be gauged with approximate accuracy. The temptation to buy shares of the newer promotions should be resisted. These may turn out very well, indeed, but the point may be mentioned that in some cases, at least, the market activity in such shares is mainly due to operations of Johannesburg speculators, who naturally would like to see the public come in and "hold the baby."

OIL SHARES.

It is confidently believed that higher prices for Oil shares will be witnessed in the future, consequent upon an advance in the price of petrol. It is said that the industry in America is doing better under its code than almost any other there, and that the successful effort to restrict production will enable those in control to bring about higher prices for both crude oil and petrol. This assumes, of course, that the great experiment in America does not break down, involving retrogression in industry generally.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Robinson and Cleaver, Limited.—The report of the directors, to be presented to the annual ordinary general meeting of the Ordinary shareholders, to be held at Belfast on 9th October, 1933, states: The directors beg to submit their thirty-third annual report and accounts of the company, made up to 31st July, 1933. The balance of profit carried to profit and loss appropriation account for the past twelve months—after providing income tax, fee of trustees and auditors, depreciation, sinking fund and Debenture Stock interest—including a sum of £66,928 12/11 brought forward from previous year's account, amounted to £95,511 17/11, which the directors recommend should be appropriated in the manner following:—Writing off goodwill and preliminary expenses of subsidiary companies, £255 3/6; dividend on Preference Shares already paid to 1st April, 1933, £4,999 7/4; interim dividend on Ordinary Shares at 3 per cent., less income tax at 5/- in the £ already paid, £5,625; further dividend on Ordinary Shares at 3 per cent., less income tax, £5,625 (making 6 per cent., less income tax at 5/- in the £ for the year); reserve account, £5,000; staff benevolent fund, £500; balance carried forward to next account, £73,507 7/1—£95,511 17/11. Throughout the year trading conditions continued extremely difficult. Notwithstanding this and the prevailing depression, the directors are pleased to report that the general results are as satisfactory as in previous year. The company's properties have been maintained in good order, and provision has been made in the account for depreciation as well as for sinking fund. Full provision has been made for depreciation on the value of stocks and for bad or doubtful debts. One of your directors—Major H. C. Robinson—retires by rotation at this meeting, and is eligible for re-election. The auditors—Messrs. Hill, Vellacott and Bailey—also retire, and are eligible for re-election.

Burroughs Adding.—In the first six months of 1933, Burroughs Adding Machine Co. made a gross profit on sales (after providing 200,495 dols. for depreciation) of 3,315,070 dols., and a net profit for the period of 455,902 dols. At the end of June last the company and its subsidiaries held cash at 2,511,150 dols., Government securities of 12,234,105 dols., notes and accounts receivable 2,842,081 dols., and inventories of 7,937,891 dols.

City Association (Members' Voluntary Liquidation).—First capital distribution of 9d. per share will be made to all shareholders registered September 21 on September 22.

Electric Supply.—Ordinary interim of 4 per cent., less tax. This is at the same rate as for 1932, when the final payment was 7 per cent. Since the last interim distribution, however, the Ordinary capital has been increased by £50,000, the new shares ranking for last year's final distribution.

Highland Tea Company of Ceylon.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent., less tax, payable September 22.

Komata Reefs Gold.—Interim 3d. per share, free of tax.

Qualcast.—Profits totalling £30,116 are reported by Qualcast, Ltd., the Derby manufacturers of lawn mowers, etc. Last year the total was £30,536. Output has again passed all previous records. Prices have shown reduction, but the quality has been rigidly upheld. The Australian subsidiary made a satisfactory profit and paid a dividend, but no cash was remitted home owing to exchange conditions. A final dividend of 10 per cent., making 15 per cent. for the year, the same as for the previous two years, is to be paid while good-will patents and trade marks are to be written down to £1 by the allocation of £10,945.

National Fixed Trust Certificates.—Company reports following quotations for Friday:—Unit "A," sub-unit quotation, 33/3-34/3; Unit "B," sub-unit quotation, 19/9-20/9.

Natal Land and Colonization.—Interim 3 per cent., less tax, on Ordinary (same).

Rolls-Royce.—The directors of Rolls-Royce state that the interim dividend announced on Friday night should have been stated as a straight 3 per cent. for the six months, and not at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum. It has not been the company's practice to declare an interim dividend. For several years the distribution has been 8 per cent. for the twelve months, plus a bonus of 2 per cent., this rate being maintained last year. The issued and paid capital is £830,221. Last April the £1 shares were converted into stock. The incorrect announcement of Friday was made after market hours.

Ransome and Marles Bearing.—Dividend of 6 per cent., less tax. (Last year dividend was 5 per cent.)

Staveley Coal and Iron.—The Staveley Coal and Iron Company, which has an issued capital of £3,385,356, is able to report an improvement in earnings, the trading profit in the year to June 30, 1933, rising from £372,292 to £404,819. This compares with £432,074 recorded for the year to June, 1931. Depreciation takes £167,489, against £136,345, and directors' fees and tax £6,667, leaving a net profit of £230,668, compared with £219,260. The general reserve is again allocated £50,000, and £10,000 goes to depreciation of workmen's houses. The final dividend of 2½ per cent. maintains the year's rate at 5 per cent., tax free, and £108,556 is carried forward after crediting £107,156 brought in.

Sun Electrical.—Net profit for year £14,794, against £17,427. Ordinary dividend again 5 per cent. Balance forward is £3,627, against £5,665.

Thomas Firth and John Brown.—The directors intimate that trading conditions do not justify any dividend payment on Preference capital. The company is controlled by John Brown and Co., and incorporates the steel business of that undertaking. No Preference payments have been made since December, 1930, on capital totalling £1,000,000.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

MORE GOLD FROM INDIA.

The usual Saturday conditions prevailed in Lombard street, there being an abundance of short credit seeking employment at ½ per cent.

Business in the discount market was on a very small scale, there being sellers of the "hot" Treasuries at ½ per cent., with few takers. Fine three months' Bank bills were quoted at ⅜ per cent.

Silver declined 1/16d. for cash and ⅛d. for forward delivery to 18 1/16d. and 18⅛d. per oz. respectively. The Continent was a seller, and India was not supporting the market on Saturday.

Gold is unchanged at 130s. 5d. per oz. fine, there being a premium of 5½d. About £12,000 was in the market, and was taken by Continental buyers. Last week's gold shipment from India includes £280,000 for America and £414,000 for London.

Further weakness was displayed by American dollars in the foreign exchange market, the New York rate moving another 2½ cents favourably to London. Canadian dollars at 4.87½ were 2¾ cents cheaper. French francs continued to appreciate, the quotation declining by 7/32 francs to 80¾. Three months' forward francs were quoted around par, which compares with a discount of 1½ cents on Friday. With the exception of Hong Kong dollars, Far Eastern currencies were lower.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

Kaffirs Convalescent.

While disagreeable for those compelled to close their commitments, the recent shake-out in Kaffirs has brought about much healthier conditions. The stock thrown overboard was readily absorbed at slightly lower levels by operators possessing the necessary financial resources—and unabated confidence in the gold industry. Already a handsome profit is shown on the purchases thus made, and the market appears likely to go still better in the near future (says The Sunday Times). Inflation in the United States would lead to depreciation in sterling and consequent enhancement in the price of gold. The latter is now within a comparatively short distance of its high record. Applications totalling £2,500,000 were made for the 400,000 10s. shares of the Rand Leases (Vogelstruisfontein). The Union Government took the unusual course of stipulating that the right of subscription should be confined to South African subjects. Dealings subject to allotment have been taking place on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange between 15s. and 20s. We understand that application for permission to deal in London will be made in a few weeks. H.E. Proprietary is largely interested. A further new flotation is on the tapis to deal with the large Palmietkuilen area adjoining the Grootvlei in the Far-Eastern Rand. The finance companies concerned are Central Mining and African and European, the latter having a majority holding. Although no very appreciable movement has taken place in the products, the shares of base metal undertakings are receiving more attention. The buying, chiefly confined to copper and tin descriptions, is based mainly on the improvement in the statistical position. Copper stocks in America since the beginning of May have decreased by 110,000 tons, while the shrinkage of 5,400 tons in the visible supplies of tin at the end of August is expected to be followed by a further decline of some 3,000 tons during the current month. If this rate of diminution continues, the question of an increase in the production quota can scarcely be long deferred. Encouragement to the Tin share market has been provided by the re-entry to the dividend list of a number of companies absent for a couple of years or more. In regard to the Roan Antelope Copper of Northern Rhodesia, it is stated that even under existing conditions the company is earning more than 1s. per share per annum after provision for its debenture service and for depreciation.

Financial Barometers Higher.

Both the Evening Standard financial barometers registered improvements last week. At 73.2 the index of commodity prices is just over a point higher at the best level touched since August 24. A sharp rise in oil, supported by better quotations for rubber, wool and silver, are the main factors in the rise. The index of British Industrial Ordinary share prices is 0.2 up at 96.2. Tobacco and electricity supply shares were better, but iron and steel and home railway issues declined.

Johannesburg Share Market.

An Evening Standard cablegram from Johannesburg states that Saturday's market was harder and business brisk. Closing prices:—

A Selection.

From a long list of shares mentioned in the course of our inquiries in the market as worth buying to-day by investors who are looking well ahead, and are not interested in "in and out" speculation, we (Observer) make the following selection:—

	Price.	Yield last div. p.c. £	s.	d.
L.M.S. 4 p.c. Pref.	66½	4	10	3
Midland Bank £1 fully paid	81/0	3	17	3

Dunlop Rubber	34/0	2	7	3
Shell Transport	56/3	3	4	6
Anglo-Dutch Rubber	15/9	—
Malayan Tin	23/9	3	8	0

Such shares as these, giving in most cases a fair return in these days of small yields, may be regarded as having prospects both of increased income and capital appreciation as the "recovery" which most people believe has set in develops.

'Bus Acquisition Offer Rejected.

It is understood that the independent 'bus companies have formally rejected the terms offered them for their acquisition by the London Passenger Transport Board. In accordance with the provisions of the London Passenger Transport Act, the issues will be submitted to arbitration before a tribunal appointed by the Lord Chancellor. Under the Act the Board has power to acquire the independent companies compulsorily, and the dispute concerns the compensation terms. Some fifty-six independent concerns are affected. The Board's offer was on the basis of the net profits over a certain period of years, and to take over the vehicles and garages at a valuation, subject to allowances for depreciation.

Compressed Paper Meeting.

The Shareholders' Protection Association, Limited, is convening an informal meeting of shareholders of Compressed Paper Packing, Limited, to be held on September 21 at noon in the Holborn Restaurant. In a circular to shareholders of the company, it is stated that the reason for the meeting is the position which has arisen as a result of the unexpected refusal of the Committee of the Stock Exchange to grant permission to deal in the shares of the company, and the anxiety felt by a large number of shareholders.

Winnipeg Electric 5 per Cent. Mortgage Stock.

A cable to the British Empire Trust Company says that the directors of Winnipeg Electric Company regret that, owing to the depression of the past few years, which still continues, and which has resulted in largely decreased earnings, they consider that the present financial position of the company does not justify the payment of interest due October 2 next on the 5 per cent. Refunding Mortgage Stock, as the company's resources are already inadequate for its requirements. The directors, it is added, are in communication with representative holders in Canada and with the trustees in England, British Empire Trust Company; a further communication is to be sent to stockholders as soon as possible.

U.S. Treasury's Price for Gold.

The U.S. Treasury's price for gold was fixed on Saturday at 30.49 dollars per ounce, as compared with 30.41 dollars on Friday.

Inflationary Hopes Advance Silver.

A New York telegram of Saturday says:—Silver futures developed strength to-day on renewed domestic and speculative buying, together with expectations of inflation encouraged by the weakness of the dollar. Short covering was a factor in the upswing, and the market finished at the day's high levels. The active options recorded rises of 100 to 105 points.

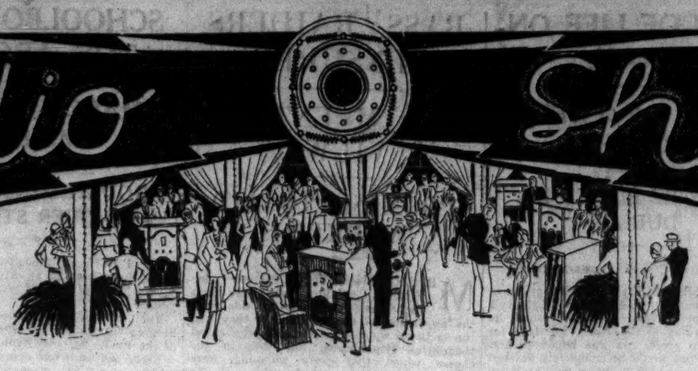

Rand's Bright Future.

The "vast expansion" of South Africa was foreshadowed by General Smuts in addressing his first public meeting since his return from England. The country, particularly the Witwatersrand, he said, was on the eve of great economic developments. A new Rand was rising. Gold ore was going to be worked as it had never been before. The price of gold was altering. They were getting a chance such as they had never had before for vast expansion. "We must forget the old mining industry," he declared. "We are moving to something quite new in gold-mining in South Africa." General Smuts foreshadowed great developments in agriculture, which must be recreated on a new basis.

Irish Wireless and Gramophone Exhibition:

CHEAPER AND BETTER SETS THIS YEAR.

By Our Radio Correspondent.

THE Dublin Wireless and Gramophone Exhibition will open its doors to the public to-day. The show will be officially opened at 7.30 this evening by Mr. Gerald Boland, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs. The Minister's speech will be broadcast from the Dublin, Athlone and Cork stations, so that listeners who are unable to attend the show in person will, at least, have an opportunity of hearing what Mr. Boland has to say about the service over which he has control. It will, I think, be the first occasion that Mr. Boland has made a public declaration concerning broadcasting outside the Dail Chamber. But what will the Minister tell us? For many years we have listened to opening speeches at radio exhibitions, and, if the truth be told, few of these speeches made our hearts beat the faster, or our imaginations travel quicker than a walk. This year, however, we expect something! We know that the Minister has been considering the whole question of broadcasting for some time, and that the announcement of the personnel of the new Advisory Committee can be expected at any moment. We know these things, and we can, therefore, be excused if we look forward to to-night's speeches with more than the usual interest.

WHAT YOU WILL SEE.

No doubt, a number of my readers have already seen many of the new season's models. But there are more to come . . . . To my own personal knowledge, not more than three or four of those exhibiting have, up to a few days ago, received a consignment of their new range of models. Deliveries have, so far as this country is concerned, been equally as bad as in previous years! But I do not anticipate that any one of the exhibitors will be short of apparatus when the actual moment arrives.

The sets shown will be either British or American. So far as I am aware, not one single Continental radio manufacturer will be represented at the Mansion House. This, to me, seems rather strange, considering the prices that many Continental sets sell at in other countries. Another point worthy of note is that no "junk"—so far as I am aware—will find space on any exhibitor's stand. Only quality radio apparatus will be shown. I am not uttering a stock phrase when I say this, but telling you something which has a definite meaning. The heavy import duty is, for development reasons, deplored; but the duty certainly is one of the best means that I know of keeping cheap and shoddy apparatus out of the country. We have no outwardly-labelled "cut-price" radio stores in Dublin. The "radio barrow" is unknown in this country, and I do not think that we are any the poorer for its absence.

But what will we behold when we take a tour of the Mansion House? You will find that the super-het. is the set of the season. Not the fearsome super-heterodyne receiver that made its appearance six or more years ago, and broke the hearts of more amateurs than I can imagine; no, it is not that receiver that has come back. The 1933-'34 super-het.—at least, the most popular types—possesses no more than four or five valves. This naturally means that the first cost of the set is not exorbitant, and that its eventual maintenance need not cost the owner much worry. The new super-heterodyne receiver has been made possible through improved coil and valve design, and, as the average good-quality model is a remarkably selective instrument, listeners are definitely getting better value this year.

Are we, you may ask, any nearer this "true" reproduction of which we hear so many people speak? I think we are appreciably nearer to truth in reproduction than ever before. This is, I suppose, inevitable, as every year brings new ideas to bear on design, and so we "make progress."

I notice that nearly every radio manufacturer this year has marketed a cheap battery set. Some people have suggested that this is a step in the wrong direction. I do not agree with them. The battery set, like the poor, we will always have with us. And, if the need for such a set exists, it is right and proper that the need should be filled. The price of these cheap two and three-valve battery sets varies. But we can always be sure of getting good value for our money if we are prepared to spend six or eight pounds. Such cheap sets will not receive every European station, and if any salesman tells you that they will, just don't believe him! They will, however, receive several B.B.C. and Continental stations, and, if the resultant reproduction is not actually true, it is, at least, better than that given by a set costing three times the money a few years ago.

For a few pounds more we jump a big gap. We get to the set that can do really big things. Twenty pounds or thereabouts will buy us a super-het. with moving-coil speaker, and we can rest assured that reception can compare favourably with sets costing twice as much money in previous years.

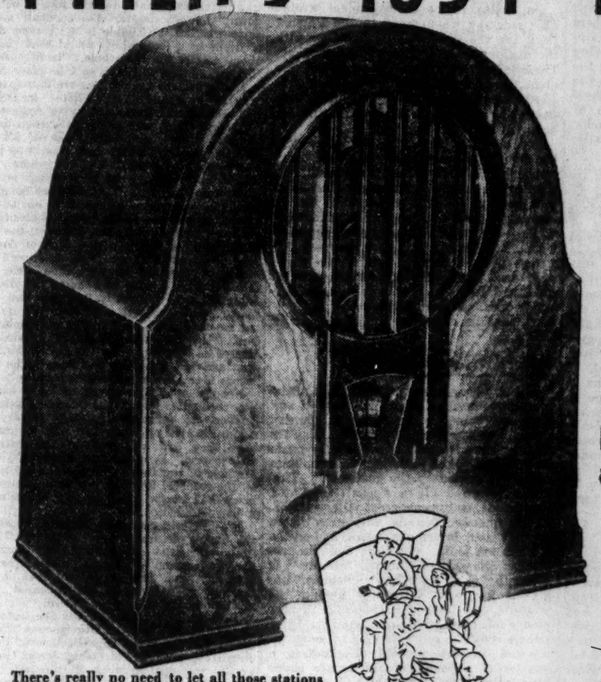

CABINET DESIGN.

THE tendency in cabinet design this season is towards the horizontal type. A number of sets in this design are also transportable, and one famous receiver incorporates two speakers. The quality of reproduction in this last-mentioned instrument is very fine, and, while the effect is not actually stereophonic, there is a decided "liveliness" about the music and speech we hear from it. The popular "kit" sets of other years are not so much in evidence. Several of the best-known manufacturers have, of course, included kits in their range this season; but, in some cases, it appears to have been done as a side-line rather than as a feature. There are, though, a few kits which must be seen. So far as design and operation are concerned, they are very good. Here, too, we find prices lower. Valve construction has, I think—probably more than the construction of any other component part of a radio receiver—undergone some remarkable changes. Nearly every valve manufacturer has new type valves this season. From the spectacular point of view, the "Catkin" valves, marketed by Marconi-Osram, are the most interesting. These valves are constructed with an electrode design entirely new to receiving valve manufacture. The makers claim a greater consistency between individual valves of the same type, and that each valve can be relied upon to conform closely to the published curve. They also claim—and, to my own personal knowledge, the claim can be upheld—that there is no change in the characteristic of the valve after rough handling. Even the severest mechanical shock does not appear to displace the electrodes. While one does not suggest that a radio receiver should be thrown either up or down stairs, it is useful to know that there is, at last, a valve which we can handle without any fear of doing it damage! These Catkin valves are not microphonic; thus we manage to get reception clear of interfering hums, howls, or buzzes. It is smaller in length and diameter, thus enabling a receiver to be built into a less cumbersome cabinet. There are numerous other advantages claimed for the valve, and if you have not yet seen one of these I would advise you to do so as soon as possible.

So far as component design is concerned, we can look for improvements everywhere, and we will not be disappointed. Coil and condenser units are now actually instruments which can be relied upon to do their job thoroughly, and with a maximum of efficiency.

In Wednesday's Irish Times I hope to be able to describe in a little greater detail a few of the more outstanding exhibits. While it is more or less easy to generalise over the exhibition, a more definite description of some of the salient features will prove of value. This year's Dublin show will actually be Olympia in miniature, so that a visit is really essential if one is anxious to keep abreast of what is happening in the world of wireless.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Dead Donkeys : Mr. Gerald Griffin : Mixed Biscuits. Sloe Gin : The Sweepstake Announcer.

Sloe Gin.

With the touch of frost in the air which has so definitely come about in the last few days, the gathering of sloes for that most popular of all home brews, sloe gin, will begin.

For the drink, good ripe sloes should be collected and cleaned, the skins then being pricked with a sterilised pin. The fruit, thus prepared, is placed in an earthenware vessel and covered with gin. Sugar is added, also a sprinkling of cloves; after which the vessel must be sealed. For a month the fruit should be allowed to soak. It must be stirred very frequently, care being taken not to break the skins. The contents of the vessel are then sieved through muslin when the liquid may be stored away. The longer the drink is kept, of course, the more potent it becomes. Whiskey may be used instead of gin, though this is not so usual.

My friend who gave me the above recipe intimated that one should be careful where the fruit pulp is thrown after the straining takes place. He told me that, having made the gin, he deposited the pulp on the rubbish heap on his poultry farm. It was quite a long time, he added, before there were any eggs, and the recollection of ducks and hens rolling on their backs, while quacking and cackling hysterically, left him quite weak with laughter.

To Go to Washington.

Changes of many kinds are taking place at present among the representatives of foreign Powers in Dublin. In addition to the transfer of Mr. Frederick Sterling to Sofia, which he probably finds rather strange after Dublin, I see that Herr Schultz, Chancellor of the German Legation, has been promoted to the Embassy at Washington. Herr Schultz came to Dublin nearly ten years ago when Dr. von Dehn came here from Liverpool to open a Consulate-General. I am speaking without the book, but I venture to say that, with the exception of the German Minister, Herr Schultz has been longer in Dublin now than any other foreign official. He has a highly-talented daughter who was educated at Alexandra College and now is being finished in Germany. During his stay in Dublin he and his wife made many friends, and their departure will be widely regretted.

The Sweepstake Announcer.

I was pleased a few days ago to meet Mr. Jack O'Sheehan, whose name is identified so closely with the Hospitals' Sweepstakes. Mr. O'Sheehan has had rather a trying illness and has just finished his period of convalescence, part of which he spent in Northern Ireland. No official of the "sweep" enjoys a wider popularity than Mr. O'Sheehan, whose voice has brought joy to the fortunate few, but disappointment to the luckless many. I suppose he is the best-known Irishman of our time inasmuch as every purchaser of a sweepstake ticket—and there have been many millions up to date—knows that on the fateful day of the draw Mr. Jack O'Sheehan will be the bearer of tidings good or bad. His many friends will be delighted to know that he is all right again, and that he will be "as large as life" in his usual place at the Plaza next month.

Mr. Gerald Griffin.

An old friend dropped in to see me the other evening in the person of Mr. Gerald Griffin. Mr. Griffin is one of the most remarkable men I know. When I first knew him he was Greek master in Mountjoy School, and all his tastes seemed to be in a classical mode. He tired of schoolmastering, however, as many good and true men have done before him, and the next I heard, to my great astonishment, was that he had become Financial Expert on the Freeman's Journal. Where he learnt his finance I do not know, but he very soon became a master of the subject.

On the untimely demise of the Freeman Mr. Griffin migrated to London, where, in a very short time, he secured a post on the Daily Telegraph. But the drudgery of newspaper work, like that of schoolmastering, palled on him, and I find now that he has blossomed forth as a literary man of some distinction. I see by the autumn lists that he has translated two German books of major importance—one a study of the Generals in the Great War by the German military expert, "Arminius," and the other Doctor Kindermann's much-discussed book, "In the Toils of the Ogpu." At the moment Mr. Griffin is in the West. Like most of the other exiles, he comes back to Ireland as often as he can, and, although he has made his residence permanently in London, his heart still is at home.

Dead Donkeys.

On Friday last a correspondent wrote: This morning when going to the Phœnix Park for the practice in connection with the motor races I saw a dead donkey. There it lay, on its side, unattended and alone, in spite of its being right in Mount street; but then it was only 6.30 a.m., and passers-by at that hour were few and far between.

It would be interesting to know why the sight of a dead donkey is looked on as unusual. One may or may not credit the idea of elephants wandering off to their own special "Valhalla" to die, but in connection with the more "domesticated" donkey one cannot accredit such romanticism. As I have said before, however, for some—to me—unknown reason, the sight of a dead donkey is regarded as remarkable, and I was glad to be able to assure my friends, to whom I recounted the incident, that the time was the sober hour of 6.30 a.m.

Mixed Biscuits.

The city grocer has very little idea of the complications that attend the sale of any kind of "mixed biscuits" in a country shop. For one thing, the biscuits that are sold by the city grocer are usually made up into half-pound packets, whose contents cannot be viewed by the customer. This would not do at all in a small shop at a cross-roads, or in some quiet village street. There quarter pounds are even more popular than larger quantities, and so the biscuits are loose. Given an amiable proprietor, the sale of "mixed biscuits" is a lengthy affair; for every customer has his or her own favourites among the mixture, and urges the salesman to pick plenty of that particular kind. In a village shop the other day I was much interested in the process of choosing a quarter of a pound of one ornate shape from a mixture. Afterwards I expressed my surprise at the whole transaction, but the mistress of the place said placidly that it would all work out satisfactorily in the end. "'Tis seldom or never that more than two or three likes the same kind of a biscuit," she assured me.

Acres of New Roofs.

While I was discussing the present rate of housing progress in Dublin, and the difficulties of obtaining necessary materials for roof construction, with a well-known Dublin architect, he asked me whether I realised that something like twenty acres of slates and tiles are being added to the roofed-in areas of Dublin during the present year. When I suggested that he over-estimated the rate of construction, he produced facts and figures which convinced me of the substantial accuracy of his figures. Based upon the construction of about 1,000 new houses, his twenty-acre estimate seems to be very near the mark, and gave me hope that, in the building trade, at all events, there would seem to be a reasonable amount of prospective employment for some months to come.

QUIDNUNC.

FILM OF LIFE ON ARAN.

DELAY OF TWELVE MONTHS.

MAY BE EDITED IN DUBLIN.

(FROM OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.)

A REMARKABLE situation has arisen in connection with Robert Flaherty's picture, "Man of Aran," which he has been making in the West of Ireland for the past two years. It was hoped at first that the picture would be completely finished before Christmas, but it looks now as if we shall not see it in Dublin for another twelve months at least.

As will be remembered, Mr. Flaherty has been making this film under the auspices of the Gainsborough Company of England. It will be of moderate length—about seven or eight thousand feet—but in every picture the final length is a mere fraction of the original footage, and I understand that at least 120,000 feet of film are at present in storage in Dublin, waiting to be cut and edited. In the ordinary course of events, this uncut film would be transferred to London for the final "boiling down," but the question has suddenly arisen as to whether it is liable to a Customs duty of fivepence a foot, which would work out at about £2,500 for the whole. It is possible that the editing will have to take place here, but it is evident that delays are anticipated; for the provisional "release date" for Dublin has been altered from January to August.

At first sight, this seems an extraordinary state of affairs, and one thinks of all the British companies which have gone "on location" to Switzerland and elsewhere, but which, apparently, were troubled by no impositions of this sort. That a British company should have to pay Customs duty on its own product appears to be the height of absurdity. As was pointed out to me, however, the case is somewhat different with "Man of Aran," as the actors were all Irish citizens. The British regulations give exemption if the film is of British origin and acted by British subjects, but apparently no provision was made for the present situation. To do the editing in Dublin may be the only solution, but in this case will the finished product be classed as "foreign" by the British authorities, and will the duty still have to be paid before it can be shown in that country?

Nobody in Dublin seems to know exactly how the matter stands; the Customs officials in London are probably the only people who could clear it up, but there are indications that they are as much in the dark as anyone else. It is evident, however, that a loophole in the British regulations has led to all the trouble; for the Customs duties cannot have been meant to apply to what is really a home-produced film.

Richard Dix and Ann Harding appear in the Savoy picture, "The Conquerors." It deals with the development of American Society from mid-Victorian times to the present day and one would say that it was inspired by "Cavalcade" if "inspired" were not so obviously the wrong word.

"Billion Dollar Scandal" is the main film at the Capitol, and the title gives a fair indication of the plot. Olga Baclanova, Robert Armstrong and our old friend James Gleason are the principal members of the cast. The supporting picture is "The Sport Parade," while the boy conductor, Jackie Held, is the main feature of the stage performance.

"Cavalcade" opens its sixth week at the Grand Cinema. I do not know if this is a "record" run for Dublin, but it must be very nearly one. The Corinthian is also retaining its picture, "The Mummy," in which Boris Karloff gives a very gruesome performance.

The Grafton's film is "For the Love of Mike" (a screen version of the stage comedy), which is fairly amusing. Bobby Howes, Arthur Riscoe and Constance Shotter are the actors.

"The Kiss before the Mirror," which is being shown at the Metropole, is an interesting study in psychology, but falls between two stools—not subtle enough to be a real artistic success and not lively enough to be a popular one. The treatment is original, however, and the acting of Frank Morgan and Nancy Carroll is really good. The other film is "Secrets of Wu Sin," a Chinese melodrama.

The Sackville is presenting "The Death Kiss," with David Manners and Adrienne Ames, also Ken Maynard in "Come on, Tarzan." On Thursday the programme will be changed, and the principal film will be "A Holy Terror," in which George O'Brien and Sally Eilers will appear.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire, is showing "Soldiers of the King." It is a comedy of stage life, in which Cicely Courtneidge has the leading part, and is very nearly the best thing that the British studios have done in this line. "The Midshipmaid" (another British comedy which is being shown for the rest of the week) is not quite so good, but Jessie Matthews makes it well worth seeing. There is also a silly symphony, "Egyptian Melodies."

BASS RAIDERS CENSURED.

MR. MacENTEE'S VIEWS.

PROMISE TO AID WORKLESS.

MR. S. MacENTEE, Minister for Finance, speaking at Bray last night, said that side by side with the opposition of the Imperialists they had the factional opposition of those who called themselves Republicans, but who in the course which they were pursuing were showing themselves not the allies of the Government, but the allies of the Opposition at home and of the Government in Great Britain.

POSITION REVIEWED.

The present leaders of the "Boycott Bass" movement opposed the establishment of Fianna Fail; they used every effort to keep their followers out of that organisation, and to restrain them from helping in the several general and bye-elections from 1927 right up until 1932, where apparently the enforcement of the Public Safety Act by the Government's predecessors caused them to change their minds in that regard. During the period from 1927 until 1932, at every moment of crisis, when by-elections were pending, and when the country seemed to be swinging back to Republicanism, they staged some ill-advised "stunt" which threw the electorate back into the arms of Mr. Cosgrave. Similarly, since the Republican Government came into power and was called upon to deal with the menace of the A.C.A. in the first instance, and, ultimately, of the National Guard, on every occasion upon which strong action had to be taken the leaders of the Boycott campaign made that the time to stage some mad escapade, the only effect of which was to antagonise and exasperate every person with common-sense and intelligence in the country.

WHAT PURPOSE?

Was it a mere coincidence, asked Mr. McEntee, that the new Boycott campaign was initiated during the period when the Government was fully occupied in dealing with the O'Duffy menace? If it was not a coincidence, if the new campaign was thus deliberately timed, what purpose was it meant to serve, what purpose could it serve except O'Duffy's and Great Britain's?

The Government has had to deal with the menace of the movement to establish a dictatorship here at home, to re-organise, and to carry on the struggle with Great Britain. How could anybody think that the activities of the British Boycott League would help the Government either to deal with the O'Duffy Movement or to maintain the struggle with Great Britain? The first duty of the Government was to protect the rights of the citizen.

HELP FOR WORKLESS.

The first measure to be submitted to the Dail in the coming session would be a bill to provide assistance for those who were able and willing to work, but who could not secure it. The Government was endeavouring to make, in the next Budget, provision for pensions for widows and orphans, and had already considerably increased pensions for the blind and the aged, and made it easier for people to secure them. These were the measures that would build up the strength of the nation. Was it not clear to every person of intelligence, said the Minister, that, by enacting such measures and putting them into operation, the Government was doing more to secure the re-establishment of the Republic than those who are engaged in a mad and senseless campaign of destruction?

FERMOY MEETING.

At a public meeting at Fermoy yesterday Mr. Liam Leddy, Araglen, who presided, made a strong appeal to all present for the boycott of Bass and all goods manufactured in England. The economic "war" had been forced on them by England for the purpose of starving them into subjection and slavery.

It was stated that the Irish Republican Army were a menace and a danger, but they denied that, and he appealed to all to become members of the organisation.

Mr. T. Barry, West Cork, urged the people to buy Irish goods, and, failing that, to buy Continental goods—in fact, anything, but not British.

Referring to the Republic, he said that the only way to restore it was that the Irish Republican Army should organise, train, and discipline themselves. They were the only national army, and could never be driven again underground.

They should tell their Dail deputies that they wanted the Republic in this year, and not in five years or ten years' time. The Fianna Fail Government had been elected by Republicans to restore the Republic, but they stopped and faltered in their advance.

WESTPORT RAIDS.

On Saturday a number of young men called on the licensed traders in Westport and requested them to remove Bass signs and stocks. In the majority of cases the Bass notices were removed, and promises were given that no further supplies would be stocked.

SCHOOLBOYS IN THE ARCTIC.

MARCH OF 140 MILES.

THROUGH DENSE FOREST AND OVER STREAMS.

A PARTY of schoolboy explorers who have been in an Arctic forest in the North of Finland returned to England yesterday.

The expedition had been organised by Surgeon-Commander G. Murray Levick, R.N., of the Public Schools' Exploring Society.

There had been one casualty in the party, which was 35 strong. Assistant-Leader Hamilton, an old Shrewsbury boy, in jumping across a stream had broken a leg. Splints were made out of wood in the forest and he was carried back to the base camp.

The boys looked the picture of health when they disembarked at Hull.

Surgeon-Commander Levick stated that the outstanding event of the expedition had been the journey of a hundred and forty miles made in 12 days by a picked team of senior boys.

Marshy ground was encountered for the first two days, and sometimes they were knee deep, but afterwards they reached higher ground and went through a dense forest, sometimes negotiating precipitous rocks and fording many streams.

Each boy carried a weight of 46lb. in food and equipment. The weather was fine, but there were hard frosts at night, the temperature being at times ten degrees below freezing point. They had only light sleeping bags.

SAW NO ONE.

Not one person was seen on the outward journey, which lasted six days, but on the return, by a different route, they passed two reindeer farms.

Scientific work was undertaken during the day, especially in relation to Arctic trees and insects.

After returning to the base camp the boys quickly recovered from fatigue, and it is claimed on their behalf that they established a record which any school team, and possibly older men, will find hard to beat.

Other boys, under the leadership of Captain W. J. Pearce and Dr. Allen Crockford, were taken for shorter journeys.

Their food consisted of dried and smoked reindeer meat, dry rye bread, butter, sugar and cheese, dried peas and chocolate, while they had every day a meal of bilberries, which grow in profusion in the forest.

The youthful explorers were from Eton, Harrow, Rugby, Marlborough, Clifton, and several other public schools.

The Finnish liner Ilmatar, in which they returned, also brought back the Black Watch Band and Pipers and the English Folk Dancers who have been in Finland in connection with British Week.

A LONDON WEDDING.

MR. E. PYKE AND MISS McCORMACK.

Miss Gwendolyn McCormack, only daughter of Count John McCormack, the world-famous operatic tenor, and Countess McCormack, of Moore Abbey, County Kildare, and Hollywood, California, was married in London on Saturday morning to Mr. Edward Pyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Pyke, of Thistleton Lodge, Kirkham, Lancashire.

The ceremony was solemnised at Brompton Oratory, and was attended by nearly 400 guests.

Dr. Downey, Archbishop of Liverpool, officiated, and Father Sharkey said the Nuptial Mass.

Count McCormack sang during the Service.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a beautiful gown of soft ivory-tinted satin, the bodice designed with long close-fitting sleeves, and the flowing skirt was extended at the back to form a long train. A girdle of twisted ivory-tinted silk was held in front with a diamond clip, and her old Irish lace veil, lent by Countess McCormack, was held in place by orange flowers. Her bouquet was of white orchids and lilies-of-the-valley.

Master Desmond Norman and Master Michael Poole carried the train. Their blouses of heavy cream georgette had frills of the material at the neck and wrists, and they wore cream satin trousers.

The bridesmaids were the Hon. Lorraine Berry, Miss Christabel Burton, Miss Dodo Annesley, Miss Marie Scott, and Miss Kathleen Burton. Their dresses of ice-blue angel-skin crepe satin were made with pleated puff sleeves and the necklines were gathered into bands of narrow pleating. Small caps of chiffon velvet to match were worn, and their bouquets were of shaded gerbera and gladiolus.

Mr. Barry Black was best man, and the ushers included:—Mr. Cyril McCormack (bride's brother), Mr. and Mr. F. More O'Ferrall, Mr. David Fremantle, Mr. Richard Lamb, and Mr. Archie Jones.

Daily Programme Review.

(CONDUCTED BY OBBLIGATO.)

DUBLIN: Relay of Speeches at the Mansion House, 7.30.

BELFAST: Afternoon Concert, 4.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: "The Charlot Hour," 7.30.

REGIONAL: Promenade Concert, Wagner Night, 8.

LANGENBERG: Orchestral Concert, 8.5.

BUDAPEST: Symphony Concert, 9.30.

THE opening ceremony of the Dublin Radio Exhibition at the Mansion House will be broadcast to-night by the Free State transmitters. It is usual on these occasions for the responsible Minister to say something about future plans. Since last year's exhibition the high-power station has been put into operation at Athlone. Incidentally the revenue obtained from sponsored programmes since the opening of the Athlone transmitter must have had a considerable effect on the finances of broadcasting in the Free State, and some promise of more generous expenditure on the Dublin Station's regular programmes ought to be possible.

DUBLIN PROGRAMMES.

One useful form of expenditure would be the appointment of a Programme Director, who would devise ways of giving connected interest to substantial portions of the nightly programmes. At present the programme-making arrangements seem to be just what they were in 1926; they consist mainly in booking individual artists for ten or fifteen minutes; recitals of songs or instrumental pieces, varied by the admission of dramatic sketches or short plays, occupying up to half-an-hour. Most of these dramatic interludes are of poor quality. I take this opportunity of mentioning one that certainly ought to be done again—"The Old Boy," by Harold Rubinstein, which was performed some months ago by a company that included John Stephenson and Laurence Elyan.

Fox Exhibition Week the Dublin Station is providing special afternoon broadcasts. The programme this afternoon will be given by the Gresham Trio and Kitty Fagan.

NO TIME TO LOSE.

What people go to the Exhibition for, of course, is to see about new receiving sets and ways of improving existing sets that will enable them to hear programmes from distant stations. They will be well advised to make up their minds quickly and to press for an early delivery of what they choose; for, as it happens, to-day's programmes give plain signs of the opening of the time for settling down to "wireless evenings." The continental programmes, it is true, are only beginning to shake themselves out of their period of summer dulness, though good things are to be found in them.

FOR THE SCHOOLS.

The real sign of the season is the form of to-day's Daventry National programme, which now becomes normal again. The morning talks, designed mainly for women listeners, have been resumed.

To-day is the first day of the autumn term of broadcasts to schools. Many invalids enjoy and follow these afternoon lessons intended for primary and secondary schools in England; for they are given by first-rate authorities, and even the method of their presentation, based on exchanges of views between the authors of the courses and representatievs of schools that use them, is of interest to thoughtful listeners.

BOOK REVIEWS.

Again in the same programme we note the return of "The Foundations of Music," which alone would be enough to make the Daventry National programme look itself again. Lastly, we note the resumption of that old-established Monday night fixture, the review of new books. The new series is being opened by Mr. Desmond McCarthy, who, on the whole, has been the most dependable, sound and satisfactory of those who have tried reviewing for broadcasting. Mr. McCarthy will share the series with Mr. G. K. Chesterton, whose brilliant, if wayward, individuality will supply the proper complement to his colleague's steady competence.

INTERESTING "FINDS" IN COUNTY CORK.

TWO STONE AXES.

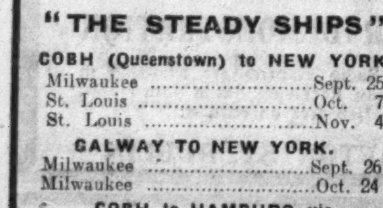

The National Museum has just acquired through the generosity of Mr. J. Watson, of Milford, Charleville, Co. Cork, two very interesting stone tools. One of them is an axe of the pointed-butt type, carefully bevelled towards the butt, with oval cross-section, and has the bevel and sides finely shaped. Traces of what appear to be groovings for facilitating hafting appear towards the middle of the axe. The influence of metal forms may possibly be postulated. The material has been diagnosed by Mr. T. Hallissey, Director of the Geological Survey, as basalt.

The second axe is a finely-polished adze, with finely-shaped bevel and roughened butt, and shows traces of iron staining, probably due to contact with an iron-bearing mineral in the soil. The material is an igneous rock of intermediate composition, possibly an andesite or porphyrite.

The kind intermediacy of Miss M. Riordan, B.A., of Cork and Dublin, is acknowledged by the Museum authorities.

AIR CIRCUS AT PORTMARNOCK

Despite unsettled weather conditions, a large crowd of spectators assembled yesterday afternoon at Carrickhill, Portmarnock, to watch the skilful flying of the ten aeroplanes of Sir Alan Cobham's air circus, which at present is making a second tour of the Irish Free State. Misty rain and consequent bad visibility for some time threatened to prevent the display from being staged, but, with the lifting of low-lying clouds, the entire programme, with the exception of one or two items, was able to be presented. Nearly a thousand people went up for flights, and every 'plane in the circus was pressed into service for the giving of "joy-rides." The giant Handley Page Clive air-liner "Youth of Australia" and the Airspeed Fairy three-engined eight-seater 'plane "Youth of Ireland," skilfully piloted by Captain King, were especially favoured by people seeking acquaintance with the sensations of aerial travel. Thrills were provided by the acrobatics of Mr. Geoffrey Tyson in the yellow-painted "Tiger" Moth aeroplane, and the formation flight of the entire circus was one of the most spectacular events of the afternoon.

LEOPARDSTOWN CLUB.

SEPTEMBER RACE MEETING.

The counter-attraction of motor racing in the Phœnix Park, and the fact that many people had not yet returned from Doncaster, were responsible for rather a small attendance at Leopardstown racecourse for the September meeting, which was held on Saturday last. With the continuance of the bright, warm weather women were dressed in bright attire. Coat frocks of wool marocain in navy blue or browns looked smart when relieved with touches of white. A good many people favoured tailored suits, and these were worn with some of the new autumn hats, which are much more becoming than the exaggerated styles of recent date, as they are mostly fashioned with slight brims, and trimmed with cute little bows. Those present in the members' enclosure included:—The Earl of Fingall, the Duke and Duchess de Stacpoole, Sir James and Lady Nelson, Sir Lingard Goulding, Sir Walter Nugent, Lady Grace, Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Gerrard, Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. G. Purcell-Gilpin, Mr. and Mrs. Hope Johnson, Mrs. G. A. Boyd-Rochfort, Colonel S. S. Hill-Dillon, Colonel and Mrs. Scott Moore, Mr. A. D. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

CONVENTION IN DUBLIN.

Christian Endeavourers from all parts of Ireland are now meeting in Dublin for the 26th Irish National Convention, which opened on Friday last with a meeting in the Centenary Methodist Church. The outgoing Irish President, Mr. H. S. Broomfield, delivered his valedictory address, and one of the visiting speakers, the Rev. H. T. Wigley, B.A., B.D., of Oldham, also addressed the meeting.

A devotional meeting, under the leadership of the Rev. M. H. G. Willis, M.A., M.B.E., of Donaghadee, was held on Saturday morning, after which the delegates enjoyed a sight-seeing tour of Dublin by motor coach.

The annual business meeting of the Irish Union took place in the afternoon. References were made to the life and work of the late Mr. W. Moffat Clow, of Portadown, who was for many years a member of the Irish Christian Endeavour Council.

The annual report, which was presented by the general secretary, stated that the reports received from the district unions and societies had been most encouraging, and showed that they are very much alive to the challenge of the present day. A great variety of service has been rendered "for Christ and the Church." Some societies had organised special evangelistic efforts during the year.

The following is the present position of societies and members in Ireland:—252 Young People's Societies, 8,578 members; 26 intermediate societies, 768 members; 113 junior societies, 4,352 members. Total societies, 391, with a membership of 13,698. This is a nett increase of 16 societies and 739 members.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, Pastor L. E. Deens (Dublin); Vice-President, the Rev. M. Majury, B.A., D.D. (Antrim); Hon. General Secretary, the Rev. W. H. Hayes (Bandon); Recording Secretary, Mr. C. W. Graham (Belfast); Treasurer, Mr. S. J. Harvey (Belfast).

At a social reception the delegates were welcomed to the city by the Rev. R. Bird, M.A., D.S.O., and Pastor L. E. Deens.

A junior rally was held on Saturday evening, when members of Dublin junior societies took part in a demonstration entitled, "Count your Blessings," and an address was given by Mr. W. H. McKellen, President of the British Christian Endeavour Union.

A special Service was held yesterday afternoon at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. The Ven. A. G. Hannon, M.A., Archdeacon of Dromore, preached the sermon, and the anthem was: "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place" (Brahms). The hymns were: "All People that on Earth do Dwell," "Be Thou My Vision, O Lord of my Heart," and "Crown Him with Many Crowns."

DUBLIN SEAMEN'S BALLOT.

RESULT MAY BE KNOWN TO-DAY.

It was stated yesterday at the offices of the Irish Seamen and Port Workers' Union that the ballot of seamen employed on the British and Irish Steampacket Company's vessels had been almost completed and that the result would probably be known to-day or to-morrow. The number of ballot papers returned indicate, according to officials of the union, that almost the full membership among the crews are voting, and that the decision—whether for or against strike action on Thursday next—will be in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the full membership, and not merely one secured by a few enthusiasts through the indifference of the general body of the men.

A meeting of the seamen concerned will be held to-day at Commons street, Dublin.

FUNERAL OF THE EARL OF KERRY.

The village of Derry Hill, on the Bowood Park estate, Wilts, and the neighbouring town of Calne, were in mourning on Saturday for the funeral of the Earl of Kerry.

The Memorial Service at Christ Church, Derry Hill, was conducted by the Archdeacon of Wiltshire, the Ven. J. W. Coulter.

Lady Lansdowne was a pathetic figure in deep black among the family mourners, leading by the hand her youngest son, Lord Edward Fitzmaurice.

The procession left the park by Queen's Lodge Gate, a few yards from the church. After the Service the mourners passed through the village, and proceeded by way of the golden gates to the Mausoleum, where the interment took place. Workmen on the estate joined the cortège.

The family mourners were the Marquess and Marchioness of Lansdowne, the Hon. Edward and Lady Katherine Bigham, brother-in-law and sister; Lord Charles and Lord Edward Fitzmaurice, brothers; Lady Hope, grandmother; Mr. John Hope, uncle; the Duchess of Devonshire and Lady Violet Astor, aunts; Viscountess Mersey, Captain and Mrs. A. O. Hood, Miss Nina Hood, and Mr. A. Digby.

Among others present were:—The Duke and Duchess of Beaufort, the Dowager Duchess of Beaufort, the Marchioness of Crewe, the Marquess of Bath, Lady Salisbury, Lord Hugh Cecil, Lord Hugh Beresford, the Marquess of Waterford, Lord and Lady Walter Hervey, Sir Audley Neeld, Sir Daniel and Lady Cooper, Captain the Hon. T. Holland Hibbert, Captain the Hon. Anthony Methuen, the Earl of Powis, Sir John Gladstone, Sir Philip Hunloke, Mr. B. H. Summer, representing the Master and Fellows of Balliol; Mr. A. E. Conybeare, Lower Master of Eton College; the Hon. George Herbert, and Captain and Lady Avice Spicer.

In response to the request of the local residents, Thomastown garage proprietors have ceased using water from the public pumps for the washing of motors.

MOTOR RACING THRILLS IN PHŒNIX PARK.

HIGHER SPEEDS THAN LAST YEAR.

DUBLIN MAN WINS SENIOR HANDICAP.

JUNIOR EVENT GOES TO ATHBOY COMPETITOR.

MR. F. O'BOYLE (Dublin), in a Riley, won the Senior Handicap and the Lord Wakefield Trophy in the car race meeting of the Irish Motor Racing Club, which was held last Saturday in the Phœnix Park, Dublin.

Mr. A. H. Potterton (Athboy), in an M.G. Midget, won the Junior Handicap.

The speeds all round were much higher than last year. The lap "records" in the 750 c.c. and 1,100 c.c. classes were broken several times, and Mr. W. R. Baird, in a Riley car, had fastest speed of both races, at 73.7 m.p.h. in the Junior and 78.7 m.p.h. in the Senior.

While many thrilling incidents occurred at the Mountjoy and Gough corners, the afternoon's sport was free from accident. At one stage, however, there was a danger of the junior race being terminated and the Senior abandoned owing to the conduct of a large number of spectators, who kept running across the course.

Two interesting features of the meeting were that Miss N. Comerford and Mr. H. F. McCullough, both of whom were competitors, had been married a few hours before the races, and that the time-keeping staff had been organised virtually on the eve of the meeting, owing to the international staff originally appointed being unable to travel.

RESOURCEFUL DRIVERS.

FROM OUR MOTORING CORRESPONDENT.

The Junior race, of approximately 75 miles, and for cars up to 1,100 c.c., was held first, thirteen competitors starting. By virtue of his handicap allowance Mr. F. W. Earney, Amilcar, led in the first few laps, and when he retired Mr. A. H. Potterton went in front. Mr. Potterton was using the same M.G. Midget as he drove in winning last year's Junior "Fifty," but he had found a lot of additional speed. The handicappers apparently had not anticipated that the car would be 4 m.p.h. faster than twelve months before.

It was soon realised that Mr. W. Sullivan was the only other driver with much chance of catching Mr. Potterton. Mr. Sullivan gained slowly, but he was forced to retire, and the Athboy motorist ran out an easy winner with a lead of 4 mins. 23 secs.

It is likely that Mr. W. J. Kavanagh would have been much closer to, if not in front of, Mr. Potterton had he not been delayed at the pits at the commencement of the race. As it was, he made a great effort to get on terms. Mr. Kavanagh's driving was one of the best features of the meeting. At times he took the Mountjoy corner on two wheels, so great was his speed.

During this race Mr. Kavanagh broke the old Irish Grand Prix "record" for the small car class, having a lap at 72.4 miles per hour. A lap at the same speed was done by Mr. Sullivan in the Senior race, for which cars competing in the Junior were eligible.

Fastest speed in the Junior race was by Mr. W. R. Baird, who had the Riley car in which he finished sixth in the recent Ulster T.T. race. Despite his 73.7 miles per hour, however, he made up only about half the allowance he was conceding Mr. D. C. MacLachlan in another fast but much older Riley.

SPECTACULAR EVENT.

The Senior race attracted 21 starters, and as speeds were considerably higher this was a spectacular event to watch. Almost all the drivers who had taken part in the Junior, and who subsequently drove in the Senior, showed a remarkable speed increase in the second race. The most notable example was Mr. Frank O'Boyle. In the Junior he had magneto trouble, and finished fifth at 54.4 miles per hour. In the Senior his car went really well and his speed jumped to 67.9 miles per hour.

The distance of the Senior race was 100 miles, or 24 laps. Mr. F. Pearson, driving a very old Peugeot, had a start of seven laps and one minute, as a result of which he held the lead for a long time. Then he lost a tyre, and Mr. O'Boyle went ahead. He, however, never had a lead like Mr. Potterton's in the Junior. There always was a chance of Mr. P. M. Berkery or Mr. Sullivan catching him.

In the last lap Mr. Berkery's old Sunbeam slowed, and he was passed by Mr Sullivan, who came home a minute and 18 seconds behind the winner, Mr. O'Boyle. Once again fastest speed was by Mr. Baird, who now raised his average to 78.7 miles per hour. There was a great duel between Mr. Baird and Mr. C. G. Neill, Bugatti. They started from the same mark, and were seldom separated by more than a few seconds. At the finish Mr. Neill was only 17 seconds behind Mr. Baird.

Mr. Baird smashed the "record" for the lap in the 1,100 c.c. class. He had a circuit at 82 miles per hour, that being the fastest lap of the day.

I am able to reveal that during the Junior race the stewards of the meeting threatened to have the Senior event called off owing to the conduct of the spectators.

SPECTATORS' ACTION.

In these motor car events the Irish Motor Racing Club provided the public with a great free show. There was no charge for admission to the Park, but little appreciation of the fact was shown by thousands of spectators, who in groups of dozens kept running across the course while the Junior race was in progress, thereby endangering their own lives and those of the competitors.

The general organisation of the race was excellent, and the majority of the officials carried out their duties with commendable efficiency.

It is probable that no motor race ever was timed by a timekeeping staff organised with such haste as that doing duty on Saturday. A staff of international timekeepers had been arranged for the races, but a few days before the meeting the Irish Motor Racing Club received a telegram to say they could not travel.

At that stage every official was already in some responsible post from which it would be complicated to remove him, and the Irish Motor Racing Club were faced with the task of recruiting a new timekeeping staff and training it.

The clerk of the course decided to hold the watch himself, with the treasurer and one of the zone marshals to help. Seven other posts had to be filled, and the Automobile Association was thought to be an excellent place in which to look for assistance. Three lady members of the Automobile Association staff and the assistant-secretary volunteered, and two "young brothers" were produced by a member of the Irish Motor Racing Club Committee.

THE TIMING.

This very scratch crew, 70 per cent. of whom had no association with either timekeeping or motor racing, met together for half an hour on Friday evening, and their duties were explained. On Saturday they timed the race with flawless efficiency.

Miss N. Comerford, the first woman to drive in a road race in the British Isles, finished in the Senior at 60.5 miles per hour. She would, no doubt, have been much faster, but she had trouble with her gear box.

Mr. H. F. McCullough, who married Miss Comerford shortly before the races, drove in the Junior event, but retired early with a mechanical defect.

The officials chiefly responsible for the organisation and conduct of the meeting were—Major Niall McNeill, chief marshal; Mr. Harold C. Brown, chief timekeeper, organising secretary and clerk of the course; Mr. C. J. Walsh, assistant secretary and assistant chief marshal; Mr. I. E. Gibson, clerk of works; Mr. A. Harrison, treasurer of the meeting and assistant chief timekeeper; Mr. T. K. Sheridan, secretary of the meeting; Mr. S. T. Robinson, chief technical officer and scrutineer, and Mr. J. J. O'Neill, chief flag marshal.

The stewards of the meeting were Mr. Edgar Anderson, representing the Royal Irish Automobile Club; Mr. P. S. Brady, representing the Irish Motor Racing Club, and Mr. W. Noble, representing the Ulster Automobile Club. Mr. J. J. Beggan was in charge of the paddock; Mr. P. A. Sheehan was Press secretary; Captain T. L. M. Fuge announcer, Mr. J. J. Reddy judge, Mr. Dene Allen and Mr. P. H. Hurse assistant chief marshals. The running commentary from the Dublin Broadcasting Station was by Mr. F. M. Summerfield, and Mr. S. L. Hutchinson chairman of the committee running the very successful dance held on the evening of the races.

THRILLS WITHOUT SPILLS.

MOUNTJOY CORNER TEST FOR DRIVERS.

"Thrills without spills" is the most appropriate description of the happenings during the course of the races as witnessed by the thousands who were congregated at all the vantage points at Mountjoy Corner. The famous right-hand corner certainly lived up to its reputation as a test for drivers and cars alike, and one fancies that many of the mechanical troubles that led to the retirement of so many of the entrants were due to the heavy strain imposed by the fierce braking and skidding experienced here. In the small car race the first to approach the corner was the M.G. Midget No. 26, driven by Briggs, who, braking hard, slipped round two lengths ahead of Wilson in No. 25. Then a couple of hundred yards behind came Potterton, last year's winner, in his M.G. Midget, with O'Shaughnessy in his Riley (No. 27) on his tail, and inclined to develop a wobble. After them came MacLachlan in his red Riley, Corry on the M.G. Magna with its high note, McCullagh on a Riley—all in a bunch. MacLachlan caused the first thrill by swinging wide and throwing up a cloud of dust as his near wheels caught the parched grass, but before the crowd had time to recover its breath there was the spectacle of Kavanagh in his little cream Austin careering madly round the corner, with his mechanic performing acrobatic stunts across the back of the car to keep it on the road. The rest went by in a bunch, much interest being taken in Sullivan's little blue Special.

FAST CORNERING.

As the race went on the cornering became faster, but the light cars kept the road wonderfully. Kavanagh kept on cornering in most amazing fashion, with his mechanic lying across the back of the car. The spectators held their breath when, after half-a-dozen laps, the mechanic coming round the corner momentarily lost his balance, and appeared to be diving head-foremost over the side of the car. His legs kicked wildly in the air, but in some extraordinary fashion he recovered balance, and scrambled back to safety amid a terrific cheer from the crowd. Then MacLachlan caused a thrill as his red Riley skid round and round in a great spin. He kept the road, however, and was immediately off again. Baird, in his low, raking blue Biley, drove superbly throughout, but in his eighth lap he also went into a skid and spin round the corner, recovering smartly and plunging madly on. The progress of Potterton (23), Sullivan (7) and the two Rileys (19 and 10) was followed with keen interest by the crowd, and there was a great sigh of disappointment when Sullivan, with the first place apparently within reach, ran up on to the grass and pulled out of the race. "Sounds like a piston gone" was his laconic reply when I asked him what had happened as he stepped out of the car.

So the others were left to fight it out, and there was a cheer for Potterton as he went round the winner, but a much heartier greeting for Kavanagh and his daring mechanic in their little Austin.

THE SENIORS.

KAVANAGH'S FINE DRIVING.

After the appetiser provided by the Junior race the crowd prepared themselves for a thrilling time in the race of the Seniors, and they were not disappointed. From start to finish the cornering was one long thrill.

Appropriately enough, Miss Comerford, the only woman in the race, was first to the corner in her little maroon Hillman Minx. She took the turn like an expert with Yule's big Bentley shepherding her round. Then, in a group, came Manders on a Bugatti, O'Boyle in his Riley, Corry, Atkins, and four or five others.

The pace was obviously much faster than in the Juniors, and incidents were numerous. First Plunket, in his black Alfa-Romeo, swung wide on the grass, followed by the Delage, also throwing up dust, and then by Berkery's Sunbeam threatening to develop a fierce wobble as it ran on to the green. The fourth time round Manders and Neill, both in Bugatti's, had a fierce duel approaching and rounding the corner, but one forgot them as Wilson, coming round too hard, went into a skid and spin, but pulled up, and got going again. Kavanagh, in his baby Austin, was next in the limelight. He had been driving magnificently, but on the fifth lap he came round at a fierce bat. The right-hand wheels lifted fully a foot off the ground, and with the mechanic lying across the back, the car careered wildly across the road on to the grass, through the trees by the pond, and out on the road again. Marshals and camera men scattered right and left as the car charged at them. The crowd gasped, and then cheered wildly as Kavanagh got back on the road all right and stepped on the accelerator.

With the race entering its closing stages the crowd at Mountjoy was provided with its biggest thrill, and only the coolness of the four drivers involved saved a dreadful smash. MacLachlan in his Riley, Kavanagh in the Baby Austin, Atkins in the Delage, and Berkery in the Sunbeam, all came at a great pace up the straight to the turn. The flag marshal, scenting trouble, waved his blue flag fiercely, but the cars tore on. MacLachlan came round the turn and went into a dreadful spin. With great skill he pulled the Riley dead, with her bonnet pointing back whence he had come. With the road blocked, Kavanagh, not two lengths behind, swung wide, and in startling manner drove right round the stationary MacLachlan, through the trees and out on the road, with the big Delage following his track, while the Sunbeam cut in on the inside of the road. It all happened in a second, but it was an amazing exhibition of dare-devil driving, and revealed, as nothing else in the race did, the courage, coolness, and presence of mind of the drivers concerned.

INCIDENTS AT GOUGH STATUE.

After Mountjoy corner, the turn at the Gough Statue offered the most likelihood of excitement, and large crowds collected as near to it as the police authorities would let them, among the spectators being Stanley Woods, the motor cyclist.

Both races were free from mishap at this point, though a curious accident took place during the senior event a few hundred yards up the "straight." The spare wheel of one car became detached, and, rolling into the crowd at the side of the road, injured Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, of 99 South Circular road, Inchicore. They were taken in the ambulance to Steevens's Hospital, but it was found that their injuries were only slight, and they were afterwards allowed to go home.

It was strange, indeed, that there were no more injuries to bystanders; for towards the end of the race people began to trespass freely on the road, and even cyclists were to be seen riding down it. Motorists coming at speed round the corner succeeded in avoiding them, but it certainly would not have been their fault if there had been an accident.

ALERT DRIVERS.

There were many skids, the drivers finding their trouble just past the turn, where the camber on the far side of the track tended to swing their cars round. Mr. Berkery's Sunbeam was the most persistent; it went into a very bad skid in the early stages of the race, and hardly a lap passed afterwards that Mr. Berkery's car did not skid again. Its most startling effort was towards the end, when it ran half way up the bank and stopped there. Three or four other cars were following at its heels, but their drivers were able to steer them past in safety, and, after a little reluctance, the Sunbeam allowed itself to be started again.

On the whole, this dangerous turn was remarkably free from incident, except for two stray dogs, who nearly ended their careers there. The second, after fleeing in terror from at least five oncoming motors, surprised everyone by coming back fifteen minutes later and going through the whole procedure a second time.

Free State Army Manœuvres.

GETTING READY FOR BIG BATTLE.

FROM OUR REPORTER.

DIRECTORS' CAMP, BRITTAS, Sunday.

IT is essential to be clear about what is fact and what is fiction if an intelligent interest is to be taken in the reports which will appear in the course of the next few days on the subject of the Free State Army manœuvres. To-day I was officially supplied with a most exciting story about Dublin being invaded, a story which I knew to be ridiculously untrue, and a summary of that story I intend to include in this article.

Those responsible for supplying the Press with information do not want the manœuvres to be made to look absurd, and these stories about Dublin being invaded must not only be read with intelligence, but also reported with intelligence. "What is the meaning of this 'Ballyhoo?'" I heard someone remark to-day in reference to the invasion story. I want readers of the Irish Times to be clear about what it does mean.

In combined exercises such as are now taking place it is necessary to have a plan. It is not sufficient for the directors to say to the Blue Army at the Curragh and the Yellow Army at the Phœnix Park: "There's a war on, boys. Up and at 'em." A certain set of circumstances upon which the operations of the opposing forces will be based have to be formulated. The manœuvres are not a "war" in themselves, but only a portion of the action that would probably be fought in the event of a war on the lines of the circumstances preconceived.

THE BIG IDEA.

Briefly the preconceived circumstances are these:—

An invading force landed North and South of Dublin on Friday. They were opposed by troops of the Dublin garrison, but pushed their way so far as the Grand and Royal Canals. To-day Dublin is completely cut off from communication with the outside world, being surrounded by the invading force. The home troops are, of course, being mobilised at The Curragh, Athlone, Limerick, and Cork.

Except for one detail, all the foregoing is fiction. I have told it in as few words as possible. The official story was much better reading; but it is better, I think, to be succint in dealing with the preamble to the manœuvres than to tell the tale sensationally.

Now, the accurate detail in the preamble is that the mobilisation at the Curragh has actually taken place. On Saturday the troops there, consisting of the 1st Reinforced Brigade, were ordered to proceed to Dublin to relieve the besieged garrison. To-night, under cover of darkness, they moved off. For the purpose of the manœuvres this force is known as the Blue Army.

THE INVADERS.

The only part of the "invading force" which actually exists is the 3rd Infantry Brigade, reinforced by strong detachments of artillery, tanks, armoured cars, cavalry, and air units. They are concentrated in the Phœnix Park, and are known as the Yellow Army. They will be ordered to meet the advancing Blue Army, and to-morrow contact may be established between the two forces. They are unlikely, however, to get seriously to grips until Tuesday, and probably the big days in the campaign will be Wednesday and Thursday.

It is understood that the principal action between the Armies will be fought around the Brittas and Blessington areas. That will result from the action of the Blue Army (this part more fiction) in systematically destroying all important bridges on the flanks of their line of advance and appealing to the civilian population to block all roads in the flat country areas lying between the Curragh and Dublin.

At the time of writing the Yellow Army has not moved from the Phœnix Park. It is very likely, however, that they will be under way very early to-morrow morning. In the meantime this camp at Brittas is filling up with officers—directors of various aspects of the manœuvres and their staffs. We are all living under canvas and the threatening weather of to-day has made some of us rather apprehensive about the coming week. Anyway, we will be better off than the Blue and Yellow Armies. To-night the Blues will bivouac by the roadside somewhere. I hope it does not rain!

CORK LABOURER'S ORDEAL.

That he had been held up by four armed men, who threatened to shoot him unless he resigned from the National Guard, was the complaint made on Saturday to the Civic Guards at Charleville, County Cork, by a farm labourer. He said that he was kicked, beaten and warned not to report the matter, and had been left handcuffed on the roadside.

MOATE CATTLE SALE.

£1,000 FOR NOTED HERD.

BUYERS FROM TWELVE COUNTIES.

THE dispersal sale of an entire herd of well-known pedigree cattle attracted buyers from twelve counties of the Free State to Kilcleagh, near Moate, County Westmeath, on Saturday. Messrs. Gavin Low, Ltd., auctioned the Kilcleagh Park Herefords on behalf of the owners—Lieut.-Col. T. S. O'Dell (49 animals); his son, Mr. T. V. O'Dell (9), and the steward, Mr. J. Doyle (2).

The value of the herd was calculated to be almost £1,000.

"It was a good sale," the auctioneer afterwards told an Irish Times reporter; "for though the stock is well known, the prices were rather higher than those usually prevailing."

The herd, founded in 1916-17, has blood from some of the best-known English and Irish herds; since 1921 it has consistently achieved first-class successes in the Royal Dublin Society's and other show yards elsewhere. The bull, Kilcleagh Orator, lately sold from the herd, had probably won more championships and prizes than any Hereford bull of recent years; while another notable winner, Helena, was one of the very few females that have won the Hereford Herd Book Society's Challenge Cup.

Of the sixty beasts on offer, 45 were sold, 11 were withdrawn when bids failed to reach reserve prices, and the four remaining animals were bought in for Kilcleagh. The top price was 40 gns., paid for a three years old cow, Julietta, bred by Lieut.-Col. O'Dell. When bidding for the five-year-old cow Gloria finished at 40 gns. it was stated that the reserve price was 50 gns., and the animal was withdrawn.

The animals purchased, with their prices (in guineas) and buyers, are as follow:—

RAIL AND ROAD WORKERS.

QUESTION OF THE PENSION FUND.

Speaking at a meeting of the Federation of Irish Rail and Road Workers, held at 41 Parnell square, Dublin yesterday, Mr. J. P. Cullen reported that the membership is now in the neighbourhood of 800; that the Union has now a sick fund, and that a pension fund, which has been examined by experts, has been established. He mentioned that the pension fund was established on the basis of a membership of 1,000 or upwards, and would come into operation immediately that the thousand mark was reached.

He said that the Union aimed at wiping weather-cock trade union leaders off the map and that it intended to abolish secret negotiations. Under the rules any negotiations which would take place under the auspices of the Federation would be carried out in the presence of two members of the rank and file from the grade concerned in the question under discussion.

Mr. J. Rafferty referred to the question of a family wage and advocated the setting up of a study circle to educate the members upon questions of social science. He added that they would make the weapon of strikes secondary to the enforcement of Christian principles in everyday life. In saying this they were not hypocrites, but persons who wanted to see in operation ideas to which the world gave lip-service.

Mr. J. Dooley appealed to those workers who were holding cards in the new Union and also in the Union which had been operating originally to put their trust only in the new organisation.

LIMERICK DRAINAGE.

COUNTY COUNCIL PASSES £22,850 SCHEME.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Saturday.

A scheme to carry out extensive drainage along the valley of the Mulhern River was adopted at the meeting of the Limerick County Council to-day by twenty-two votes to three. A letter from the Office of Public Works stated that the scheme would cost £22,850, and would mean the improvement of 3,529 acres of land to the extent of £726 10s. 9d. per annum. The annual cost of maintenance was estimated at £525, and the annual charge to repay the cost of the scheme at 5½ per cent. for 35 years was £1,479 10s. 9d. Without free grants the total annual charge to the occupiers was £2,004 10s. 9d. The letter asked if the Council were prepared to increase their contribution from 34 to 35 1-3 per cent., the sum that they would require to borrow being £8,302 3s. 3d. at the annual charge of £537 11s. 4d. for 35 years.

The scheme was supported by a deputation from the Irish Labour Party and the councillors from the area.

It was decided to ask the Board of Works to reduce the rate of interest from 5½ to 4 per cent.

LATE MR. C. E. BEALE.

The funeral of Mr. Charles E. Beale, proprietor of the firm of Harris and Beale, Grand Parade, Cork, took place on Saturday. Mr. Beale had been prominently identified with the commercial life of Cork, and was at one time President of the Incorporated Chamber of Commerce and Shipping and trustee of Cork Savings Bank. For many years he was a member of the Committee of the Victoria Hospital.

Archdeacon Flewett and the Rev. Mr. Chevasse were the clergymen present at the funeral, which was private.

A vote of sympathy with the late Mr. Beale's relatives was passed at Saturday's meeting of the Munster Agricultural Society.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

Two motor car races, under the auspices of the Irish Motor Racing Club, were held in the Phœnix Park, Dublin, last Saturday. The senior event was won by Mr. F. O'Boyle, of Dublin, and the junior by Mr. A. H. Potterton, of Athboy.—(Page 5.)

The leaders of the new United Ireland movement — Mr. Cosgrave, General O'Duffy, Mr. MacDermot, and Mr. Dillon —appeared on the same platform in Thurles yesterday at a largely attended meeting to open their campaign in the country.—(Page 7.)

Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Finance, speaking at Bray last night, condemned those responsible for the destruction of Bass's ale, and said that the first measure to be introduced when the Dail met would be a bill to help the unemployed.—(Page 4.)

Mr. Norton, leader of the Labour Party in the Dail, speaking at Kildare yesterday, said that in last week's discussions with Fianna Fail the Government had guaranteed to bring in certain measures during the coming year, and to have fortnightly meetings with Labour on matters of projected legislation.—(Page 8.)

Speaking at an aeridheacht in Macroom yesterday, President de Valera said that if the people united behind the Government they would win the economic war, as they won the fight against conscription. It was the same old war that had been waged against Ireland in the past, but the results were plainer now.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Anxiety is growing in Cuba in regard to impending events. A general strike has been declared at Manzanillo.—(Page 7.)

H. C. Hamilton, who was taking part in the international motor races at Brno, Czechoslovakia, yesterday, was injured when his car somersaulted at a hairpin bend.—(Page 7.)

A heavy death-roll is reported from Mexico as the result of a hurricane.—(Page 6.)

When Nazis threw smoke bombs during a meeting at Graz (Austria) yesterday one hundred people were injured. Ten Nazis were almost lynched by the furious crowd before the police rescued them. One hundred arrests were made.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At Leopardstown on Saturday Silverissa won the Bray Plate, Harem the Dargle Plate, Ardent View the Juvenile Plate, Clonmoy the Foxrock Plate, and Rathfriland, after walking over for the Dundrum Steeplechase, won the Stillorgan Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

At Alexandra Park on Saturday Shove Halfpenny won the September Handicap.—(Page 10.)

At Ripon on Saturday Muezzin won the Ripon Autumn Handicap.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Money Market was unchanged on Saturday. Credit was plentiful. Gold remained at 130s. 5d. per oz. fine, and £12,000 in the market was taken for the Continent.—(Page 2.)

The Price of Office.

Yesterday's long-awaited break in the weather was accompanied by a deluge of political speech-making in the Free State. President de Valera, who had spoken on Saturday night in Cork, continued his campaign at Macroom; the new United Ireland Party held its opening rally at Thurles, and Mr. Norton, the Labour leader, addressed his constituents at Kildare. Mr. de Valera's two speeches were the utterances of an uneasy leader. Until the foundation of the United Ireland Party he could be fairly certain that, whenever the Labour Party might be impelled to vote against the Government in Dáil Eireann, he would have the momentary support of Mr. MacDermot's Centre group. Now Mr. MacDermot has joined the official Opposition, and his votes are lost for ever to the Government. Henceforward Mr. de Valera's Government will be entirely in the Labour Party's hands. The position in Dáil Eireann will be identical with that which forced Mr. de Valera to dissolve Parliament at the beginning of the present year, and Mr. Norton will be de facto President of the Executive Council. Mr. de Valera does not submit gladly to political dictation, and there is very little doubt that, whatever the politicians may say to the contrary, the events of the last few weeks have hastened the date of the next general election.

Mr. Norton has driven a hard bargain, and its terms will cause the gravest misgivings among the Government's middle-class supporters. As the price of the Labour Party's support Mr. de Valera has undertaken to advance a programme of social reform which will be as costly as it is far-reaching. Widows and orphans will get pensions. A new bill will provide for the financial relief of those persons who have lost their jobs and have exhausted their unemployment benefits under existing legislation. A new Workmen's Compensation Bill will extend the present system of payments. There will be a new Factory and Workshops Bill, and housing activities throughout the Free State will be accelerated. Mr. de Valera has promised all these rewards to Mr. Norton, and we may be quite sure that he will be kept strictly to his word. Consultations between the Government and the Labour leaders will be held every fortnight, when, presumably, progress will be reported to Mr. de Valera's taskmasters. If anybody asks where all the money for these grandiose schemes is to be raised, the answer is easy. Issachar, the strong ass, will be yoked once more to the Norton-de Valera cart. The taxpayer, of course, has no rights in the eyes of Mr. Norton, and continues to be the victim of Mr. de Valera's political necessities.

Messrs. de Valera and Norton spurn the taxpayer; General O'Duffy places his interests in the forefront of the new party's programme. Where Mr. de Valera is weak and hesitant, General O'Duffy gives the impression of decision and strength of purpose. The Government has drifted into an almost untenable position. It is being defied daily by the extremists, and its courts are being brought into contempt. In the meanwhile, the Free State—which is neither imperial fish nor republican fowl, but a kind of half-baked, socialist red herring—is being beggared by the toll of economic war. The extremists believe that "victory" can be achieved by the destruction of British beer; Mr. de Valera seems to take the view that his alliance with Labour, with its threatened crop of fresh taxation, will bring Britain to her knees. General O'Duffy and his followers contend that the only way to win the war is to stop it. There is no doubt where wisdom lies; but, until a general election is declared, the Free State must resign herself to a period of enhanced suffering. The Government seems to be at sixes and sevens. It is clinging desperately to office in the vague hope that some deus ex machina may release it from its growing embarrassments. In some eight months of power it has achieved nothing but a chaotic medley of futile policies. The people are paying dearly for Mr. de Valera, and the end is not yet.

Credits for Russia.

We commented recently on the new political intimacy between France and Russia, which has been brought into existence by their common distrust of National-Socialist Germany. The political alliance, as it seems, will be reinforced shortly by a new commercial treaty and by an expansion of mutual trade. Ever since Herr Hitler came into power, with his anti-Communist programme, the sympathies of Russia, which previously had lain with Germany, have swerved to her enemies; and this change of heart is reflected in her growing disinclination to buy goods from Germany. France is resolved to fill the breach thus created in the Russian market; and Russia, who is exceedingly glad to trade with the outside world, has accepted her overtures with gratification. The French Ambassador to Moscow—M. Charles Alphand, who was formerly Minister to the Irish Free State —is in constant communication with M. Litvinoff, and there is little doubt that the treaty will be arranged. Its conclusion will be a very important event for Russia, who is in sore need of foreign credits, and does not obtain them normally without trouble. France possesses a huge supply of idle money, and of late she has shown an increasing readiness to trust some of it to the Russians. They now receive twelve months' average credits in France, whereas last year the average duration was six months; where purchases of heavy machinery are concerned, the credit not infrequently is for eighteen to twenty-three months. Last May Russian bills were discounted in Paris at the rate of 32 per cent.; they now bear only 16 per cent. Two reasons are ascribed for the changed attitude of French financiers towards Russia. In the first place, they believe that closer relations—particularly a commercial treaty—will induce the Soviet Government to honour some of the debts, contracted under the Tsarist régime, which Communist Russia has repudiated. These debts amount to something like £650,000,000; and while Moscow rejects all liability for them, she is generally ready to offer a measure of compensation to French bondholders who help her with credits. The matter certainly has entered into Franco-Russian trade negotiations, and may occupy a clause in the new treaty. In the second place, France has been hurt severely by England's tariff policy, and a new outlet for her goods is essential. She hopes by means of the treaty to redress the balance of trade, which hitherto has been heavily in Russia's favour. In exchange for a considerably larger share of the Russian market, therefore, she probably will grant "most favoured nation" treatment to Russia, and credits will be forthcoming in new abundance. The progress of the negotiations will be watched with interest; for a Franco-Russian entente might create fresh difficulties for Europe.

Pride and Progress.

A great tradition may be not only an honour, but, in some circumstances, an embarrassment. To-day Rome is being torn between two loyalties—one to her present needs and the other to her ancient glories. Under Signor Mussolini's vigorous rule Italy's cities are growing apace, and their people demand all the conveniences of modern civilisation. In the three largest cities—Rome, Milan and Naples—the traffic problem has become acute. Many of their older streets are dangerously narrow for the impetuous motor omnibus; they are congested at all hours of the day, and the tramway traffic is slow and noisy. London and Paris have found relief from such problems in the underground railway, and now Milan, an industrial city, has decided to follow their example. The Milan underground will give work to thousands of labourers for the next four years. It will run as far as Pavia—where "all was lost save honour"—and its promoters expect a traffic of nine million passengers a mile in the first year. A similar railway would confer enormous advantages on Rome, whose progressive citizens hate to be beaten by Milan; but there is a weighty, and, perhaps, insuperable, obstacle to their ambition. All Rome, below as on the surface, is sacred ground. She is the eternal city by reason not only of her visible monuments, but of her hidden treasures. Her soil is packed with relics of imperial grandeur, and her archæologists are resolved that the rude axe, with heavéd stroke, never shall disturb them. Railway tunnels, the scholars plead, would desecrate the classic scene, might break the repose of some buried Cæsar, sic melius situm, and might undermine the foundations of many historic buildings. So the modern Roman must stick to Shanks's mare or to his clanking tramway, consoling himself with the thought that noblesse oblige.

French Broadcasting.

Hitherto the most elaborate of Europe's State-controlled broadcasting systems has been that which is administered by the British Broadcasting Corporation. Now France intends to have a "B.B.C." of her own. The first important step towards the creation of the most powerful wireless system in Europe will be taken next November, when the station Radio-Paris, which at present is a private company, will come under national control, and will have its strength increased from 75 kilowatts to 150 kilowatts. Already the State owns P.T.T. Paris, whose power will be increased from eight to 120 kilowatts; and it proposes to acquire the Eiffel Tower Station. In addition, twelve powerful regional stations throughout the country will be included in the system, with strengths varying between 60 and 120 kilowatts. The scheme, it is calculated, will cost about £10,000,000, and this sum will be found by means of a newly introduced tax on wireless apparatus. We wonder when a lull will occur in this multiplication of wireless programmes. There are now so many stations that periodical conferences must be held to devise means whereby order may be restored in the ether. If, at present, a man can obtain some scores of programmes by the turn of a knob, the time seems to be coming when he will not get any station at all, because every station will be "jammed" by another. Broadcasting, in our view, will be a more satisfactory and more useful thing when this frenzy of station-building has cooled.

DISARMAMENT TALKS.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

In view of the arrival this evening in Paris of Mr. Anthony Eden, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and Mr. Cadogan, of the Foreign Office, the Press to-day devotes much space to restating the fundamentals of the French views on the Disarmament Conference. These are:—

1. No re-armament of Germany.
2. Universal and international control of armaments.
3. A period of five years during which France would wait for proof that Germany was keeping to her word, and during which she would not herself decrease her present armaments.

Every shade of opinion is united in regarding it as folly to disarm without proof of the German Government's faith, in view of the daily disquieting reports from that country.

Mr. Eden is credited here with the hope of persuading France to "a little disarmament on account" as a gesture towards Germany, but if such is his intention he will find France adamant on the question of principle, but it is possible that the length of the probationary period may be subject to French concessions.

The French and British Ministers meet to-morrow at the Quai d'Orsay at 11 a.m. The conversations, barring the unforeseen, are not expected to last more than two days.

It is understood in the French Press that Mr. Eden and Mr. Cadogan will go on to Rome from Paris. Reuter is informed that this is very unlikely, as, according to present plans, they expect to return to London as soon as the Paris talks are finished.

HURRICANE HAVOC.

BIG DEATH ROLL IN MEXICO.

EIGHTY DROWNED IN DAM BURST.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

THE hurricane which late last night lashed the Gulf of Mexico coast, and then swept round in a gigantic semicircle to continue its work of havoc along North America's Atlantic seaboard, still is ravaging coastal cities of the United States.

In New England torrential storms whipped the rivers over their banks, flooding railway tracks and roadways. The liner Bekwith, which was yesterday in difficulties at the entrance to Delaware Bay, has now been brought to safety, together with all on board. On the other hand, more than a million dollars' (£200,000) worth of damage is reported from Newbern, North Carolina, which experienced the highest tides on record.

A "marathon" dance contest was taking place at Peterboro', South Jersey, when the competitors suddenly found the water inundating the floor. A moment later the force of the gale carried them onwards over the water with their improvised platform.

At Oriental, North Carolina, wind played one of its biggest pranks—blowing a church completely round on its axis, so that the back door is now at the front.

Gale warnings have been received from Virginia Capes, Boston. The hurricane wreaked the greatest havoc at Wilkes-barre, Pennsylvania, where inundation is catastrophic. Here 8,000 miners had to run for their lives out of a flooded mine, one of them being drowned. Five, who were trapped by the raging waters, were rescued.

It is impossible to assess the exact extent of the damage to property, and loss of life, as communications have broken down.

TOLL OF DAM BURST.

MEXICO CITY, Sunday.

Over ninety persons are reported to have been killed by the hurricane which swept over the Mexican coast yesterday, leaving a trail of havoc behind it. A further eighty to a hundred were drowned when the Santiago river burst its dam at San Luis Postosi, trapping the inhabitants in their homes.

The mail steamer, El Golfo, sank as it was making for Tuxpam from Tampico, with twenty-eight passengers on board. Both passengers and crew were saved, but only after a terrible panic, in which some of them are said to have attempted to commit suicide with revolvers.

More than 150 persons were injured in the Tampico suburb of Lapentilla, where the River Panuco became a raging torrent. Eight others were drowned when trying to cross the Panuco in skiffs at the height of the storm.

Tampico is now completely isolated, all communications having been cut off.

Two tugs also sank at their moorings. Fortunately their crews were ashore, but four watchmen who were on board were drowned.

At Miramar (Valparaiso), where the pleasure beach was completely destroyed, several freight boats and fishing smacks foundered.

STEAMER ADRIFT.

NORFOLK (VIRGINIA), Saturday.

The Export Lines steamer, Exporter, has sent out a wireless message reporting herself adrift in Chesapeake Bay. She lost her anchors on the high seas. She has forty souls aboard.

High seas and floods are reported throughout the South Atlantic seaboard. Millions of dollars' worth of damage has been done by the hundred-mile-an-hour hurricane.

STRIKE THREAT TO CITY'S FOOD SUPPLIES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday.

The food supply of this city is reported to be threatened by one of the most complete general strikes in the city's history. Five thousand lorry drivers and carriers are out, holding up about $100,000,000 (£20,000,000) worth of goods, half of which are perishable.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—A depression off North-West Ireland is moving north-north-east. Weather will be unsettled.

Ireland, all Districts.—Fresh or strong south-west wind, moderating somewhat later; showery; some bright intervals; moderate temperature.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Fresh south-west wind, moderating; showers and bright intervals; sea rather rough, moderating somewhat.

THE PRICE OF OATS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I understand that Irish farmers have too much oats on hands. Thus the price is very low. In order to remedy this, would it not be possible to fix the price for two years, and to control the acreage sown next year, taking into consideration stocks on hands and ascertained demand? In this way the harmful results on the market of unusually large supplies can be met; and then any resultant hardships caused by the remedy, such as unemployment, could be foreseen and alleviation could be attempted.

I think that, if this plan were adopted, it would be seen that the remedy, while it is not perfect, has fewer and smaller flaws than others.—Yours, etc.,

LONDON LETTER.

CONVERSATIONS IN PARIS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

The disarmament conversations, which will open in Paris to-morrow between members of the French Government and Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will deal with the programme to be submitted to the Disarmament Conference when it meets next week. The French are anxious to prepare a programme, or something which may form a basis for discussion, and that may prove acceptable to Great Britain, Italy, and the United States. France is very uneasy about German armaments, and it is thought possible that she will suggest a mission of inquiry to discover whether Germany is arming or not; but, in present circumstances, it is most improbable that such a proposal can be accepted. Germany certainly would refuse permission, and it would be impossible to disregard her refusal. The conversations are likely to continue for some days. Next Friday the Disarmament Conference will meet at Geneva, and Sir John Simon will be present on behalf of Great Britain.

Admiral Evans's Decision.

The carefully-phrased intimation from the Colonial Office that Chief Tshekedi has been suspended during His Majesty's pleasure, and has not been deposed, is regarded here as an indication that there may be a reconsideration of his case by the authorities at home. At the same time, Admiral Evans's decision is admitted to be absolutely just and proper; for it would be impossible to pass over the thrashing of a white man without taking steps to render the repetition of such a course improbable. The Admiral's full report will not be received for some days, but, when it arrives, it will be considered most carefully by Mr. J. H. Thomas and his advisers. Admiral Evans's decision is of far greater importance than appears at first sight, since it involves questions of principle, with particular application to the present native situation in South Africa. It is stated to-day that Tshekedi may come to London himself to present his case at the Dominions Office.

Japanese Cotton.

The Japanese cotton industry delegates, who are now in England to discuss international cotton problems with Lancashire representatives, will be given an opportunity to study British commercial conditions generally. These delegates have had an informal meeting in London with the Lancashire representatives, but a full conference will not be held, as it is stated at the offices of the Japanese Commercial Councillor, until the conversations now taking place at Simla between English, Japanese and Indian textile industrialists have been concluded. It is not expected that they will end before the close of November.

Mr. Churchill on India.

Mr. Winston Churchill's claims to broadcast his views on the proposed new Constitution for India have been admitted at last by the British Broadcasting Corporation, with the reservation that the broadcast must not be given until the Committee dealing with the White Paper has concluded its labours and has issued its report. Recently the B.B.C. arranged a series of talks on political matters by party leaders, but the subject of India was not permitted. It is not improbable, once the Committee has reported, that there will be a series of broadcast speeches dealing with their work and its results.

The Dollar.

A definite announcement will be made during the next month on the immediate monetary policy of the United States, which will define within certain limits the immediate status of the dollar, and, possibly, will indicate the levels between which it will be allowed to fluctuate. The announcement also may reveal the Government's intentions regarding actual monetary inflation, and may give the public a clearer understanding of what it may expect in the way of price changes. The present situation is not likely to suffer much alteration from this declaration of monetary aims, and it is regarded as unlikely that any permanent monetary policy will be evolved within thirty days; but some pointers may be afforded to business men. The United States' Treasury is opposed to any inflation until the national recovery plan has made greater progress, but the refusal of the White House authorities to discuss monetary questions in face of increasing sentiment among members of Congress in favour of inflation has resulted in persistent demands from bankers and business leaders for a definition of the policy.

Irish Exhibits at Islington.

The 37th International Grocers' Exhibition opened at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, yesterday. The most notable feature, distinguishing the show from those of other years, is the enormous display of British bacon and hams—an indication of the strong effort which is being made to compete with the foreign imported bacon. On the Irish Free State stand, which has been arranged by the High Commissioner, Mr. J. W. Dulanty, is a very good display of the bacon, hams, tinned hams and lard of three of the most enterprising areas in the Irish Free State. There is, in addition, a very fine display of butter, tinned milk, cream and dried milk, while a mass display of eggs makes a most attractive show. Other articles on the stand include whiskey, Carrageen moss, vinegar and honey, while Irish "tourism" also is well to the fore.

Alcohol from Beet.

Alcohol, distilled from beet, is now being used by a great number of French motorists as a means to help the farmers. The law in France provides for the use of twelve per cent. of industrial alcohol in ordinary petrol, and this law, which came into operation early this summer, has prevented hundreds of tons of beet-roots from being left to rot, and has turned them, instead, into a source of profit for the grower. Certain brands of petrol imported into France from this country and America are not compelled to use any alcohol, but the tax is so high on these brands that only the wealthy buy them, so that the beet addition has become very popular.

Tinned Beer.

Beer-drinkers in the United States soon will get supplies put up in containers made of tin-plate, instead of glass. These containers, which have been put on the market by a canning firm, will enable brewers to save on freightage charges, since the rate on glass bottles is much higher than that on cans, and the rate for returning empty bottles is almost as high as that for the outward journey. One advantage of the containers is that they cannot be re-filled, and so the return of empties will be abolished. Tinned beer is something of an innovation, and there will be much speculation whether it is satisfactory.

THE KING AND QUEEN.

SERVICE AT CRATHIE CHURCH.

The King and Queen attended Service at Crathie yesterday, being accompanied in their drive to the church by Prince George, Princess Helena Victoria and Lady Cynthia Colville were in another carriage.

Lord Dawson of Penn was among those who attended the Service.

The delightful autumn day had attracted a great number of visitors, and the Royal party returned from the church to Balmoral through an avenue of traffic.

"UNITED IRELAND" LAUNCHED.

GREAT MEETING IN COUNTY TIPPERARY.

MR. COSGRAVE AND THE ECONOMIC WAR.

STRONG DENUNCIATION OF THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY.

THE campaign of the new United Ireland Movement was launched yesterday at a great meeting in Thurles, County Tipperary, when the leaders of the movement—Mr. Cosgrave, General O'Duffy, Mr. MacDermot and Mr. Dillon—appeared on the same platform.

There was much enthusiasm throughout the day. The streets were spanned with banners, bearing mottoes such as "Fall in all: An Irishman leads United Ireland," and there was an imposing procession, with bands, to the platform, around which were men wearing blue shirts.

When the meeting began Colonel J. Ryan, who presided, read a letter from Dean Ryan, of Cashel, in the course of which he said that, although he was finished with politics, he was heart and soul with the new movement.

General O'Duffy said that when the new party ousted the present Government and came into power, one of their first acts would be to provide £2,000,000 to be lent to farmers, on favourable terms, to enable them to re-stock their lands.

Mr. Cosgrave strongly denounced the continuance of the economic war, which, he said, was being used by the Government to divert attention from their blunders.

NO MERE PARTY MOVEMENT.

General O'Duffy, who was received with loud cheers, said that in coming there publicly to inaugurate that great new movement for national solidarity and national advancement, he wanted to say that he did not regard it as a mere party movement. It was their fervent hope and belief that from the union of three groups who had come together would soon emerge something bigger by far than all or any of them—the union of their sorely divided fellow-citizens and speedy union in one great, independent State of the whole historic Irish nation.

"We have now in power in the Free State," he continued, "a so-called Republican Party, which pays lip-service to an ideal that it is very careful not to implement; a party which promised us profound peace a year and a half ago, and whose way of attaining that peace has been to plunge us into an external quarrel in which we pay our so-called enemies to keep on fighting us; a party which tells us that our export trade in live-stock is finished, and yet taxes us to keep it going; a party which two years ago denounced as corrupt, tyrannical and immoral an Act passed to protect the public safety, after a police officer and an innocent young citizen had been murdered, and which now uses the self-same Act to lodge in prison, as if they were the most dangerous revolutionaries, nine simple farmers whose crime is alleged unwillingness to pay their rates. The head of the Government indulges in language of the most intimidatory kind against the farmers, whom his own policy has deprived of their means of livelihood, and denounces them for the impending failure of the public services, again brought about by his own policy.

HARASSED AND DIVIDED.

"The taxation of the country has been piled up in face of promises to lower it, because our so-called opponents in the so-called 'economic war' must be financed at our expense to continue it. The country is harassed and divided, as seldom before in its history, by a meaningless and unreal political quarrel among our citizens, which is being kept up deliberately in order to distract our attention from the losses we are suffering. All the time we are being led to forget in the heat and bitterness of party conflict the only sane and only realisable objects of any real national endeavour—the reunion in one nation of all Ireland, and the establishment of social solidarity and brotherhood among all our people."

There was, he went on, such a thing in a war as incompetent generalship, and if they could get rid of their Generalissimo and his incompetent General Staff, and stop the waste of their lifeblood and of their best material, that would be the very surest and quickest way to win this war.

NO DICTATORSHIP.

"We stand," said General O'Duffy, "for no dictatorship in Ireland, except the dictatorship of the people of Ireland, and no matter how unjustly or unfairly we believe the law to be administered, we still acknowledge its supremacy, but we reserve our rights as freemen and Irishmen publicly to protest against its maladministration, to demand and secure by every legal and proper means that sound and sane national policies be substituted for bad and destructive ones."

United Ireland, he said, had been brought into being in order to sound above the noise of party conflict, the note of national union. They believed that with a united effort and a common loyalty to an attainable idea they could bring about in no very long time the ending of partition. United Ireland, while determined and prepared to exploit to the full, and for the benefit of all, the natural economic resources of our country, and while attaching every importance to the need of preserving their home markets, both agricultural and industrial, for their producers, was convinced that they could not afford to lose or throw away their export markets for agricultural produce, as was being done by the present Government.

Convinced that the time had gone past, if it ever was there, when the present Government could make an advantageous peace as part of a real policy for victory, they suggested that the troops who had spent so long in the front-line trenches must be relieved. Their farmers for eighteen months had to carry a frightful burden. It was their belief that the time had come when they should, as far as possible, be relieved of that burden.

THE ONLY COURSE OF ACTION.

They thought it was the duty of the Government to suspend, at least for the duration of this dispute, all payments from farmers in rates and land annuities. They were convinced that it was utterly unfair to expect such payments to be made when the resources of their farmers had been reduced to vanishing point. The ambiguities and evasions, as well as the definite partisanship, of the Government had shaken to its foundations the whole edifice of their society. A premium was being put on default by the Government's whole policy. In these circumstances who could fail to sympathise if decent and hard-working citizens felt tempted to take strong measures in order to end an impossible situation?

He would most earnestly impress on all who felt the temptation to remember that there was only one sound course of action in these circumstances; it was to devote the energy, the enthusiasm, the determination that were in danger of being diverted into wrong channels to the urgent task of securing, by means of peaceful constitutional pressure and organisation, that the incompetent Ministry, which was guilty of bad administration, should be speedily and constitutionally removed. Let there be no fear of intimidation, no despairing dread, lest the obstacles be too great to be peacefully surmounted. United Ireland was founded in the belief that the organised pressure along constitutional lines of the Irish people was irresistible.

United Ireland denied that there was any great or far-reaching principle involved in the so-called "economic war."

LOANS FOR FARMERS.

"If the Government can end this war with honour and satisfaction to our people," said General O'Duffy, "we will be the first to applaud. We do not believe that it is now in a position to end it, and we call on our citizens to replace it by a Government better qualified. Once the quarrel is terminated there must ensue a period of intensive reconstruction for our agricultural industry. We propose to take every step necessary to ensure that our farmers can turn to their own profit and that of the nation the new conditions of free export. For that purpose it is our policy to make available, once we are elected to govern the country, a sum of not less than two million pounds, which will be loaned to our farmers on very favourable conditions, in order that they may restock their lands. Other measures of relief will, we are convinced, also be necessary, and we will be ready to take these measures at the proper time.

I can guarantee, at any rate, that our policy will be a real Irish policy, in the carrying out of which no Irish interest will be neglected, and which will secure, as far as humanly possible, that all our citizens will get a fair chance in their own country.

It is tragic to think that those boys who are appearing in the courts, day after day, on charges of smashing up private property, who defy the Government, the police and the courts, who flourish firearms and carry away decent citizens in the darkness of the night and strip them, rob them, and threaten them with death, are only in their teens. Some of them have scarcely reached the use of reason. These boys are led to think that in doing this they are acting patriotically; that they are advancing the cause of Irish freedom; that they are winning the economic war. When there is no respect for the law parental control weakens also, and it is doubtful if these boys will grow up to be good citizens.

MR. DE VALERA WARNED.

President de Valera, he proceeded, had asserted that the new United Ireland Party was to be used as a cloak of legality on the illegal activities of the organisations which had combined to form it. There was, and would be, nothing illegal about any of the activities of United Ireland. The Blue Shirts would go on as a perfectly constitutional and unarmed part of their movement. He took the opportunity of warning the President of the Executive Council that his powers did not extend to the making unlawful by his own fist of things lawful and permissible in themselves, and that if he attempted by any perversion of the law, or by any trick to get rid of a law-abiding movement because he thought it a political danger to the success of his party at the polls, he was entering on a course which would bring the political existence of his Government to a sharp and speedy end.

General O'Duffy also stated, in the course of his speech, that those in charge of that meeting had been approached on the previous night and informed that no Blue Shirts would be allowed on the platform. He wanted to say to that that the Blue Shirt was legal, would remain legal, and would be worn as long as Ireland lived.

RESCUING THE COUNTRY.

THE IRISH PEOPLE'S DESIRE.

Mr. Cosgrave, who was loudly cheered, said that he was glad to be on that platform with other Irishmen, who aimed at a united effort to rescue the people of that country from the political and economic mess into which the sham patriotism and the incompetency of their present governors had brought them. Government speech-makers were apparently acting upon the definite plan of confusing the issue and preventing voters from asking awkward questions, and from seeing things precisely as they are on the political side.

"What is our position?" he asked. "We belong to a people who for centuries were oppressed, who were many times conquered, but never gave in, and who never abandoned their desire to rid themselves of foreign control. What have been the aspirations of the Irish people, expressed not only in speeches in Grattan's Parliament, but in countless poems and stories all through the centuries? The desire of the plain people of this country has always been for the control of Irish affairs by Irishmen, for an Irish system of law, for an Irish system of land tenure, for freedom of development for Irish trade for Irish people, and an Irish social and spiritual life which give prominence to those things which the Irish loved, and in which they found the English settlers had no interest. Never at any time were our people impressed with doctrines about forms of government.

The men who had the courage to sign the Treaty and to carry it through when a majority of the Dail voted for it, won for Irishmen the first solid victory in the political sense that had ever been gained, and brought into existence the first Irish State of modern times. That victory followed upon, and could not have been won without certain progress made by other leaders and by previous generations with regard to Catholic Emancipation, ownership of land and facilities for education, more especially for secondary and university education. In 1922 the stage was set for progress in the nation in the material and in the cultural sense, but certain people, largely for personal motives, attempted to wreck the settlement. The wreckers failed to destroy the State, but they did succeed in giving comfort to the enemies of Ireland, and in postponing that unity of which there were high hopes upon the signing of the Treaty. No paid agents of Britain ever did such disservice to Ireland as the men who smashed the group which had led the national advance from 1916 onwards.

The very same people who failed to wreck this State eleven years ago are engaged today in preventing social and national progress in this country, and their capacity is entirely towards wrecking and disturbance. They have no political ideals set clearly before the people, no plan and no capacity for construction. The leader of the Governmenut has admitted that the progress made under the Treaty was greater than ever he could have believed. Is there something wrong with it even yet, and if there is, why cannot the Government remedy these defects as their predecessors remedied them by conference and agreement? Are we to be committed to eternal strife?

THE ECONOMIC SIDE.

So much for the political end. On the economic side great harm has been done by the Government, but the greatest harm they have done is the unsettlement of our people, the substitution of catch-crys and war drums for real Irish nationalism and solid constructive efforts. They are waging an economic war, but we have never been told what the victory is at which we are aiming and what it is that prevents us from achieving that victory. The economic war is not being ended because it is the greatest political asset in the possession of this Government. The tariff conflict is not being ended because no plan was thought out to meet it. The high tariffs were announced to Ministers during a dance they attended in a Dublin hotel much in the same way as Ministers were collected from a dance they were attending to put the Safety Act into operation. Various economic and political sensations were staged regularly to divert public attention from this calamity for Irish agriculture. In turn, the tariff conflict is employed to enable the Government to hide from the people their incapacity to manage the country's political and economic affairs. While the war continues so long will Fianna Fail leaders be enabled to substitute patriotic speeches and futile abuse of their political opponents for calm and intelligent contributions towards the facing of our pressing problems.

Citizens in the County Dublin recently received a request for funds from the Fianna Fail Party to assist that party in their work of developing industry and re-organising agriculture. Re-organising agriculture is a beautiful phrase to cover up the destruction of the most profitable branch of our agricultural industry, to cover up the system which makes Irish consumers actually pay in taxation in order that English consumers may have the Irish products cheaper than we can buy them here. You all know the story of the efforts that are being made to capture a market which Ministers sometimes tell us does not exist, sometimes pretend to despise, and sometimes say can be replaced by better markets, which later turn out to be non-existent. But the effects of this policy upon industrial development must be apparent to every worker, and to every unemployed man in our towns and cities. There can be no development of a home market for industrial products, which would enable proper wages to be paid and proper conditions to be observed, unless agriculture flourishes. Nothing that the Government is doing, nothing that any Government could do to develop industry could possibly succeed if farming is unprofitable. Tariff policy elsewhere prevents us from exporting at a profit our manufactured articles. Our only hope, therefore, is a balanced policy for the development of agriculture and industry. At the same time it must be clear to everybody, even to Mr. Lemass, that one part of the present Government's policy is ruining whatever there may be of good in the other part.

NEW PARTY'S POLICY.

This party, said Mr Cosgrave, stands, as you have been told to-day, for re-opening our external market, for entering into competition with other countries—republics, kingdoms and nations—of the British Commonwealth for a part of the British market which these nations are not ashamed to take. There is nothing un-Irish, nothing shameful, nothing demeaning in attempting to sell our goods to a solvent customer; and, if we cannot sell our agricultural produce, we can have no industrial progress, and no cultural produce either. If there is to be a development of real Irish culture in any sense of the word these developments can only take place when a reasonable measure of comfort has been given to our people, and that measure of comfort cannot be had for our people in town or country until the avenues of trade are opened up. Last year the Government sued defaulting annuitants and got decress with costs against them. Subsequently the Government paid those costs and funded the annuities, giving the defaulters fifty years to pay. The people who paid their annuities last year are minus the amount they paid. The defaulters, many of them followers of the Fianna Fail Party, have had their payments funded. In other words, the Government got the money from every man who made sacrifices to pay. They spent that money last year, or they have it to spend this year, on their wild-cat schemes. Some of that money taken from hard-pressed homes of farmers may find its way under recent legislation about Dail Bonds into the coffers of the Government's political organ.

THE RATES.

This year social services must be maintained, rates ought to be paid, but are we not entitled to ask whether honest men this year are to stint their families, dismiss their labourers or reduce their wages, to find later on that, on pressure from the Fianna Fail clubs, those who did not pay have been forgiven? And what are the rates which we are now asked to pay? In many cases they have been struck under compulsion, applied by the Minister for Local Government. They are not the rates that the County Councils desired to strike; they are abnormally high because of the Minister's delay in telling the County Councils: "I am going to give you nearly half a million pounds less than I promised you, and less than you thought you were going to get," and they are high, because the Government's policy has deprived of work and placed upon poor relief a great many persons who were in employment two years ago. The Government know how to be lenient; they know how to encourage disobedience to the law, but they are stern with the farmer who cannot pay his rates. They have struck the first blow in a civil war against farmers from the neighbourhood of County Waterford, who are going to be brought before the Military Tribunal, and not one word of protest has been issued against this treatment of farmers by people who were loud in their advocacy of democratic methods and of civil justice for armed enemies of public order.

I will not follow the lead of the Government in discussing a case which is going to come before a Court, but nothing more disgraceful ever occurred in Irish politics than the attempt made last Sunday to saddle upon decent farmers responsibility for the breakdown of local finances, which the Government policy is doing so much to bring about. The record of the farming community for the payment of annuities and rates over the last ten years is one of which any people might be proud. Present Ministers have been head and front of an illegal and dishonest movement to smash the fruits of victory from the Irish people. They are now enjoying the salaries and emoluments of office in the State which they swore never to acknowledge, and the power of patronage for their friends and relatives, in spite of incitements and promises from politicians and threats from gunmen. Farmers have never conspired to avoid their just and legal obligations. It is the main policy of the Government, which has now reduced the

MR. DE VALERA IN MACROOM.

REFERENCE TO NEW MOVEMENT.

THE AGREEMENT WITH LABOUR.

SURE OF SUCCESS AS IN THE PAST.

FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVE.

MACROOM, Sunday.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA spoke at an Aeridheacht here to-day, and got an enthusiastic reception from a crowd of about one thousand people.

He was met outside the town by about 200 horsemen and escorted into the town. Fifty of the horses were grey; fifty bay. The Aeridheacht programme was over when he arrived.

President de Valera, who spoke for the most part in a continuous downpour of rain, said that his appeal to the people was to stand together in the crisis, and it was evident that there was no sign of surrender among the people. At Thurles that day the people who were opposed to their policy were coming together, trying to build up a new movement, not to help the country to win the fight, but to mass the forces politically opposed to the Government together, in the hope that the pressure that was being brought to bear on the people would be successful, that the people would be broken, and that the policies which they had advocated in the past might be accepted by a broken people.

President de Valera declared that this new onslaught would not be carried on successfully, and said he was certain that if they could get the same unanimity of opinion, the same determination as they had in the fight against Conscription, the people would not be beaten in the economic war, and the attack that was being made on them now would not have been made. The real reason the attack was being made was that the attackers hoped that the people would be so demoralised that they would be divided and beaten.

PLIGHT OF FARMERS.

"This meeting in Thurles to-day," the President added, "is being organised so that these people can stand in the nation's path. I think we can tell them from here, and from the Irish people, 'Fág an bealach.'" (Applause.) "They had been told," he said, "that the plight of the farmers was due to the economic war, but agriculturists in the Six Counties and in England were getting low prices for their produce. An extra burden had been placed on the Irish farmer by the British tariffs, but they were not the main source of the depression."

The President went on to quote figures to show that in 1931, before his Government took office, a gift of five and a quarter millions a year was being paid to Britain. During the same year the farmers exported fat cattle value £5,259,000—only £9,000 more than the tribute—so that they only got eightpence a head for their cattle.

His Government, he said, had kept the land annuity money at home because they were satisfied it was not due. Britain was able to injure them to the extent that they would recover the money by taxing the products, but that country was not injuring them any more to-day than it did in the past—the big difference being that it was seen more clearly to-day.

NO HATRED OF ENGLAND.

He declared that he had no special hatred of England, but he was against the tyranny that was being used against the Irish people. He repeated that their claims were good, and if they stood together they were as sure of success as they were in the conscription fight.

This was a time for unity, but for unity of the real sort, not the sort of unity they were talking about in Thurles that day, but unity around the elected Government of the people. The Government had chosen the ground on which the fight for independence would take place, and would not be shifted. Would Mr. MacDermot, he asked, stand by them if a republic was proclaimed; and would other people in the same new party do as they did before—run away from it? To those people who said they were not moving fast enough in the direction of a republic he said the present Government had selected its ground and was selecting its pace, and would not go a bit faster than the speed it thought it could stick and win at.

AGREEMENT WITH LABOUR.

President de Valera said that, as the people could see from that day's Sunday newspapers, they had entered into an agreement with the Labour Party, so that there was no fear of defeat while they carried out their programme, working in understanding with the Labour Party.

Mr. Hugo Flinn, T.D., and Mr. Hales, T.D., also addressed the meeting.

Mr. de Valera's speech at Cork on Saturday is reported on another page.

TAX ON CATTLE EXPORTS.

FRONT TEETH TO DECIDE.

The Customs authorities of the Free State and Great Britain have come to an arrangement by which the age of Irish cattle imported at Liverpool and elsewhere in Great Britain shall be determined by their front teeth instead of their back teeth, for the purposes of fixing the amount of tariff duty to be paid per animal. Complaints have been made that over-payments were exacted by the Customs on the other side, owing to a wrong method of assessment. Hitherto the Customs officials have been fixing the amount payable on the age of animals as disclosed by the molar or back teeth, but in future it has been arranged that the assessment shall be made by the incisor or front teeth.

An arrangement has been made, or is contemplated, by which all animals examined will have the duty fixed before being shipped from the Free State. The new arrangement means a reduction from £6 to £4 in the duty on two-teeth cattle, and that the duty of £6 would apply only in the case of cattle with full mouths. A considerable saving to exporters will result by the new arrangement.

HUNGER-STRIKE IN MOUNTJOY JAIL.

POLITICAL TREATMENT DEMANDED.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Five men who were sentenced at the Dublin District Court on Friday, when they were charged with raids on Dublin public-houses, have gone on hunger-strike in Mountjoy Prison, following a demand on their part for treatment as political prisoners.

A number of their relatives called at the house of Mr. Ruttledge, the Free State Minister for Justice, at Clyde road yesterday, and asked for an interview with the Minister. They were informed, however, that the Minister was out, and they were turned away by the Guards.

CONCESSION TO LABOUR.

MR. NORTON MAKES IT CLEAR.

PROMISES OF NEW LEGISLATION.

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

STRIPPED of their rhetorical trimmings, the public pronouncements by President de Valera and Mr. Norton during the last two days on the conversations that have taken place between their parties bear out what I indicated on Saturday—that no binding alliance has been effected, although Labour and Fianna Fail will endeavour to work in harmony in order to stave off the general election which neither wants.

Circumstances have forced the President to hold out a series of baits to restrain the Labour Party if it should be tempted in the near future to throw the Government out. He told the Labour representatives who met him last week that in respect of various measures of social legislation which were promised by his Government long ago the pledges are soon to be fulfilled.

One of the most interesting disclosures as to the negotiations was that the Government have promised to consult Labour, at their fortnightly inter-party meetings, on all matters of projected legislation. Mr. de Valera made only a vague reference to this, but it was brought out clearly by Mr. Norton, who explained that it was "in order that our views may be embodied."

KEEPING LABOUR ON FRIENDLY TERMS.

Agreeing to consultation is, of course, not quite the same thing on the Government's part as promising that whatever views are put forward shall be accepted. Nevertheless, it is considered in political circles generally that the concession indicates the alarm which the Government feels as to the prospect of defeat by the new party. There is no doubt that they are prepared to go to great lengths to keep Labour on friendly terms.

As to the promised legislation, for which Mr. MacEntee and Mr. Geoghegan, the ex-Minister for Justice, were attaching entire credit to the Government in their speeches yesterday, the two which will present the Government with most difficulty are those relating to widows' and orphans' pensions and to special financial assistance for unemployed persons who have exhausted their insurance benefit. Both of these will involve the raising of large sums of money.

Otherwise the Government does not appear to be committed financially. "Wage-slashing," which was regarded by Labour as the most obnoxious of all the Fianna Fail Governmental sins, is not the subject of any promise, either in respect of the 24s. a week road workers or the underpaid postmen, other than that the matter will be discussed at the forthcoming consultations. Is is worthy of note, too, that no reference was made by Mr. Norton or Mr. de Valera to the recent salary "cuts" effected by the Government.

MAINTENANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED.

The bill to provide maintenance for the unemployed is to be the first measure introduced by the Government next session, according to Mr. MacEntee. It will be recalled that the Government agreed to this principle when it was put up to them, some time before the last general election, by Mr. Morrissey, who is now a member of the Executive of the United Ireland Party. Widows' and orphans' pensions, which were the subject of one of the pledges which helped the Government to power, are to be provided for in next year's Budget.

These measures would undoubtedly be an excellent prelude to an appeal to the country by Fianna Fail. As they will be money bills, the Senate has not to be considered, and in the possible event of Mr. de Valera finding it necessary to try his chances at the polls just before the next Budget is due, his chances would be considerably enhanced if the Unemployment Relief Bill were passed and the Pensions Bill in prospect.

ONCE JILTED.

Although many of the Labour rank and file, after having been once jilted by Mr. de Valera, are not anxious to permit him to coquet with them again, the majority of the leaders, who are sympathetic to Fianna Fail, regard the new developments with pleasure. But for restraint from their followers, they would have led the party into much closer union with the Government.

Perhaps, the outstanding declaration in the political speeches during the week's end, however, was not in reference to the Fianna Fail-Labour position, but Mr. de Valera's hint as to his attitude to the United Ireland Party. "We will not permit a military movement to develop under the cover of party politics," he declared at Cork.

General O'Duffy's reply to this, in a speech in which he disowned any dictatorial projects, was to the effect that suppression of the new party would result in the Government's downfall. Such a move certainly would create a situation undreamed of in this country until a few months ago, and one which would not be to the advantage of the Labour Party.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

PREMIER TO CONSULT LEAGUE EXPERTS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Sunday.

Mr. Macdonald, President of the World Monetary and Economic Conference, having decided upon an immediate examination of the steps to be taken in carrying forward the work of the Conference, Mr. Alexander Loveday, director of the financial section of the League Secretariat, and M. Stoppani, director of the economic relations section, left Geneva yesterday for London for a conference with Mr. Macdonald at his request.

This meeting will be in accordance with the decision of the Conference at its adjournment on July 27. The Conference then authorised Mr. Macdonald, its Bureau and the Executive Committee of the Bureau to take any steps which might be considered useful, and in particular to convene any one of the Committees or representatives of countries specially interested in any particular problem.

FRONTIER OPERATIONS.

R.A.F. MACHINES IN ACTION

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

SIMLA, Sunday.

Troops from the Nowshera Brigade, moving out to cover the construction of a picket post, were opposed yesterday by small parties of tribesmen, who sniped the whole day, and wounded four Indian soldiers. R.A.F. machines did useful service by co-operative air action, especially during the troops return to camp.

The Jirga began on Wednesday continues with daily meetings, and the latest report indicates that the majority of the upper Mohmands now wish to join in reaching a settlement.

There were no fewer than 52 cases against cyclists for breaches of the Lighting of Vehicles Act at last Gorey District Court, and fines up to 5s. were imposed by Justice Fahy.

ONE HUNDRED INJURED.

SMOKE BOMBS AT MEETING.

NAZIS ATTACKED BY ANGRY CROWD.

MOUNTED POLICE IN ACTION IN AUSTRIA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GRAZ (AUSTRIA), Sunday.

A PARTY of about two hundred Nazis tried to break up the meeting of Herr Winkler's "National Front" here to-day. They threw about twelve smoke bombs into the crowd, and ten persons, including several women, are suffering from burns. Eight are in hospital. Over one hundred persons were injured.

Ten Nazis were seized by the furious crowd and almost lynched before the police rescued them and placed them under arrest. One hundred arrests have been made.

Attention was first drawn to the Nazi group of about two hundred men when they raised their hands in the Hitler salute as the band played the Austrian National Anthem—which has the same tune as "Deutschland uber Alles." To this the Nazis sang the words of "Deutschland uber Alles." Then came the crackling of many smoke bombs. Smoke arose from several different points simultaneously. The crowd was thrown into a panic. Mounted police charged and scattered the Nazi group.

In his speech Herr Winkler attacked the Nazi Prince Starhemberg and the Heimwehr. Prince Starhemberg is the leader of the Heimwehr, an Austrian Fascist organisation.

"We are not here," he said, "in order to enthrone exported Fascism."

He announced that his party was solid behind Chancellor Dollfuss.

If these events may be regarded as typical, the suggestion that Herr Winkler's party might be a bridge to the Nazis has proved inaccurate.

Professor Steidle, broadcasting from Kufstein to-day to the Tyrolese Heimwehr, announced that all who would not follow their cause must be removed.

THE DEMONSTRATION.

To-day's demonstration was to celebrate the birth of the newly-formed "National Guild Front," which is led by Herr Winkler, the Vice-Chancellor. The Nazis had prepared for the demonstration by leaflets which were distributed yesterday.

Differences of opinion in the Austrian Cabinet were revealed in Herr Winkler's speech to-day. Professor Steidle, the Heimwehr leader, had referred to these differences in a broadcast earlier in the day. Herr Winkler declared that the "National Guild Front" was ready for co-operation with Dr. Dollfuss's "Patriotic Front," but he declined to agree to a fusion on the two fronts.

At a Press Conference this afternoon Herr Winkler virtually threatened that he would hand in his resignation.

"We reject Fascism in any form," he declared. "The recent activities of the Heimwehr have been insupportable. A position has been reached where the Chancellor must make up his mind which course he is taking."

In some quarters, however, it is thought that too much significance should not be attached to the threat of resignation.

FROM "THE TIMES."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

NATIONALISM AND THE AIR.

The Times observes in a leading article to-day: When the air service to India is extended, as it will be some time next year, to Australia, the first main stage in the development of Imperial air routes will be completed. Tenders for the Australian end of the service are expected to be invited by the Commonwealth Government within the next few days. Immediately after the War the full freedom of the air was advocated by Great Britain and France, but the attitude of certain Powers since then has made it less easy of realisation, and with the jealous preservation of national rights has gone a desire for similar reservation in certain parts of the Empire.

India has insisted on the working of Indian sections of the Imperial route by an Indian compasy. Australia has reserved to itself the right to control that section of the Imperial route between Singapore and the Australian continent.

Pan-American Airways has an exclusive licence from the Danish Government to operate commercial services across Greenland. France has similar exclusive rights in the Azores, and Great Britain would presumably have to reserve rights in Bermuda as a means of striking a bargain with France, should it be decided to use the Azores route. While it remains necessary to bargain for the right to fly, it can only be expected that key points in British control will be reserved.

In the long run, the result may be to open most routes to those nations which have the greatest need of them, but it is evident that aviation, which might have taken the freedom of the seas as its model, is turning more and more to the idea of nationalism and guarded frontiers.

R.A.F. BOMBER CRASHES AT BROOKLANDS.

ONE KILLED, THREE INJURED.

One man was killed, three were injured, and one escaped unhurt when an R.A.F. Vickers Virginia bomber crashed at Brooklands on Saturday.

The machine was landing in the aerodrome when it over-shot the landing field. Tearing along, it broke its way through a fence and went down a six-foot drop into a stony piece of waste land, covered with scrub.

The machine broke in half just behind the cockpits.

The nose was buried in the ground, and the tail hung over as if on a hinge.

It is understood that there were two hundred gallons of petrol in the machine.

The official announcement was as follows:—

Th Air Ministry regrets to announce that Flying-Officer Leslie Morris Few, the pilot of the aircraft, lost his life, and Flight-Lieutenant Walter George Wooliams (second pilot), Flying-Officer William Kent Le May, and 358520 Leading Aircraftman George Donaldson were slightly injured in an accident, which occurred at Weybridge on September 16th to Virginia aircraft No. 500 County of Kent Bomber Squadron.

359831 Leading Aircraftman Leonard George Manning, who was also a passenger, was uninjured.

The destroyer, Cygnet, which is a new vessel on an improved type and carrying a ship's company of about 150, has anchored in the western portion of Berehaven Harbour, Co. Cork.

TENSION GROWS IN CUBA.

PLANS TO SEND TROOPS.

GENERAL STRIKE AT MANZANILLO.

ANTI-AMERICAN PROPAGANDA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

HAVANA, Sunday.

TO-DAY'S developments in the Cuban situation have tended to increase rather than to diminish the general anxiety as to impending events. The growth of anti-American feeling, egged on by Communist propaganda, and the declaration of a general strike at Manzanillo (Oriente Province) are among the most serious symptoms recorded at the week-end.

The Manzanillo strike, which is to begin at six a.m. to-morrow, includes a boycott of North American companies.

Communist demonstrations, applauding the strikes at the Baguanos and Mabay sugar mills, have taken place to-day at Manzanillo. At the Baguanos mills the officials have been imprisoned until they agree to the strikers' demands.

The Mayor of Manzanillo has been forced to resign, and the soldiers are now in control of the town.

Messages from Santiago de Cuba report that placards have been posted up inciting an attack on Woolworth's, whose officials are said to be packing up in readiness to leave.

Communists at Manzanillo also have issued a manifesto attacking the United Stakes authorities in Cuba, and threatening to appropriate North American sugar mills and banks. The manifesto also urges the continuance of the strike until "the cause triumphs."

COMMUNISTS AT WORK.

Meanwhile anti-American propaganda, stimulated by Communists, is increasing. The extremists are complaining that the United States policy of confining the supply of American arms to the established Latin-American Governments only has, for long, had the effect of keeping dictators in power, and it therefore amounts to perpetual intervention.

Reuter's Washington Correspondent has disclosed the preparatory measures that have been taken for the quick despatch of troops to Cuba, if necessary, though the United States is unwilling to intervene if such action can be avoided.

A number of American Marines, without arms, are reported to have gone ashore at Rents (near Santiago de Cuba), where numbers of Americans are concentrated, says a message from Santiago.

HOTEL SIEGE.

The overtures which have been made to the 454 officers loyal to the Cespedes régime, who are still holding out in the National Hotel, have so far proved fruitless, and the Cuban people are anxiously awaiting the result of the conference of political leaders, says Reuter's Havana Correspondent.

In Cuba two opposed trends are making themselves manifest. On the one hand, a demonstration of 8,000 persons paraded the streets of the capital last night in celebration of the recognition of the San Martin Government by Mexico, crying, "Down with Welles" (the American Ambassador), "Down with Yankee Imperialism."

Cuban soldiers were also last night busily engaged in digging a trench outside the Hotel National, where 500 supporters of ex-President de Cespedes, mostly Army officers, are living, in an attempt to reach and cut off the hotel's water supply.

BUSINESS MEN'S ACTION.

The other noticeable trend is seen in the action of representatives of Havana business leaders, who have declared themselves opposed to American intervention, and at the same time condemned the propaganda of enmity against the United States. They have decided to close their doors for twenty-four hours on Tuesday as a protest against "acts of violence by the working classes."

The President of Cuba, Dr. San Martin, has issued statements demanding that order be restored immediately in the interior.

STORM OVER PAPAL NUNCIO'S LETTER.

CZECHOSLOVAK CABINET'S ACTION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PRAGUE, Saturday.

An extraordinary meeting of the Czechoslovak Cabinet was called by the Prime Minister, M. Jan Malypetr, to-day after a consultation with Dr. Benes, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, to discuss the situation arising from a recent letter written by the Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Pietro Ciriaci, to Abbe Hlinka, the leader of the Slovak Popular Party. The Cabinet censured the Nuncio's letter, and decided to request the Vatican to summon the Nuncio to Rome to explain the situation officially. Dr. Benes had a three hours' friendly conversation with the Papal Nuncio earlier to-day.

The Nuncio's letter is considered, among a large section of the public, to represent interference in Czechoslovakian internal affairs, and to be attempting ostentatiously to incite separation from the rest of the populace of the Slovakian section of the community. It has raised vigorous protests, particularly from the non-Catholic Press, who declare that it is offensive to Czechoslovak national honour.

The Nuncio's letter is reported to have expressed satisfaction concerning the relations between the Slovaks and the representative of the Holy See. It is reported to have gone on to say that the Pope, through his representative, had been directly or indirectly insulted in Prague in a manner entirely contrary to the canons of international politeness.

A lorry carrying empty bread hampers, the property of Messrs. Conlan's bakery, Bundoran, was destroyed by fire at Portrason, near Ballyshannon. It is thought that the fire was caused by the fusing of a wire.

THE NEW PARTY'S POLICY.

STATEMENT BY A FORMER MINISTER.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CLAREMORRIS, Sunday.

A VERY enthusiastic reception was given to Mr. FitzGerald-Kenney at Knock yesterday, where he addressed the first meeting of the "United Ireland" to be held in South Mayo.

During the past fortnight, said Mr. Kenney, there have been very considerable changes in the conditions of affairs in the State, because there has come into existence a new political party, the object of which is to unite together into one solid mass all Irishmen of good-will who wish to see this country raised out of the present terrible position in which it is, and to unite all Irishmen who wish to see this country flourish as it should flourish.

Referring to the loss of the British market, Mr. Kenney said that the injury sustained by the loss of that market was reflected upon this State by the present conditions of poverty among the people. The first thing to be done was to get back the English market, without which this country cannot live. No country in the world can live without an external market, and the Irish Free State was no exception.

"The only country that has ever shown itself willing to take our stuff is gone, and our market is destroyed, yet Mr. de Valera thanks God because the Irish people have lost their only market, a most extraordinary position for any man in charge of political affairs to take up."

A CONTRADICTION.

Dealing with the question of rate collection, Mr. Kenney referred to a recent statement by President de Valera in Drogheda to the effect that the policy of the Farmers' Party, which is a branch of the United Ireland movement, was that rates were not to be paid.

"That is not correct," declared Mr. Kenney, "and I want to contradict it here and now. Our policy is that the local government of this country must carry on, and that everybody who can pay rates must pay them. That is our policy, and the only lawful policy for any party to adopt. The non-collection or non-payment of the rates was not due to any political move. In Kerry, the greatest Fianna Fail county in the Free State, the rates are in or about £78,000, and, so far, they have collected something under £4,000, and remember that the people of this county are followers of Mr. de Valera. I want to make it plain, so that it will go forth from this meeting, that every man or woman in the country who can afford to pay their rates should pay them."

A voice—"We cannot afford to pay them."

Touching on the proposed establishment of beet factories, Mr. Kenney said that he did not know whether these factories would be a success or not, but money had been voted for their establishment, and, since the country people were the people who were suffering most, he considered that one of these factories should be established in South Mayo. There was money to be spent, and this money should be spent in the constituency of South Mayo, and beet factories should not be placed in the richer parts of the country. But it must be remembered that, to establish a beet factory, there was going to be a tax of one penny on a pound of sugar—possibly threepence—and, if the people in South Mayo were going to pay threepence tax on the pound of sugar for the establishment of a beet factory, then that beet factory ought to be in South Mayo, and if it was going to be a success, let it be a success there. (Cheers.)

THE LOCAL ELECTIONS.

The forthcoming local elections were referred to by Mr. Kenney, who appealed to every single person, no matter how they voted at a general election, to vote at the County Council election for good, solid men, who would work thoroughly and well in their interests. To supporters of Fianna Fail he would say that not one single person of them could honestly say that the policy of Mr. de Valera had been a success. Every master of a dog or owner of a beast would see that his animals get the things necessary for them, but Mr. de Valera, who was playing a game, with the very lives of the people at stake, was driving them to hunger, want and destitution by his policy. He knew that policy to be wrong, but he would not give it up, because he was vain and obstinate.

Mr. M. Nally, T.D., said the policy of the new party was that until the economic war was settled the rates should be paid from the Central Fund.

Mr. Patrick Lyons presided, and a branch of the new movement was formed.

A GOVERNMENT OF FAILURES.

UNITED IRELAND'S OBJECT.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MARYBOROUGH, Sunday.

Speaking at a United Ireland Convention at Maryborough to-day, Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, T.D., who wore a blue shirt, said that attempts had been made by President de Valera to prostitute his Government and the law of the country, and to sell both the country and the law to an illegal organisation in this country. He had endeavoured to put it about that the A.C.A. was formed for illegal purposes to stir up trouble in the country, and he (Dr. O'Higgins) wanted to give the lie direct to the President.

Having referred to Mr. de Valera's Cork speech, Dr. O'Higgins said that he wanted to make it clear to Mr. de Valera that they would not do as Mr. de Valera did, to ask others to man the first trenches. They would themselves be the first inside the doors of Mountjoy. As the man who founded the organisation, he said that they never departed from their principles.

"Our immediate object," he said, "is to beat the Government that is in power at the moment, to drive de Valera out of power in this country. (Applause.)

"We are not out to do that because he is de Valera, because he is head of a Fianna Fail Government; we are out to drive him out of power because in every phase of political legislation, in every sphere of political activity, he has proved himself and his Government to be a Government of blunders and of failures."

Professor Tierney, T.D.; Mr. J. Fennelly, T.D., and others also spoke.

LIMERICK RATES.

LESS THAN ONE PER CENT. COLLECTED.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Saturday.

A letter was read at the meeting of Limerick County Council to-day from the Minister for Local Government stating that the County Council's bad financial position was entirely due to failure of the rate collection. It was scandalous that though they were within one month of the close of the financial half-year, less than one per cent. of the warrants had been collected. The Council should publicly call on the ratepayers to meet their obligations without delay, in view of the imminent danger of a collapse of the public services.

The Chairman (Mr. J. McCormack) said that he was pleased to see during the week a statement in the Press from a certain political party that payment of rates should not be evaded.

No action was taken on the letter.

FIANNA FAIL AND LABOUR.

THE WORKING AGREEMENT.

WHERE MR. NORTON NAILED HIS FLAG.

THAT the Labour Party has not sacrificed its separate identity or its independence was stressed by Mr. W. Norton in a speech yesterday at the Court-house, Kildare, in which he dealt with the recent discussions with the Government, and also attacked the United Ireland Movement.

"You have all seen from the papers that we have had some negotiations with the Government," Mr. Norton said. "You have noticed also that in these days the Labour Party has many advisors as to the course it should take. If you believe the Irish Times and the Independent, the Labour Party is to be rent in pieces as a result of its discussions during the week. But on everything that meant chalking a decent course for the workers, both of these have been false prophets.

"Both of them said that we would witness a split in the Labour Party on the Oath of Allegiance, but it will ever be a source of pride to me that I brought an undivided party into the Lobby to abolish the hated Oath of Allegiance. They were wrong then in their prophecies, and they are wrong to-day."

THE OPPOSITION PARTIES.

Dealing with the merger of the Opposition parties, he said that the Farmers' Party, as he had forecast when it was formed, had proved to be a mushroom organisation. It had been swallowed by the Cumann na nGaedheal Party, as other Farmers' Parties had been before.

Asking what had produced this merger, he said that it was not because there was agreement on principles. Neither Cumann na nGaedheal nor the so-called Centre Party had any principles, except that of retaining the land for the big ranchers and depressing the standard of living for the plain people.

It was not because of friendship between the leaders of the two parties; for anyone who knew the true position knew that the ranks were torn by jealousy and mistrust.

They had had Mr. Dillon telling the nation that he had no use for the nation's rallying song, and that he would not stand up, as a good Irishman should, when the National Anthem was played. In the same party they had General Mulcahy, who, in other days, urged the nation to march to that rallying song.

"This is the ill-assorted omelette that is going to save Ireland," exclaimed Mr. Norton, "and bring to this nation that measure of political and economic liberty which no other nation in the world has a right to deny to us. I say, definitely and deliberately, that the birth of this merger is just as awkward as the christening was a complete misfit. It has been christened with a name that ought to be a ghostly memory to many associated with it.

"The merger is based on one consideration only: undying hatred of Fianna Fail and the Labour Party. Do not we all know that they mutilated Ireland, that in secret negotiation with England they consented to the permanent partition of this nation, which was made by God and nature one and indivisible? They have created in this country another Alsace-Lorraine, and a problem which must be left to future generations of nationalists to try to solve. It will never be solved by this so-called United Ireland Party, many prominent members of which regard London as their spiritual home.

A UNITED IRELAND.

"We shall achieve a united Ireland only when those who have dismembered this nation have been driven from public life, so that the nation will be able to apply its energies to reuniting these two portions of the Irish nation."

Turning to the question of united Ireland's policy, Mr. Norton said:—"Mr. Cosgrave states that he stands for political institutions. He waged a civil war to maintain them in 1922. He says that he is a good democrat and believes in democracy. Yet, we have General O'Duffy stumping the country, after the manner of the best comedian we could put on the stage, and telling the country that the parliamentary system is un-Irish and should not endure. Instead of that, he has some kind of half-cocked scheme which has set everybody laughing, except the general himself."

There was another serious matter of policy upon which they were entitled to ask this new merger some questions. A campaign was being generated, having for its object the non-payment of rates, and there was not the slightest doubt that the new merger was behind this campaign.

"That campaign will have to stop," Mr. Norton declared, "and any working agreement that we have with the Government will involve that the Government shall face up to its responsibilities and put down, in the most ruthless manner, any attempt to stop local services.

"Some people are concerned as to whether the Constitution Amendment Act will be used against these people, but they are not concerned with whether their policy will force hungry men, women and children to starvation. I will nail my flag to the mast on this question. I would deal with these people in the most drastic manner possible.

"The Irish Times wrote a number of leading articles, and its Political Correspondent gave us all kinds of advice, and the Independent joined in that advice," Mr. Norton proceeded, "but that done will deceive nobody. In this period of trial and tribulation Labour will not tear down its national flag. It may be shot away, but it will not be torn down so long as we can urge the people on. We will do nothing to lend ourselves to a national surrender.

STEPPING ON THE GAS.

Going on to speak of last week's discussions with the Government, "in order to help the nation and advance our own distinctive Labour programme," Mr. Norton said that, while in no way sacrificing their separate identity and independence, they had come to an arrangement with the Government. There had been guaranteed to them by the Government that in next year's Budget a scheme of widows' and orphans' pensions would be provided for. Provision would be made in the near future, by a bill which would be passed in the Dail, to provide financial assistance to workers who were unemployed and had exhausted unemployment benefit under the present Act. There would be a speeding up of house-building activities.

"It is possible," Mr. Norton remarked, "to build fifty houses at £500 each in this town, and to let them at three shillings each, and the rates would only have to bear one farthing in the pound.

"The present system of leaving the workers in insanitary dens will come to an end. The Government have undertaken to us that they will speed up the house-building activities of local authorities and use their powers to compel those authorities to step on the gas."

At present, under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, a man might die, leaving a widow and children, and they would receive only £300 compensation. The Government had undertaken now to introduce a Workmen's Compensation Bill, and pass it into law, to provide decent compensation where a workman died or was badly maimed while working for an employer.

BACK-KITCHEN FACTORIES.

The Factory Acts were hopelessly out-of-date. They were never intended to deal with the situation which existed to-day. People had started industries under the protection of tariffs in lofts and backyards. Now there would be a Factory and Workshops Act introduced.

"The gentlemen in the back kitchen, loft, or backyard will get short shrift. If they are going to have factories, they will have to have decent factories," said Mr. Norton.

The Government had agreed to have consultations with them with a view to raising the rates of wages paid on relief schemes. "I have complained about that rate of wages," he said, "and I shall continue to complain about it. But I hope the working arrangement with the Government will enable us to get them raised.

"We have provided for fortnightly meetings with the Government, and have been assured by the Government on all matters of projected legislation," Mr. Norton declared, "in order that our views may be embodied."

Every decent workingman who had pride in his country would stand over this working arrangement as the best that could be done in the interests of the plain people.

Senator Cummins, who also spoke, said that the alliance was based on the broadest democratic principles.

MR. AIKEN AND FARMERS.

PEOPLE TO DEAL WITH SENATE.

BREAK THE SOIL NOT BOTTLES.

MR. FRANK AIKEN, Minister for Defence, spoke at an Aeridheacht at Ardagh, Co. Longford, yesterday. He said that what the party wanted was not merely a Republic for all Ireland, but a Republic prosperous and free politically and economically. To achieve that meant many years of work, and the co-operation of the people with the Government. Every boy and girl could do his or her part to win the economic war. If Ireland was to become self-sufficient every village and town and county must be self-sufficient. Every farmer who could till his land should get busy so that the Free State would not be in the position of sending out three millions a year for foreign wheat. The people were entitled to demand of the farmers that they should utilise their land to the best advantage.

Referring to the Land Bill amendments inserted by the Senate, he said—"If the Senate rejects the wishes of the people, as shown by their elected representatives, we are going to ask the people to deal with the Senate." (Applause.) In order to win the economic war the country would have to follow their one experienced general, Eamon de Valera. If, in a war, any section of the Army started "stunts," the officers would have to deal with it.

HARDER WORK.

Mr. Aiken continued—"I have no doubt certain young men who are breaking bottles think they are doing good work for the country. I would give them a harder and more patriotic work to do—harder for themselves. We are only importing a few thousand pounds worth of foreign drink in the year. If every other part of our economy balanced as well as our trade in drink we would be doing pretty well. If the young men who are holding up unarmed publicans would follow their idea to its logical conclusion, they would refrain instead from drinking tea, using British coal, wearing foreign cloth, and so on. There is a patriotic motive behind the boycott of foreign beer; we want to turn it to good account. Ireland is to be self-supporting in all its essentials, and if the men who want to see foreign drink excluded would break up the soil, plant wheat, grow tobacco, and produce everything that would have been imported they would be doing a good work."

On the question of prices, Mr. Aiken said that if the farmers could produce what the Irish people required they would get their price. "I warn farmers," he added, "that they should not be in a hurry to sell any of their cereal crop until they get a fair price for it. We will see they get a fair price for it if they hold on."

A MAD WORLD.

There was no need for his hearers to be alarmed at the drop in their export trade. The world for a number of years had really been mad, in the way goods were sent from one end to another, with profit to nobody but the British shipping companies.

In conclusion, Mr. Aiken said the Government wanted public authorities to take full advantage of the grants and loans, to do the best possible social work, by distributing money and relieving unemployment. Farmers should take advantage of reconstruction and building grants to make for themselves decent habitable homes. He hoped before the five years of the Government's office was up that they would complete these jobs.

Mr. James Victory, T.D. for the area, said that it gave the elected representatives of his party great encouragement to see what enthusiasm for Fianna Fail still remained in the country. The organisation felt that there was no way out of the crisis except to win the economic war; but this had been won six months ago if only they could get their political enemies to keep their mouths shut.

He appealed to a section of the electorate which had been supporting his party for the last twelve years to keep with them to the end. He appealed to those people, whom he had for so long regarded as friends, to give the Government a chance.

PEOPLE HARD PRESSED.

"We do not live on the moon," continued Mr. Victory; "we know people are hard-pressed, but the Government should get credit for this; they came into power when depression was approaching. Yet have we had bank crashes here?"

There were people whispering to the men of County Longford not to pay their rates. He would give the first man caught twelve months' with hard labour, and would not agree to less.

Mr. J. Geoghegan, K.C. T.D., said that he came in triumphant mood. There were people who thought that members of the present Government party should come in white sheets and bearing candles, because the country had sunk to the lowest possible depths of degradation. He thanked God that there was food enough for man and beast. Owing to the policy of Fianna Fail there was, in fact, a super-abundance of food. It was merely thoughtlessness that made people say otherwise. Fianna Fail should get credit for bringing in a market—their own. For instance, the Irish beef market had increased; people were able to eat it who had got very little of it previously. That was a gain, even if the beef could have been sold outside, which it could not. It would be crazy to continue in the present circumstances the policy that had been pursued in the past in regard to the English markets.

MOTOR RACING MISHAPS.

H. C. HAMILTON INJURED.

BRNO (CZECHOSLOVAKIA), Sunday.

EUROPE'S big motor races continue to be marred by serious accidents. Following the death of three famous drivers on the Monza Circuit last Sunday and the fatality at Brooklands yesterday, two bad smashes occurred here to-day on the Masaryk Ring during the holding of the international motor races.

Fortunately, neither of the drivers involved to-day is in danger of losing his life. One of the two drivers concerned to-day was H. C. Hamilton, the well known English driver. Hamilton is at present in hospital suffering from internal injuries. He was going beautifully in second place with his M.G. Midget in the class for cars of under 1,500 c.c. when, on the eleventh lap and with only four more laps to go, he took the hairpin bend at Ostrovacice. The car left the road and turned several somersaults, pinning Hamilton underneath. When the ambulance men reached the wrecked car they found the English driver strapped to his seat unconscious. He soon recovered, and complained of pains in his right side and chest.

The British Vice-Consul, Mr W. V. Neumark, took the injured driver to hospital, where he is being well cared for.

A later message states that Hamilton is in a serious, but not dangerous, condition. It has been ascertained that three of his ribs on the right side of the body have been smashed, in addition to internal injuries affecting his kidneys. He will probably be operated on to-night. It is confidently expected that this operation, though delicate, will in no way prove a matter of life or death and that he will have fully recovered in two or three weeks.

THE WINNERS.

The winner of the class for cars of over 1,500 c.c. was Louis Chiron, the well-known Monegasque driver, at the wheel of an Alfa Romeo. He covered the 495.414 kilometres (seventeen laps) in 4 hours 50 minutes 22 8-10ths seconds.

E. G. Burgaller, the German driver, won the race for cars under 1,500 c.c. on a Bugatti. He covered the course of 437.130 kilometres in 4 hours 32 minutes 5 1-10th seconds.

THE THURLES MEETING.

farmer to the sorry position where, wishing to hold his head high and pay his debts, he finds himself unable to do so. He is branded as a law-breaker and conspirator, and charged with being insensible and callous in face of the needs of the sick and destitute, but the sick and destitute have no ray of hope from a Government which is drying up the spring from which wealth flows, either for the payment of wages or of relief.

WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT.

What man can be certain that, if this policy is allowed to continue, he will have next year wages as high as he has at present. How can social services be maintained without a revival in our trade. We have heard of the meekness of previous Governments in dealing with the British. Take one example. Take Article 5 of the Treaty, which deals with the settlement of the share which the Irish Free State should pay of the War Debt of the late United Kingdom. Mr. de Valera, who never errs, calculated that the liability would amount to nineteen million pounds a year. He predicted that we would have to pay it. What happened? We escaped the payment of every single penny of the liability which the British claimed to exist, and which the head of the present Government said we would have to pay; and that settlement was effected without any co-operation from any Opposition party. It was done in spite of guns, in spite of propaganda, in spite of bad mathematics. The proposition of the Government now is that we cannot pay five million pounds, but what steps are being taken to get us off our payment. In the last election the Government propaganda was that a majority here could make a good settlement, that a conclusion of the economic war was imminent if only the people voted Fianna Fail. Has any step whatever been taken since to settle? Is it not a fact that nothing has been done and that there is no prospect of anything being done in our altered economic circumstances since the arrangement was made to pay five million pounds? It is clear that no creditor could expect to be repaid in full. Our case is a good case.

BEATING THE DRUM.

It is a clear case; it is not a dishonourable nor a demeaning case. It needs courage, knowledge, skill, and patience to make it; but the fact is that there is nobody in the Government who has these qualities and is prepared to make that case. Why not be honest, then, and say what is the truth, that they are prepared to beat the big drum in this country, but they are afraid to face the British. No member or group of members of the Government can settle, because they have before them the example of previous settlements, which the head of the present Government turned down. Nobody can settle but himself, but he has neither the ability nor the courage to do so. Government speakers clearly feel now that the mess they have created is too great to be cleared up by themselves. They fear that failure is certain, and they are proceeding to apportion the blame equally among their military and political friends in the I.R.A. and their political opponents in this United Party. They are taking every step to hamper its development. A premises in Parnell square, which belonged to the Cumann na nGaedheal Party, and, therefore, passed to Fine Gael, has been closed down by order of the Military Tribunal.

No stone should be left unturned, no reasonable plan untried, to develop our industries and to provide for our population, but such a development must go hand in hand with political stability, good methods of farming and a market for our produce. It is for a policy of this kind that this national alliance is now standing; for social and for national progress.

MR. MACDERMOT.

Mr. MacDermot, amid laughter, addressed his hearers as fellow-conspirators. He said that Mr. de Valera's speech at Cork, like his speech at Dundalk, gave evidence of the conspiracy mania. The speakers stood for constitutional and parliamentary government and the liberty of the individual, and the present merger would not have taken place except on that condition. Mr. de Valera had charged him with inciting the farmers to enter into a conspiracy not to pay their just debts to the State, but the speaker said most definitely that he did not believe that any such conspiracy existed, and he and Mr. Dillon had over and over again in public speeches said that they could not countenance any refusal to pay rates or any other just or legal obligation by those who had the means to do so. He did say, and he would continue to say, that the vast majority of the farming community in this country had been put in a position where they were not able to pay, and it was grossly unjust of a Government whose policy had put them in that position to have the effrontery to call upon them to pay.

He gave no consent by silence to the alleged conspiracy, as had been stated by Mr. de Valera, but he wondered how many acts of blackguardism in this country Mr. de Valera was to be taken as giving consent to if his silence meant consent. He had yet to learn that there was greater willingness in Fianna Fail districts to pay rates than in other districts. This merger had already had some effect; it had given the people a visible alternative to the present Fianna Fail Government, and a United Ireland Party that was going to get a sweeping majority at the next general election.

MR. DILLON.

Mr. Dillon said that no Public Safety Act was needed in this country to make the Irish farmers pay their just debts, but to be able to pay their debts they must have the means wherewith to pay them. It was the supreme duty of the Government to open the British and every possible market for the Irish farmer.

Messrs. Morrissey, T.D., Curran, T.D., and Seamus Burke also addressed the meeting.

AFTER WEEKS OF WRANGLING.

AMERICAN COAL CODE SIGNED.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

The code for the bituminous coal industry has been finally signed by every group of producers in the United States with the exception of those from Alabama and Western Kentucky, according to a statement by General Johnson, head of the National Recovery Administration.

The code was signed shortly after eight o'clock last night after a delay caused by the disagreement of the owners of the North and South Appalachian coal field districts, who are strongly opposed to labour unions over the question of wage rates. This hitch was smoothed over before signing.

The representatives of the Alabama and Western Kentucky operators did not appear at the time of the signing. Their absence is inexplicable in view of the fact that they approved of the code at the time of its drafting.

The terms of the code will be effective until April 1, 1934.

[Note—A code for the anthracite section of the coal industry has already been signed and is in operation.]

The signing of the bituminous code of "fair competition," as it is called, came after weeks of wrangling between coal mine owners, paid workers and threats to impose a Government code by force if the industry could not agree within itself.

During this time over thirty thousand coal miners in Pennsylvania have been out on strike as a protest against the demands of the owners in the code controversy. In clashes between strikers and coal police many were shot and clubbed.

As a result, President Roosevelt summoned General Johnson to the White House, and issued an ultimatum ordering him to conclude negotiations on the code, saying:—

"I feel the time has come, after weeks of delay, for definite action."

The President, under the National Recovery Act, has the right to draw up and enforce a code upon any industry which cannot agree within itself upon a code. He has hesitated to take this step for fear of holding up the whole programme of the Government.

A Reuter's Florence telegram says:—The monument to Bert Hinkler, the Australian airman, was unveiled yesterday morning at the Passo Delle Vacche, in the Pratomagno Alps, the spot where he crashed in January while attempting a flight to Australia.

PRESIDENT AND NEW PARTY.

CONDEMNATION OF BASS RAIDS.

AGREEMENT WITH LABOUR.

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

CORK, Saturday Night.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA addressed a very large meeting on the Grand Parade, Cork, to-night. He was met outside the city boundary by a large crowd with bands, torches and banners, and escorted to the meeting place, where he was received with enthusiasm.

The meeting, which was timed to start at 7.30, did not begin until 9.30. Alderman Sean O'Leary presided.

President de Valera said that previously he had referred to certain newspapers and to the action of certain political and military groups which had been, consciously or unconsciously, encouraging and assisting the British Government to continue the economic war against the Irish people. He urged the persons responsible to be at least neutral, to refrain from taking sides against their own country, even if they were unwilling to help her actively in her hour of need. He asked for a disciplined acceptance of the authority of the Government chosen by the people.

In reply to his Dundalk speech, Mr. MacDermot stated that the Centre Party and National Farmers' and Ratepayers' League never authorised the campaign against the payment of rates. It might be true that the leaders never formally endorsed it; but they at least silently assented to it. They knew it was being conducted by those very methods of boycott and intimidation which Mr. MacDermot professed to hold in horror. Yet they made no attempt to stop it.

If Mr. MacDermot had any regard for the welfare of the country and for his own reputation he would not allow this campaign to continue. A qualified disavowal would not absolve him of his responsibility, and he should set his face definitely against this cowardly and lawless conspiracy against the poor. "I can assure him (Mr. MacDermot) that no illegal movement of this kind will be tolerated by the Government, and that we shall not hesitate to bring the perpetrators and the instigators, in so far as we can find them, to justice," added Mr. de Valera.

"The farmers understand quite well," said the speaker, "that defeat in the economic war would be disastrous to them, that it would at once deprive them of the advantage they have gained by the reduction of the land annuities by half, that over and above the land annuities it would saddle them, in common with the rest of the community, with a burden of over £2,000,000 a year for local loan charges, pensions to ex-British police and officials and other items. They understand that defeat would mean that the future economic and political policy of this country could be dictated absolutely by the British Government, that every Irish interest could and would be trampled upon with impunity.

NO MILITARY MOVEMENT.

Referring to the National Guard, Mr. de Valera said that it would be the military wing of the so-called United Ireland Party, preparing to seize power by force if the political wing of the party failed to win the support of a majority of the people. It would be just as well for these people to understand now at the outset that they could not play this trick on the country. It was not the intention of the Government to interfere with any genuinely peaceful movement, but they would not permit a military movement to develop under the cover of party politics.

Dealing with the attacks on property and the scenes of disorder in the Courts and elsewhere, Mr. de Valera said:—"I regret more than I can say that these shameful incidents have continued during the week. In fact, my appeal seems to have resulted in an intensification of the activities of the promoters."

REPUBLICAN ATTACKERS.

"The spokesmen of this movement say that the Government is not carrying on the economic war with sufficient vigour, that we are not going fast enough. Have we then come to the position that, at the very moment when the Government has to defend itself on the one side from attack by militarists, who want to compel us to surrender to the British, it is to be attacked on the other side by people who profess to think that all that should be done against the British is not being done. If the Republican attackers are sane they must surely know that their actions, instead of injuring the British, are dissipating the energies which should be devoted to dealing with the economic war situation. No matter what their good intentions are, they are, in fact, helping the British and discouraging and disgusting every sane and patriotic Irishman.

AGREEMENT WITH LABOUR.

Referring to the agreement with the Labour Party, Mr. de Valera said:—"During the last week I and other Ministers have had conferences with the leaders of the Labour Party, and I am able to report to-day that we found ourselves in agreement on all the main issues of public policy which are likely to arise during the lifetime of the present Dail.

We informed Mr. Norton that it is the intention of the Government to make provision in next year's Budget for a scheme of widows' and orphans' pensions, a matter which has been the subject of consideration by a committee for some time. We also told him that we proposed in the near future to introduce legislation to amend the Factory Acts, and that the Unemployment Assistance Bill and the Workmen's Compensation Bill, already introduced would be passed through the Dail as rapidly as possible. Arrangements were made for regular fortnightly consultations between the Government and the Labour Party, for advance discussions on proposed legislation, and for consultation on such matters as rates of wages on relief schemes, which have been the cause of difference in the past.

The net result of our discussions is that the Government and Labour stand together in defence of the interests of the nation, in the assertion of the authority of the people and in the upbuilding of a just and stable economic system. Throughout the last eighteen months Labour, he said, had given a splendid example of fidelity to the national cause.

EXCITEMENT IN WESTPORT.

BLUE SHIRT PROCESSION STOPPED.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WESTPORT, Sunday.

Following the proclamation of a National Guard demonstration here to-day a procession of about thirty Blue Shirts was stopped by a force of Guards, under Superintendent Flynn and Inspector O'Leary, as they emerged into the street with the intention of marching to the grave of Commandant Ring at Aughavale Cemetery.

When the procession was stopped Mr. Cronin, who was in the procession, attempted to address the men, but was prevented by an Inspector of Guards. A large crowd that had come along after Mass at St. Mary's Parish Church surged along the Mall around the processionists, and cries of "Up, de Valera," "Up, the I.R.A.," were indulged in by a section of the crowd.

For some moments a clash seemed inevitable, but the Guards drew a cordon around the Blue Shirts, whom they escorted to the A.C.A. rooms. The majority of the Blue Shirts were strangers.

COST OF LIVING IN THE FREE STATE.

There was an increase of one point in the official cost-of-living figure in the Free State at mid-August, as compared with mid-May last. The index figure was 149 at mid-August, as compared with the British index figure of 139 at the end of July last.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

FIRM CLOSE FOLLOWS LATE ACTIVITY.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Stock Exchange traders to-day took fresh courage, following yesterday's set-back, and closing gains ranging up to 4 points were numerous, with Mining issues a strong feature. Sales reached 1,000,000 shares.

The opening was irregular, but early in the session the market rallied substantially under the leadership of Mining stocks.

Mining shares were favourably affected by the increase in the Treasury's gold export price.

The market closed firm.

To-day's rally was considered to be somewhat impressive, in face of the further rumours in connection with the adherence of France to the gold standard. Opinions are conflicting regarding the possible effects of the departure of France from gold on the economic situation in America. Some authorities believe that a sharp decline in stock prices under frightened liquidation might follow, but that a recovery would surely ensue.

The week's figures of freight-car loadings, at 571,400 cars, were about as expected.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Saturday.

Scattered selling was the feature of early dealings in the grain market, but trading was of a light character. Thereafter prices rallied on buying by professional interests and owing to the light offerings, while the firm tone of the cash situation had a beneficial effect, and some covering by shorts assisted the upward movement. Further inflation talk together with rumours that some very bullish news would be forthcoming during the week-end caused late buying movement and some absorption by commission houses. Wheat values advanced on Eastern absorption, good buying by milling interests, and in unison with the improved tone of Winnipeg. A report by Bartlett, Frazer and Company, estimating that the carry-over will be below 100,000,000 bushels at the end of the crop year, and a forecast of light frost in the North-West area during the week-end, were construed as being encouraging factors. Maize, rye and oats fluctuated in unison with the movements in wheat.

WHEAT opened steady, unchanged to 1/4c. up, and closed firm at 3 1/4c. to 3 1/2c. gain.

WINNIPEG GRAINS.

WHEAT opened steady, with values 1/4c. lower to unchanged. Advices indicating that threshing had been delayed and that the quality of grain was deteriorating owing to inclement weather had a stimulating effect, while good buying for seaboard account helped the rise. The firm demand for cash wheat, together with a fair export business, was an additional bullish factor, and the market closed firm at 1 1/4c. to 1 1/2c. rise. Opening options — October, 67 1/8; December, 68 1/8; May, 74 1/2. Closing options—October, 68 1/2; December, 70 5/8; May, 76. Oats firm at 7/8c. to 1 1/8c. rise. GAELIC GAMES.

THE CLONDALKIN TOURNAMENT.

GERALDINES' STRONG RECOVERY.

(BY PAT'O.)

GERALDINES .... 3 goals 6 points
KICKHAMS .... 2 goals 2 points.

Clondalkin Round Towers are probably the oldest Gaelic club in Ireland. Before regular affiliations to the G.A.A. opened in 1884 there was a flourishing team in the South Dublin village. In the early days of the Association the Dowlings, Erritys and O'Dowds were prominent in All-Ireland games, helping Young Irelands, Kickhams, Geraldines and Emmets to win championships.

Mr. John Browne, vice-chairman of the Dublin County Board, is now president of the Towers, and the gold medal tournament promoted under his auspices promises to be very successful, as befitting a club which gave three prominent players—Hickey, Dowling and O'Dowd—to the Dublin inter-county team for several years. Four Kildare teams—viz., Kildare, Naas, Clane and Celbridge, a Meath team, Donaghmore, and all the Dublin senior clubs have entered.

Yesterday's programme was attractive, but Clane's engagement in Kildare brought a postponement of their match with Dolphins. Patrons were compensated by a sparkling game between the old rivals, Geraldines and Kickhams. Several inter-county men were on view—Kelly, McCann, O'Shea, Fitzgerald, Burke (2), of Geraldines; Brennan, O'Shea, Sweeney, Coakley, and Higgins, of Kickhams. Though Geraldines won, Kickhams made the pace for forty minutes. They finished weakly, and Geraldines may go far for the valuable trophies.

THE GAME.

O'Shea was on the mark with an early Kickham free, but S. O'Shea and H. Burke cleared. Brennan again sent "C. J.'s" forward, and Coakley was almost through. Burke and Barton, with Doyle in goal behind them, had a busy session for Geraldines until McCann came to their aid with a long drive. A Kickham free brought a struggle at Geraldine's goal mouth, and Dolan turned the first goal in.

Holding their position and using the following wind well, Kickham's forwards—Dowling, Dolan, Connolly and Coakley—all handled before the latter punched the ball past Doyle for Kickhams second major. Geraldines, keeping the ball low, now had a session. Fitzgerald and Kelly exchanged passes, and Quinn crossed over the left to open the score with a good point. Geraldines held their places well, and Lee punted accurately for the second minor. Dolan's point kept Kickhams in front, but Geraldines finished the half at a fast pace. Quinn and Kelly added quick points. Half-time score:—Kickhams, 2 goals 1 point; Geraldines, 5 points.

THE SECOND HALF.

When Kickhams re-opened with a point from Dolan a close finish was promised. Then Geraldines settled down to their best football. H. Burke and O'Shea drove balls of great length forward; Fitzgerald and Kelly used them well. From a 50 free B. McCann kicked a perfect ball for a goal, and within two minutes two quick goals from O'Shea and Quinn swung the game around. Sweeney, O'Shea and Connolly sent Kickhams up near the end, and Doyle, in Geraldines' goal, saved two close shots to save the game in a good finish.

MAYO IN THE FINAL.

MAYO .... 2-8 CARLOW 1-3

Mayo defeated Carlow in the Junior football semi-final at Athlone, yesterday, before 4,000 spectators. It was a good, fast game, lacking polish and interfered with by a stiff breeze. Mayo piled up a big lead in the first half, but they finished weakly in the second half, and Carlow pulled up some leeway.

Wexford Senior Hurling Final—Adamstown 4-4, Sally Beeches 1-1. Intermediate (H.) Final—Ballymurren 2-1, New Ross 1-4.

East Limerick Hurling Final—Ahane 2-2, Fedamore 0-2.

Kilkenny Hurling Championship—First Round—Tullaroan 3-7, Dicksboro' 3-4.

DERRY BOY'S DEATH.

KILLED BY SHOTGUN DISCHARGE.

At the inquest on Saturday on the fifteen years old college boy, William Grant Fletcher, Campsie House, Londonderry, evidence was given that the boy, after a bathe in the River Faughan with other boys, loaded a gun with a cartridge to fire at a curlew and left the gun down. A nine years old companion lifted the gun, which accidentally discharged, killing Fletcher instantly.

A verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

WEDDING IN DUBLIN.

MR. J. H. SAVILLE AND MISS JOAN LUMLEY.

The marriage took place on Saturday last, in the Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, of Mr. John Henry Saville, second son of Mr. Richard Saville and the late Mrs. Saville, "Lauriston," Rathdrum, County Wicklow, and Miss Joan Lumley, only daughter of Mr. J. Alfred Lumley and Mrs. Lumley, Tullamore, Offaly.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Lumley, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. E. Bennett and the Rev. F. T. Parker. The bride was given away by her father. She wore a pretty frock of anemone wind-swept crêpe, with a bodice of lace to tone, over flesh pink. Her small-brimmed hat was in a matching shade, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Maureen Lumley, niece of the bride, and Miss Dorothy Saville, sister of the bridegroom, were in attendance. Their attractive dresses were of pale coral reversible satin, with hats in the same shade, and they carried bouquets of dark red carnations with sprays of white heather and asparagus fern. Mr. Tom Saville, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the Royal Hibernian Hotel. Later the bride and bridegroom left for their honeymoon, the bride wearing a frock of deep rose angora, worn with a coat of pewter tweed, trimmed with lamb fur, and a small hat.

MILANO'S CHANCE.

MOONLIGHTER PREFERRED FOR MIDLAND PLATE.

It seems likely that there will be large fields at the first stage of the Warwick meeting to-day. The Wellesbourne Nursery Handicap is worth three hundred sovereigns, and quite a number of those engaged will probably come in for support. Tom Bowling has been given top weight, but he is not so good now as when winning three races off the reel in the early days of the season.

Poker ran fourth to Bidon at Goodwood—which was fairly good form, and certainly better than that of Voiturette, who was not in the first three to Flaming Abbess at Derby in the first week of the present month. Solo can be fancied on her third to Calamintha at Bath, and also when gaining a similar place behind Master Vere at Nottingham.

Milano showed that he is in form by running third to Stormy Weather at Doncaster last week, and seems to be well handicapped. Others with chances include Bucella and Wardrobe, but in choosing from Poker, Solo and

MILANO,

I anticipate that the last-named will be the best to stand.

Of those engaged in the Midland Plate I think the best will be Larking, and Meldrum, and if the second-named can show a return to his best form he should be capable of winning this race.

MOONLIGHTER

I expect to see Stanzo, Ben and Bornea all well supported for the Stoneleigh Plate, and as is a much improved animal I shall expect him to win.

BEN

Probably

and Gloss will have most to do with the finish of the Whitnash Plate, and I expect the former to score.

At Edinburgh the two races likely to provoke the keenest wagering are the Buccleuch Handicap and the Prestonpans Nursery. In the former event, the selling plater Fuzzy Wuzzy is at the head of the handicap, but I do not suppose this will deter those who fancy him, for he has a very fine turn of speed.

F. Armstrong can choose from Fuzzy Wuzzy, Nothing Daunted, Jasper Wood and Barnacle Bill, and with such a strong hand from which to play he ought to win the race. I take as my choice.

F. ARMSTRONG'S SELECTED

For the Prestonpans Nursery I like the chance of

ESPERANTO.

NEWMARKET NOTES.

FANCIED HORSES FOR WARWICK AND EDINBURGH.

NEWMARKET, Saturday.

The morning was fine and warm, and, with most of our trainers at home, some very interesting gallops took place. Brigadier Tomkinson was with the Egerton House team on the Racecourse side, and in a good stripped mile spin the three youngsters, Stoic, Slam and Blank, stuck well to their elder stable companion, Hempseed. They are worth bearing in mind in nurseries over the distance of this morning's gallop. Limelight, who is making good headway at present, strode out well in a useful mile spin with Foxearth.

I liked the manner in which R. Day's Constant Vixen acquitted herself, with G. Nicoll in the saddle, in a good stripped mile and a quarter spin with Hussar. She has not looked back since winning at Windsor, and, as she is reasonably weighted in the Durham Handicap at Yarmouth on Thursday, she is not unlikely to score again. Wild Son, who won the Norfolk and Suffolk Handicap at Yarmouth last year, is an intended runner for that event on Wednesday, and he moved in quite his best style in a good stripped mile by himself.

Frank Butters was on the Limekilns, and in a good pace gallop over one mile and a half both Firdaussi (Beary) and Dastur moved well with Witch Doctor II. In a similar gallop La Turbie pleased with Taj Ud Din (C. Dickens), Grey Wonder, Pyrus and Mereworth. La Turbie is in capital trim to meet her engagement in the Durham Handicap at Yarmouth.

Faloudeh, Light Brocade, Tetramor, Barred, Umber, Amorette, Master Vere (Perryman), Achtenan and Osman Pasha (Beary) acquitted themselves well in good five furlongs spins, while Moti Begum (ridden by Prince Aly Khan) galloped sharply the same distance.

An interesting gallop was that which B. Jarvis gave his Cesarewitch candidate, Erain. In company with Antiquary, Tippets, Swoon and Dame Reynard, he moved in faultless style throughout a good stripped mile and a half spin, and he is making splendid progress.

J. Jarvis gave Short Hand a good pace gallop over seven furlongs with Jovial Judge, Bull Point and Flying Falcon. He will be difficult to beat for the Edinburgh Gold Cup on Tuesday. Isadora showed plenty of dash in a good five furlongs spin with Egret, and is in capital trim for the Barnbougle Nursery on the same day.

The Hon. George Lambton's Highlander moved well in a good mile and a half spin with Arctic Light (E. Lambton) and Prince Alloway (Wells). The former holds an excellent winning chance in the Ayrshire Handicap on Thursday. Pricket was given a nice pace gallop of one mile, and, if the going is suitable, he should go near to winning the Caledonian Hunt Handicap at Ayr on Thursday.

At the time of writing we have nothing under orders for the opening event at Warwick. Pomona gelding and represent us in the Wellesbourne Plate, and I give the latter the preference.

Our only runner for the Midland Plate is who has been acquitting himself so well in recent gallops that I expect to see him win.

Stage Star missed a tempting engagement on Saturday, probably in view of the Arden Selling Plate, but I look to who has been running well in much better company, to be returned the winner.

STRATEGIST (next best),

GLOSS

should beat Trapper and win the Whitnash Plate.

At Edinburgh my fancies are:—2.0, Gamesmaster; 2.30, Belle Amie; 3.0, Oratorium; 3.30, Son of Sin; 4.0, Falcon; 4.30, Flying Falcon.

Fifty-six-year-old Amateur Rider.

The fifty-six year old amateur rider, Mr. G. Gunter, gained a big ovation when he won the Ripley Plate on Nawton at Ripon on Saturday. It was only in the last few strides that Nawton, who was a 10 to 1 chance, got to grips with Tommy Tittlemouse, and Mr. Gunter was seen to great advantage when he forced his mount's head in front almost on the post. Mr. Gunter, who has been racing since his early youth, has been riding winners since 1906.

ENGLISH RACING TOPICS.

SATISFACTORY PRICES AT THE SALES : GRIEVANCE OF LATE SESSIONS : HYPERION'S PROSPECTS.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Sunday Night.

There are always a few things to say when the dust of Doncaster has cleared away, and I find that there is something to unsay. In writing of the sale of Mr. J. J. Maher's yearlings and his average, I omitted to include the Confetti colt in the figures. Mr. Maher's average for his five yearlings was 2,354 guineas, so that the Confey Stud again carries off the championship.

I have said before that these sales have been good, even very good. Some Irish breeders who were not in the big money would not agree to this, for their sales were so poor that in several cases they did not pay for the sire fee; and when the duty is taken off they showed a considerable loss. The moral of all this is, not to go to Doncaster.

The lesson should have been learnt by now, that it is useless sending any but the best there; and the experiences of Messrs. Goff's sales have shown that there is a better market in Dublin for the two and three hundred guinea yearling, who is often given away when he comes to be sold in England.

VERY HIGH-PRICED YEARLINGS.

In the matter of the very high-priced yearlings there was no great change. In 1931, when bedrock was reached, the top price was the 6,600 guineas, paid for Mr. Maher's Waffles colt. Last week the highest price was the 7,100 guineas, paid for Lord Furness's half-sister to Orpen.

The difference is small, and, anyhow, the sale of this type of yearling is not governed by any laws. No matter how bad things are there are always one or two people who will compete for an unusual one. Where the marked improvement took place last week, I think, was in the sales of the genuinely good yearlings; and if we take it that the yearling who made 700 guineas last year would have made 1,000 guineas this year, it gives a fair idea of the average increase in values.

Among the good new buyers I would mention Mr. J. V. Rank, whose family have colossal interests in the grain trade. Mr. Rank is a well-known breeder of pedigree cattle, and his Great Danes clear the board at the dog shows. He has owned steeplechasers for a few years, but this is the first time he has adventured in the Doncaster market.

Mr. Shand, who is also a Liverpool man, and also by way of being a dog fancier, bought a few horses at the December sales for Sam Armstrong to train, and was seeking fresh fields in the market last week.

FEW AMERICAN BUYERS.

There was less buying than I thought there would be on behalf of American owners. Probably the situation in the United States is still too obscure. There was no other foreign demand. The market was kept going by stout Britons buying horses to race in England, and foremost among them I would mention Lord Glanely.

If I were a breeder of bloodstock I would take out a policy on the life of Lord Glanely. Where would breeders be without him? Through thick and thin he has supported the Doncaster market. When things looked at their very worst he stepped in, and no single individual has done anything like as much as he has to stop a possible rot in the market.

He has bid and bid for yearlings that he had no great need of in defence of the market.

One thing seems to have been effectively scotched by these sales, and that is the agitation for a widespread reduction of sire fees. The good sires are far too scarce for any suggestion of a reduction in their fees to be made. Some of the older stallions show no signs of decreasing in popularity.

BLANDFORD HOLDING HIS OWN.

Blandford is magnificently holding his own, and so is Beresford; while Gainsborough goes still higher by the performances this year of Hyperion. Solario, of course, stands pat, and Son-in-Law and Sansovino do well. Hurry On has gone into eclipse and yearlings by Papyrus and Buchan have not been much sought after.

Of the young sires, Fairway and Felstead stand out. It must be unique in the records of Doncaster for the two highest prices of a sale to be made by yearlings from a sire's first crop, as happened in the case of Fairway last week. Then Felstead's first runners have been doing so remarkably well this season that everything from him offered during the week was eagerly bid for.

A big price was given for one of the two yearlings by Baytown, which has justified Sir Charles Hyde's decision, taken before these sales, to put his fee up from 24 guineas to 43 guineas. The young Bosworths sold well, but the Coronachs did not generate much heat. Mr. Jinks has a coming appearance.

LATE EVENING SALES.

I think those breeders whose yearlings were listed for the close of the evening sessions have a genuine grievance in that their lots came up in black darkness, when nearly everyone had left the ringside, for each night the proceedings dragged on until long after eight o'clock. I know that Mr. Needham, who takes the hammer alternately with Mr. Somerville Tattersall and Mr. Deane, had to leave Doncaster on the first day on account of family reasons, and that the heavy task of selling devolved on the two senior members of the firm. This, however, is small satisfaction to the breeder whose animals were given away late at night.

As an instance of the way things dragged after it became dark I will quote that of Lady James Douglas's half-brother to Rose of England. Everyone knew he would make a big price, yet so slow was the pace that he dragged along from three hundred to four thousand guineas.

The fault of the late hour of finishing is more with the Doncaster Race Committee than with the auctioneers. They will put their absurd seven races on the card which no one wants, the last of them being timed for 5.10. The sales are due to begin at 5.30, so that there is not time even for a man to wash the dust out of the eyes that he wants to see a yearling with.

A CHANGE SUGGESTED.

There is no reason in the world why the programme should not be confined to six races, the last at 4.30, or 4.40 perhaps on St. Leger day. This would give time to get the sales going earlier and finished before dark.

It has taken half a century or more for a minor improvement to be made in the catalogue—the tabulating of the sires with the lot numbers of the yearlings by them, so I suppose it will take another fifty years to have the race and sale times co-ordinated.

People are still talking of the merit of Hyperion and wondering how good he really is, and how he stands with other winners of the St. Leger. The general opinion is that he stands very high. A veteran of the Turf when congratulating Mr. Lambton after the race said: "He is the greatest little horse I have ever seen, except, perhaps, one."

Mr. Lambton retorted: "You are right; and I probably know the other you mean—The Bard." The Bard ran sixteen times as a two-year-old and won sixteen times, beginning with the Brocklesby and ending with the Tattersall Sale Stakes at Doncaster.

He must have been a good one, for it took nothing less than Ormonde to floor him as a three-year-old, and he only beat him by a length and a half in the Derby.

HYPERION NEXT SEASON.

If Hyperion is given another race this year it will be in the Champion Stakes at Newmarket. His prospects for next season seem bright so far as the four-year-olds are concerned. The Cup races seem to be at his mercy if he keeps well.

There is not likely to be much opposition from France in the Gold Cup after the lamentable failure of Thor in the St. Leger, especially as the Grand Prix winner, Cappiello, has developed a leg and has had to be retired to the stud. It would be hard to value Hyperion just now when the stake money he may win next season is included in the estimate.

It was natural that the most talked of person at Alexandra Park yesterday should be Gordon Richards, who after riding five winners at Doncaster on the previous day was within half an hour in an aeroplane accident which involved the death of the pilot. Richards, although shaken at the time, was none the worse, and rode Vertugadin in the first race. He was beaten two lengths by St. Mark, who had been so much fancied earlier in the week at Doncaster.

MARIA'S WIN.

After a rest following the accident, he motored to London, arriving at 3.30 yesterday morning. He rode one winner in the course of the afternoon, Mr. Donald Fraser's Maria, who took the Hampstead Nursery from Hainalow and Sky Hero. The Eleni filly was in front coming into the straight, but had a little too much to do, and was not given a hard race when it was seen she could not win.

Shove Halfpenny has come on a lot since Sir Alfred Butt bought him not long ago for 180 guineas after he had won a selling race for Mr. Geoffrey Gilbey. He started favourite for the September Handicap, and after taking the lead coming into the straight he won by three lengths with a good deal in hand from Quartz, giving his owner a small consolation prize for his expensive reverse at Doncaster.

Sandals easily won the last race and gets no penalty in the Newbury Cup on Saturday, an event he won a few years ago.

SELECTIONS.

The Scottish circuit begins to-morrow at Edinburgh, when the Buccleuch Handicap may be won by QUATRAIN. ON HAND may win the Lothians Handicap and PAPETERIE the Bass Rock Plate.

At Warwick the Wellesbourne Plate may go to TYFRY, the Midland Plate to MELDRUM, and the Stoneleigh Plate to DISTANCE.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Baldoyle—Saturday.

The opening event at Baldoyle on Saturday next will start at 3 o'clock. The programme includes a handicap hurdle and five events on the flat, amongst which is the Moorsfort T.Y.O. Plate of 200 sovs.

Baldoyle October.

Entries for this meeting (October 14th), which concludes the season's fixtures at the Sutton track, close on Wednesday next.

Irish Horses for Abroad.

The Anglo-Irish Agency have purchased the useful two-year-old Styford on behalf of a client in Egypt. Styford, ch. c., two years, by Beresford—Dione, is a winner of two races and has been placed twice in five starts in Ireland this season. The Agency have also purchased Corner Boy, ch. c., two years, by Stratford—Village Maiden, from Lady Dumfries on behalf of a client in the United States, and the colt was shipped last week to New York.

Miss Paget's Doncaster Purchases.

We are informed that the four yearlings purchased by Captain P. Whitaker at the Doncaster bloodstock sales last week were bought on behalf of Miss Dorothy Paget. The yearlings and their prices were:—Bay colt by Felsted out of Celiba, 3,700 guineas; bay filly by Birthright out of Honour Bright, 2,600 guineas; bay colt by Hurstwood out of Miss Quince, 1,650 guineas; bay colt by Diomedes out of Rada, 910 guineas. The yearlings have been sent to A. B. Briscoe's stables at Newmarket to be trained for future engagements.

OUTSIDER SCORES IN FRENCH ST. LEGER.

LONGCHAMPS, Sunday.

Unplaced in his three previous races, which included the French Derby, the French Two Thousand Guineas and the Prix du President de la Republique, M. Leon Volterra's colt, Jumbo, by Zambo out of Anna Bolena, won the French St. Leger (Prix Royal Oak) at Longchamps this afternoon. He won in a canter by twenty lengths from M. M. A. Aumont's Minestrone.

Baron Edouard Rothschild's Camping, who had finished second in the French Derby and sixth in the Grand Prix, was a head away third, and Casterari, also owned by M. Leon Volterra, who had finished third in the French Derby and fourth in the Grand Prix, fourth.

It was lucky for backers that stable companions are bracketed for a win in France, as Casterari was the one expected to win. The two coupled only paid out a dividend of eleven francs for a five franc stake, but for a place Jumbo paid out 68 francs, or odds of over 12 to 1.

Jumbo was included with Mr. Jefferson Cohn's other horses when he sold his stable in toto to M. Leon Volterra, the music hall owner and dramatist. He was ridden to-day by F. Rochetti. The distance of the race was one mile seven furlongs, and its value approximately £3,000.

HAREM'S FINE WIN.

DOUBLES FOR OWNER, JOCKEY AND TRAINER AT LEOPARDSTOWN.

The continued drought had a damaging effect on the racing at Leopardstown, which was below the usual standard, fields in most instances being on the small side, while in one race there was a walk over. The counter-attraction in the shape of the motor car race at the Phoenix Park also had a detrimental effect on the attendance.

HAREM DEFIES WEIGHT.

Although only three runners took part in the race for the Dargle Plate, the meeting of Harem and Grecian Orb at a difference of 13lb. in the weights made for an interesting contest. Unlike what happened when Grecian Orb was beaten by Fearless Prince for the Leopardstown Grand Prize, waiting tactis were now adopted with Sir Thomas Dixon's gelding, and when Canty shot him up on the rails to tackle Harem close home momentarily it looked as if he would win. E. Quirke, who rode Harem, had, however, only to rouse Sir Victor Sassoon's horse, and he came away again to win by a neck. The winner was shouldering 10st., and the achievement ranks him as a very useful two-year-old, especially as the time—60 2-5 secs.—was exceptionally fast for this course.

FAST RUN RACES.

The fact that the going was so hard probably accounted for the fast time recorded for the principal race, and this was reflected subsequently when Ardent View, the winner of the Juvenile Optional Selling Race, covered the distance in 61 secs. E. Quirke, whose mount on Harem was a chance ride, also was to the fore on Ardent View, who had a stiff task to account for Ballylin, who led for most of the way and was only headed in the last fifty yards. None of the seven runners claimed the selling allowance, so there was no subsequent sale.

YOUNG TRAINER'S DOUBLE.

Mr. T. R. McKeever, one of the youngest of our trainers, has not up to the present saddled many winners but his luck was in on Saturday, for after Rathfriland had walked over for the Dundrum Steeplechase, the daughter of Cottage was saddled again for the Stillorgan Steeplechase, and, leading all the way, she won in easy style from Ardanew and Misterin Lad. Hakimon, who was in close company with the winner at the last fence, made a mistake there and threw his rider. It is doubtful, however, if he would have beaten Rathfriland, who was going much the easier at the time.

VETERAN RIDER SCORES.

The odds laid on Prize Poem to win the Bray Plate never looked like being landed. Half way through the race she got crowded out and, though making up a lot of ground subsequently, she never got on striking terms with Silverissa and Rahab, who battled out the finish for the last couple of furlongs. Rahab on a couple of occasions got on terms, but each time Silverissa drew away again and won a bit comfortably. Mr. Dowling's gelding was ridden by W. Barrett, who years ago gave up riding in public, but for the last couple of seasons has staged a wonderful come back, and can go to scales almost as light as ever he did.

The old theory about backing the outsider in a field of three runners worked out satisfactorily again in the case of the Foxrock Plate, for Clonmoy, ridden by his owner, Lord Fingall, dominated the race all the way and easily supplemented his success in a similar class of race a fortnight earlier at Proudstown Park. JOCKEYS' MOUNTS IN IRISH ST. LEGER.

H. I. Ussher's stable will be represented in the Irish St. Leger at the Curragh next Thursday by Believe Me as well as Golden Glen. J. Moylan will ride Golden Glen, but so far no jockey has been engaged for Believe Me. Joe Canty rides Cross Wind, and if C. Ray can arrange to get off an engagement in England he will have the mount on Harinero.

The Hon. George Lambton, the trainer of Hyperion, was thrown from his hack while riding on Newmarket heath on Saturday morning. Several of the Stanley House team were going down to do cantering exercise on the Limekilns when Mr. Lambton's hack suddenly stumbled and fell. It was feared that Mr. Lambton's leg, injured in another accident on the Heath some time ago, might again have been damaged, but the trainer escaped with a shaking.

HANDBALL.

KILDARE BEAT DUBLIN

A great game was witnessed at Ballymun for the All-Ireland doubles hard ball championship between Dublin and Kildare. The former were set a big task, for they had to face a 6-1 lead, which Kildare gained at Ballymore-Eustace last Sunday.

J. J. Kelly and Gus Weldon, who represented Dublin, made a magnificent effort yesterday, but the Kildare pair, T. Leahy and J. Dolan, were in great form, and deserved their victory.

A big disappointment was caused when it was announced that the match between C. Ryan (Dublin) and J. Fitzsimmons (Cavan) in the first portion of the All-Ireland (S.B.) singles championship would not take place owing to the indisposition of Ryan. Details:—

All-Ireland (H.B.) Doubles.—Final — T. Leahy and J. Dolan (Kildare) beat J. J. Kelly and G. Weldon (Dublin)—21-14, 13-21, 14-21, 21-20.

Novice Championship (H.B.) (Weldon Cup)—J. Ryan (G.) beat J. Rogers (B.)—21-7, 14-2, 21-14.

PERRY AGAIN WINS THE PURCELL CUP.

The two All-Ireland Singles champions were in action at the Depot, yesterday, defending their titles. P. Perry, the Garda champion, representing his native Roscommon, was successful in the final of the soft-ball competition, and thus has won the Purcell Cup for the fourth year in succession. He defeated M. Joyce (Dublin), by 21-6, 21-10, 21-10, 21-6, 21-19.

In the second match, J. Lucas (Kilkenny), who won the Dr. Harty Cup for hard-ball singles last year, was defeated in the semi-final of this year's competition by P. Bell (Meath), by 21-20, 11-21, 21-18, 14-21, 21-20, 21-10, 21-7.

KILKENNY FINALS.

At Talbot's Inch, Kilkenny, two Kilkenny championship finals in soft ball were decided. In the singles J. O'Brien (Talbot's Inch) beat Farrell (Kilfane)—21-3, 21-6, 21-14, and in the doubles Power and Minogue (Kilfane) beat J. O'Brien and L. Neary (Talbot's Inch) by three games to one.

GOLF.

SCOTLAND CHAMPIONS.

IRELAND FINISH WELL WITH VICTORY OVER WALES.

From Our Golf Correspondent,
NEWCASTLE, Saturday Night.

SCOTLAND, for the second year in succession, won the international championship to-day, the result of their match with England, which decided the issue, being 9½ points to 5½. The battle for the wooden spoon was again waged by Ireland and Wales. The Irishmen escaped the distinction by 11 matches to 4, the foursomes being won by 3 to 2 and the singles by 8 to 2.

Throughout the week the golf was of a high standard, and a gratifying feature was the splendid fight put up by the young Welsh team, who must have pleased the Welsh selectors. The Irish team is also worthy of our heartiest congratulations. Here also the newcomers to international golf acquitted themselves splendidly both in the foursomes and singles. Roger Greene, who came on for the first time to-day, played his part in the triumph over Wales, being in the winning foursome with Gill, and pulling his match off in the evening by 4 and 3.

A FINE FINISH.

In the foursomes we had a fine fighting finish between Ireland's second pair—J. D. MacCormack and A. W. Briscoe, and R. de Lloyd and A. D. Evans—as from dormy 4 down the Irishmen brought match to the home green, where they were beaten by one hole. They began well, and were 2 up at the fourth, but they turned all square. The Welshmen then produced fireworks, having three 4's and two 2's to become dormy four. After winning the next three holes, the Irishmen lost the eighteenth, MacCormack hooking a brassey shot.

The Burke-MacMullan partnership was not a happy one on this occasion in their match with J. L. Black and S. B. Roberts. Neither of the Irishmen was putting well, and to that might be attributed in part their defeat by 5 and 3, but they would have had to be playing brilliant golf to get the better of the Welshmen.

IRELAND'S RECOVERY.

The next two matches balanced matters, James Carr and Redmond Simcox winning from N. E. Jacob and J. A. Griffiths by one hole, and Joseph Brown and Hugh Sheals having a crushing victory over J. L. Jones and M. F. Jones, the margin being 5 and 4, while the last pair to finish, Roger Greene and Wm. Gill, made it a win for Ireland by the odd match. Brown and Sheals played surprisingly good golf, having 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 3, 3 for the first seven holes, and turning with the commanding lead of five. After a naturally shaky start with Gill, Greene, who was making his début in representative golf, settled down to a good steady game. They turned one down, and, with four to play, were two to the bad, but the home pair won the 15th, 16th and 18th for the match.

THE SINGLES.

Ireland's number one played different golf in the singles to what he produced in the foursomes. As a matter of fact, so did McMullan, but, while Burke beat J. L. Black by 5 and 4 after being out in level fours, McMullan had to work hard for his 3 and 2 victory over Roberts. The Welshman, on the way out, played the steadier golf, McMullan, as in the morning, having lapses on the greens, and Roberts turned one up. From the eleventh, however, Ireland's star was in the ascendant. They were all flat at the twelfth, and, following a half at the thirteenth, McMullan took the next three for the match by 3 and 2, and thus his figures being one under fours for the last seven holes.

After Jacob had reduced the adverse balance against Wales by a two holes win from Carr, the good work for Ireland was carried on by Brown and Simcox, the former of whom was three down at the turn, but staged a brilliant finish to win the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth for the match, being level fours for the holes in. The match was thus won with three to come in, and Gill, Sheals and Greene completed the winning sequence.

Rex Hartley, owing to a strain, has scratched from the championship, and his brother, Lister, who did not play in the singles, will also be among the non-starters next week. On Monday the championship stroke competition will be held, and the championship, which opens on Tuesday, will extend over Saturday.

THE HARTLEYS SCRATCH.

The famous international brothers, Rex Hartley and Lister Hartley, have scratched from the Irish Open Amateur Championship, which begins at Newcastle, Co. Down, to-morrow.

Lister Hartley, who played for England against Scotland in the Foursomes International match on Saturday, had to withdraw from the singles because he had contracted influenza. Rex Hartley injured his leg during the foursomes, but bravely carried on, and was beaten 8 and 6 in the singles by Eric McRuvie.

DUNLAP'S BRILLIANT ROUND.

George T. Dunlap, junior, who reached the semi-final stage of the British Amateur Championship at Hoylake last June, became American Amateur champion when, on the Kenwood Country Club's Course on Saturday he defeated Max R. Marston by 6 and 5, in the 36 holes final. Dunlap gave a brilliant display in the first round, and he was seven up on Marston, the 1923 winner, at the end of the first 18 holes. He had a round of 68, against 77, long, straight driving and accurate accroaching giving him his figures. R. T. ("Bobby") Jones described the round as one of the most brilliant he had ever seen.

Dunlap, who played in the American Walker Cup team last year, and was on the winning side in both the singles and foursomes, played flawless golf, and, well as Marston played, he never had a chance. Dunlap's score for the first round is three strokes better than the par for the course. He approached dead at every hole, and holed his putts from all parts of th greens.

Marston improved during the second round, and was out in 36, against 38, but he was still six down. Dunlap halved the first four holes inward, which gave him the match.

PRESS AND RING TIE.

MOTOR CYCLING.

INTERNATIONAL SIX DAYS' TRIAL.

IRISH ENTRANTS FOR EVENT IN WALES.

The international six days' reliability trial, which commences to-day in Wales, is the fifteenth of the series of events which was inaugurated in 1913 by the gift of a handsome trophy by the British motor cycle manufacturers to the F.I.C.M. Only one trial was held when the war put an end to all sporting activities in Great Britain and the greater part of the Continent. The International Trophy, as the manufacturers' gift was termed, was won by Great Britain in the first competition, and that country has been successful in eight of the fourteen six days' trials already held.

The competition for the International Trophy is confined to national teams riding machines manufactured in their respective countries. For this week's trial teams have been entered by Great Britain, Italy, Germany, and Czechoslovakia.

THE SILVER VASE.

Since the competition was inaugurated several subsidiary trials have been run in conjunction with it. Of these the most important is that for the International Silver Vase—a trial between nations without restriction as to the machines used by the teams. For this competition eleven teams have been entered—two by Great Britain, two by Ireland, two by Italy, two by Holland, two by Germany, and one by Czechoslovakia. There is also a competition for manufacturers' teams, for which 21 teams have been entered by 18 manufacturers, and there is also a club team competition for which 20 teams have been entered by 16 clubs.

Only one hundred and forty-two individual entries have been received for the competition, and in addition to the team prizes there are individual awards. The two Irish teams for the International Vase are:—

A Team—H. McKee, Belfast, 498 Levis; S. Moran, Dublin, 495 Matchless; C. W. Duffin, Belfast, 498 Matchless.

B Team—T. Stewart, Belfast, 346 Royal Enfield; G. M. Campbell, Dublin, 346 Levis; G. C. M. Thompson, 596 Scott.

Four Irish riders have entered individually namely, H. G. Tyrell Smith, Dublin, 348 Velocette; G. B. C. L'Estrange, Belfast, 499 B.S.A.; H. E. Hamilton, Dublin, 496 Ariel, and A. H. L. Archer, Dublin, 348 Velocette.

Tyrell Smith would, undoubtedly, have been included on one of the Irish teams were it not that at the time the teams were selected he had not entered for the trial.

Three Irish clubs have nominated teams—namely, Dublin University (Campbell, Thompson and Archer); Knock (McKee, L'Estrange and Duffin), and Leinster (Tyrell Smith, Moran and Hamilton).

SPEED MAY DECIDE.

For the first five days the trial will start and finish at Llandrindod Wells. On the concluding day the route is to Nottingham, where a speed trial will be held in private grounds at Donnington Park. It is extremely probable that a large proportion of the competitors will reach Donnington Park without the loss of marks, and the chief awards will depend on the performances of the machines in the speed test. Each machine is given a standard time, and the amount by which it beats that time is likely to prove the deciding factor.

ANGLING.

CONNAUGHT TEAM WINS CHALLENGE CUP.

The interprovincial angling competition for a challenge cup (presented by Captain A. D. Allen, Armagh) was held on Lough Conn, County Mayo, on Saturday, and was a marked success. The competition, which was held under the auspices of the Irish Trout Fly Fishers' Competition Committee, attracted teams from Ulster, Connaught and Leinster, Munster not being represented.

Conditions were against the anglers. There was a high wind, and the lake was rather low. Towards the evening conditions improved, and some fine catches were recorded.

The Connaught team won the cup with a catch of 36 trout, weighing 28lb. 14½ ozs.; Ulster was second with a catch of 26 trout, weighing 24lb. 1 oz., and Leinster third with 18 trout, weighing 15lb. 4 ozs.

Mr. N. C. Hamilton, of the Ulster team, caught the largest trout, which weighed 3lb.

The cup was presented to the winning team at a banquet which was subsequently held, and each member of the team was given a gold enamel badge.

GREYHOUND RACING.

He was well away, and, though Seaside Rattler looked like taking the lead coming into the straight, Pleasure in Store came with a strong burst to win by one length. CYCLING.

FAST TIMES IN 25 MILES CHAMPIONSHIP.

Run under the auspices of the County Board, N.A. and C.A., the twenty-five miles road championship of the County Dublin was decided yesterday on the usual course on the Navan road. The popularity of races at this distance was shown by the big entry received. Thirty-four riders presented themselves at the start, but five of them were not permitted to ride owing to their machines not being properly equipped in respect of brakes and bells. Of the twenty-nine starters only four did not finish, and the times, taken all round, were good, in view of the strong wind which the riders had to face.

H. Breadon won the race, beating the holder of the title, M. K. Clinton, by 59 seconds, and a third member of the Harp Club, Wright, filled the next place. Times and placings were:—

	Times. H.	M.	S.
1—H. Brendon, Harp	1	3	14

YACHTING.

EXTRA RACES IN DUBLIN BAY.

The two matches sailed on Saturday were private sweepstakes, neither being under the flag of any club. Perhaps the keenest class in the Bay this season has been the 17-Footers, and five turned out this time for this, which must be their last match.

They started at 3.15 p.m. in a moderate S.E. breeze, went round Seapoint mark and the Bar buoy, then had a round of the harbour marks, and at the finish Rosemary won, coming in 35 seconds ahead of Pauline, the order of the others being Hera, Eileen, Anita.

In the Wags race only two competed, Blue Bird and Mollie, the former winning by 2 seconds.

WATER POLO.

ENGLAND 9 WALES 2

England defeated Wales at water polo at Newport (Mon.), on Saturday by nine goals to two. The scorers for England were Sutton (Plaistow) (4), Budd (Penguins) (3), Lister (Oldham) and Beaman (Chester). Freeguard (Newport) and Street (Penarth) scored for Wales.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

SENIOR CLUBS AT PRACTICE.

GROUNDS STILL TOO HARD FOR SERIOUS WORK

IN view of the opening of the season proper next Saturday, all the senior and junior clubs were engaged in practice on Saturday. Owing to the iron-hard condition of the various pitches, however, the practices were not of a very strenuous order, and many players wore rubber-soled shoes. All the senior clubs had a big turn out of members and many international players were among those engaged.

AT LANSDOWNE ROAD.

Lansdowne road was a particularly busy centre, and both Lansdowne and Wanderers had largely-attended practices. The Cupholders had their 1st XV. against The Rest, and two fast "twenties" were indulged in. No serious tackling was attempted, however, but the players were keen. E. O'Davy, E. J. Lightfoot and T. A. O'Reilly were among those out, while St. J. Pike, the former Trinity captain, and T. P. Hogan, the University College forward, were also engaged. T. A. O'Reilly will captain the side, and the first match will be against Old Wesley on Saturday.

Wanderers, who open next Saturday with a match against Palmerston, had some forty players engaged, among whom were J. D. Clinch, F. W. Williamson, A. C. Preston, J. C. D. Hewat, R. L. Bermingham, J. W. Wellwood, C. R. Graves, E. C. Ridgeway, W. J. McCormick, T. R. Horan and A. King. With the exception of Dr. P. F. Murray, who has decided to retire from active participation in the game, the headquarters' side will be pretty much the same as last season, and the prospects are particularly bright. J. C. D. Hewat will be captain.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY.

Some of the Trinity 1st team players have not yet returned from vacation, but there was a large number out for practice in the College Park, and from what one can gather at this early stage the prospects are quite bright. R. H. Pratt, the International full-back, will be captain, and he will have the big majority of last year's players available. St. J. Pike and T. R. Horan have both gone down, but there are a lot of new members, and several are likely to turn out very promising. The season will open on Saturday week with a match against Palmerston. Trinity go on tour in the middle of November, when Oxford University, Edinburgh University and Glasgow University will be engaged, while Cambridge University will be visitors on December 19.

BECTIVE RANGERS.

Bective Rangers had some forty players engaged, and two periods of twenty minutes each were played. T. J. Little will captain the side, which will be pretty much the same as last season. Several new members have come along, chiefly from Presentation College, Bray, and O'Connell's School. The season opens with a match against Blackrock College on Saturday next. Among those at practice were T. J. Little, D. G. Magee, P. Bailey, J. J. Fitzsimons, M. McAlister, A. Wade, A. McMorrough, H. Murphy and J. Doyle.

OLD WESLEY.

The Wesleyians open next Saturday with a match against Lansdowne, and the side had a good turn out on Saturday, and judging from the enthusiasm displayed a prosperous term is in store. Among those taking part were D. G. Walker, H. W. Good, J. D. Seymour, G. Taylor, M. Maher, G. Johnston and F. M. Hanna.

MONKSTOWN.

Monkstown had a very large muster, but the work was more in the nature of training manœuvres than general practice. M. A. J. O'Reilly will captain the side, and the opening match will be Saturday week against Clontarf at Castle Avenue. Among those out were J. Arigho, J. R. Kinneally, K. Kinneally, F. H. Salmon, J. McCourt, J. Corrigan, S. A. Noble, M. Maher, N. J. McGowan, E. Mulhern, B. Bergin, P. Tighe and P. Byrne.

CLONTARF.

The Northsiders had a full attendance, and two periods of twenty minutes each were played. Among those engaged were D. J. Langan (who will captain the side), G. J. Morgan, F. G. Moran, J. F. Moran, J. P. Barrington, E. Craigie, E. A. Roche, T. J. Gleeson, W. H. Hall, W. J. Maguire, C. R. Archer, S. V. Lyons, J. C. Lawless, S. F. McHugh, M. J. O'Dwyer, G. C. Glass and D. Y. Gibson.

PALMERSTON.

Palmerston are looking forward to the season with much enthusiasm, and forty members turned out for practice. Several new members have joined, while the majority of last season's players are again to the fore. Among those out on Saturday were J. H. Thompson, D. G. Smyllie, S. R. Kingston, A. H. Mapother, A. M. Raffan, J. W. Mullins, P. O'Driscoll, T. A. Thompson and R. Bell.

BLACKROCK COLLEGE.

The Williamstown club will be pretty much the same as last season, though some new members, notably Brenden Glynn, the University College and Leinster Interprovincial forward, have joined. T. Gleeson, who played for the club some years ago, is back again, and M. J. Moloney will act as captain. The season opens with a match against Bective Rangers on Saturday.

AT TERENURE.

University College are generally last in starting, and owing to many of the members being still on vacation, there were only a small number out at practice. L. B. McMahon will captain the side, which will be pretty much the same as last season. Early in November the side will go on tour, playing Glasgow University and University of London; while a match will be played against Aldershot Services, at home, on November 25th.

SHORTT'S FINE BOWLING.

Leinster, the Senior League champions, brought a most successful season to a close on Saturday with a match against Merrion at Rathmines. The result was a draw, Merrion scoring 58 for 3 wickets, in reply to the Leinster total of 117. A feature was the splendid bowling of R. H. Shortt, the Merrion captain, who took 6 wickets for 31 runs, and at one period he had sent down 12 overs, 7 of which were maidens, and had taken 6 wickets for 9 runs. Leinster were batting three hours, and left Merrion one hour to get the runs. Score:—

LISBURN CHAMPIONS.

The destination of the Ulster League Championship was finally settled on Saturday, when Lisburn, by their victory over Holywood, secured the honour for the first time. Holywood, although at the bottom of the table, got 121, H. C. Graham, the schools' interprovincial player, scoring 53, but Lisburn won with five wickets in hand, G. W. Bannister, the former international player, scoring 57.

North of Ireland's first wicket put on 70, and the total was 191, but Waringstown won by a wicket (W. Irwin 50), the score being 195 for 9. Cliftonville wound up with a win over North Down, who were all out for 78, G. W. Gailey taking 7 for 38. Cliftonville obtained 80 for 3 to win by seven wickets.

ATHLETICS.

BECCALI BEATS 1,500 METRES RECORD.

Luigi Beccali, the Italian runner, broke the world record for 1,500 metres, previously held by Jules Ladoumegue, of France, at Milan yesterday, covering the distance in 3 mins. 49 secs. This beat Ladoumegue's figures by one-fifth of a second.

The new record was made while Beccali was taking part in the international meeting between England and Italy (which Italy won by 9 events to 5), and when it was announced that he had broken the world's record the crowd went mad with delight. Beccali then ran round the track again to the shouts and cheers of a really enthusiastic crowd. R. H. Thomas, of Great Britain, who finished second, was beaten by 25 yards.

J. E. Lovelock, the English runner, failed in his attempt to lower Ladoumegue's figures for 1,500 metres at Paris yesterday.

SWIMMING.

NEW WORLD'S RECORDS.

LOS ANGELES, Sunday.

Two new world's records were established here last night by an 18-year-old swimmer, Jack Medica, of the Washington Athletic Club, Seattle, who broke the record for the 800 and 1,000 metres free style. His time of 10 mins. 13 6-10 secs. for the 800 metres betters the previous best of 10 mins. 15 6-10 secs. by Jean Taris, of France, while in the 1,000 metres he easily broke the record of 12 mins. 54 7-10 secs, established by Shozo Makino, of Japan, with a time of 12 mins. 43 8-10 secs.

DUTCH GIRL'S FEAT.

Miss Willy Den Ouden, of Rotterdam, the 15-year-old Dutch girl, who holds the world's 100 metres record for women, in London on Saturday won a 220 yards free style race in 2 mins. 36 1-8 secs., beating Miss Joyce Cooper's British record by 6 secs.

COPELAND ISLANDS' RACE.

Twenty-eight competitors took part in a race to the Copeland Islands from Donaghadee, the distance being under two miles. The winner was Miss Hazel Jamison (Bangor), in 1 hour 5 mins. W. Bell (Wellington) was second and Miss K. Brown (Bangor) third.

WESLEY COLLEGE GALA.

To-day is the closing date for entries for the 88 yards men's open handicap, to take place at Wesley College gala.

BOXING.

CHARLES KNOCKS OUT REGGIE MEEN.

At the Palais des Sports, Brussels, on Saturday, Pierre Charles, the Belgian heavy-weight champion and former European champion, knocked out Reggie Meen, the former British champion, in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round contest. The first round was even. Charles met the Englishman's ducking tactics with left swings to the body and head from the waist level, and used his right to cross Meen's leads.

Meen's nose was bleeding from a cut in the second round, and in the fourth his eye was cut. He was severely punished on the ropes in the third round, and fell, but recovered himself. In the fourth round Meen was down for three seconds to a right cross, and later he was saved by the gong when on his knees. Lefts and rights to the head knocked him out in the fifth round.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

SCOTLAND SURPRISED.

IRELAND'S WELL-EARNED WIN AT GLASGOW.

SCOTLAND 1 IRELAND 2

A START was made with the international championship on Saturday, Ireland created no small amount of surprise in beating Scotland at Celtic Park, Glasgow, by two goals (both scored by Martin) to one (McPhail). They had not beaten Scotland since 1927-28, and this latest victory was their fourth in a series of 39 games.

It must be said at once that Ireland fully deserved their success. Their team work was much superior to that of the Scots, while their passing was more accurate. In the first half particularly the Irish forwards moved with fine cohesion, and in Stevenson, of Glasgow Rangers, they possessed the cleverest forward on the field. The dribbling and passing of Stevenson stamped him as the complete footballer.

McGRORY MASTERED.

Martin and Coulter, the other inside forwards, were also very good, and Jones was a power at centre-half, where he completely held McGrory. Scott and his backs made up a rugged and resolute defence, and the goalkeeper distinguished himself, particularly when saving a penalty kick from McGonagle.

The Scottish selectors saw little in the game to enlighten them. The team failed to strike combined play and gave little satisfaction. The half-backs must bear most of the blame. Low failed to fill the centre-half position with the success hoped for, for he was too often out of position, and his mis-kicking had an upsetting influence on other members of the side.

Telfer and Massie were only moderate wing-halves, and much was due to the other defenders in restricting Ireland's score to two goals. Harkness and his backs, if not brilliant, constituted the finest part of the team.

FORWARDS OUT OF HARMONY.

The front line, badly supported from behind, seldom moved in harmony. If Boyd and Venters formed a better wing the former spolt his play by bad centreing. On the other wing McPhail and King never found a happy combination, the outside man being slow in sizing up a situation. McPhail worked hard, and made some of the best scoring attempts. In the circumstances McGrory received little help, and those present saw none of his characteristic dashes.

Taken as a whole, the game failed to arouse much enthusiasm. Scotland, at the end of it, found themselves no further ahead with the problem of international team selection. Ireland, usually the "wooden-spoonists" of the countries, bearded the lions in their den.

A good many people came from Ireland to see the match, and the attendance numbered 27,135, the receipts, exclusive of tax, being £1,150.

In the beginning Scotland set a great pace, and, after Willigham had intercepted a header from McPhail, Boyd swung over a good centre, and McGrory headed into Scott's hands.

THE FIRST GOAL.

Ireland, however, scored in their first real attack, after seven minutes' play. When Stevenson sent in a corner kick from the right wing Mahood shot without delay. Harkness could only partly clear the ball, and Martin gained possession and shot through.

Despite great efforts by McPhail to get his line moving, Ireland settled down to become the superior side. More than once Stevenson slipped the ball through cleverly to Mahood, who once went right through and finished with a shot against the side net. At the end of thirteen minutes, however, Martin scored again, seizing a chance when Low miskicked, rounding McGonagle, and driving the ball past Harkness fast and low. Ireland, undoubtedly deserved their lead. They were quicker on the ball and sounder in their passing. Their defenders, however, needed to watch McPhail very closely.

SCOTT SAVES PENALTY.

Resuming in the second half Scotland for a time set up hurricane attacks. In these Jones headed clear a shot from Boyd after the winger had passed three opponents, and McPhail and Venters shot outside. In five minutes Scotland were awarded a penalty, McGrory being pushed in the act of shooting. McGonagle was entrusted with the spot-kick, but Scott saved the shot in brilliant style. About half an hour before the end Scotland scored, a centre from Massie enabling McPhail to kick through from close range. This success livened up the game, the Scots carrying out some good scheming and crowding on tremendous pace, but the Irish defence stood up to it well, the backs kicking soundly and Scott doing his work in goal without a fault.

There seemed a chance of another Ireland goal when Stevenson beat two men easily and gave Blair the ball, with an easy opportunity to score, but the winger shot straight into the goalkeeper's hands.

Scotland—Harkness (Heart of Midlothian); Anderson (Heart of Midlothian), McGonagle (Celtic); Massie (Heart of Midlothian), Low (Falkirk), Telfer (Motherwell); Boyd (Newcastle United), Venters (Cowdenbeath), McGrory (Celtic), McPhail (Glasgow Rangers), King (Hamilton Academicals).

Ireland—Scott (Liverpool); Willinghan (Burnley), R. P. Fulton (Belfast Celtic); J. McMahon (Bohemians), Jones (Linfield), Mitchell (Chelsea); Blair (Swansea Town), Stevenson (Glasgow Rangers), Martin (Belfast Celtic), Coulter (Belfast Celtic), J. Mahood (Ballymena).

Referee—Mr E. Wood (Sheffield).

FREE STATE SHIELD MATCHES.

LEONARD SCORES ON HIS FIRST APPEARANCE.

SHELBOURNE 2 CORK BOHS 1

The match between Shelbourne and Cork Bohs at Shelbourne Park, on Saturday, was poor, providing little real football; but one must admire the gameness and staying power of Cork Bohs. Here is a collection of local amateurs opposed to a team of professionals, some of whom have made big names in the game, and yet the professionals could only win luckily by 2 goals to 1. It was by sheer enthusiasm that such a close result was achieved; for Cork Bohs had only one man who looked capable of scoring a goal. He was Delea, who was always a source of worry to the Shelbourne defence. The other forwards were weak near goal and got little support from the halves, who, however, defended splendidly, as did the backs, while Harrington made some grand saves in goal.

The chief interest to a large crowd was the first appearance of Leonard, the well-known Sunderland inside left, in the home attack. He should prove an asset; for as long as he got support from the halves he distributed the ball cleverly and his goal was a distinctly good effort. It was unfortunate for him that the rest of the attack was poor. Brady missed some very easy chances, and the wings seldom got the ball across satisfactorily. Another new capture, Robertson, was not very impressive at right-half, and was seldom in the picture. The defence was inclined to get flurried and uncertain under pressure.

Shelbourne had all the better of the first half, and Brady and Leonard gave them a clear lead at half-time. They should have increased this lead on more than one occasion early in the second half. But when Delea reduced the lead for Cork Bohs the latter attacked to the end, and came very near to equalising. Teams:—

Shelbourne—Webster; Nelson, Redmond; Robertson, Lappin, Byrne; O'Reilly, Squires, Brady, Leonard, Gallagher.

Cork Bohs—W. Harrington; E. Stewart, J. Lynch; D. Madden, Duffy, J. Keohane; J. O'Reilly, R. Quinn, Delea, J. O'Mahony, P. Fletcher.

Referee—Mr. J. Flood (Dublin).

ST. JAMES'S GATE STILL UNBEATEN.

CORK 0 ST. JAMES'S GATE 0

On the occasion of their second visit to Cork City in successive weeks St. James's Gate succeeded in maintaining their unbeaten record, but were lucky enough to save a point against Cork in a game that ended without any score. For greater time in both periods Cork did the pressing, but the stout defence of the visitors prevented them from driving home the attack.

On one occasion during opening period Paton did get past Pidgeon, but, with the ball in the net, he was whistled for handling, and that was the nearest thing to a score during the game. Pidgeon gave a grand exhibition in the Gate's defence, which stood the test manfully. Moylan and R. Murray shaping very well indeed. It was Cork's lack of thrust, however, rather than the sound defence of the visitors that prevented scores. Kelso, the Cork centre half, was certainly brilliant in defence, and, indeed, threw the entire Gate attack into confusion at times, but neither he nor the other halves did anything to initiate attacking movements. Lacking their assistance, and with Connolly striking poor form the home attack was ineffective. Madden, late of Southern Rovers, at centre, and O'Keeffe were the pick of the line.

Comerford and Dowdall were the best of the visiting forwards. The pitch was greasy after a thick drizzle and frequent showers, and Cork looked steadier on their feet.

St. James's Gate—Pidgeon; Moylan, R. Murray; Simpson, Lennon, J. Murray; Kennedy, Comerford, Rigby, Dowdall, Geoghegan.

Cork—Foley; Hogg, Burke; Lennon, Kelso, Connolly; Clarke, Paton, Madden, Neville, O'Keeffe.

BOHEMIANS WEAK IN ATTACK.

SHAMROCK ROVERS 4 BOHEMIANS 2

At Dalymount Park on Saturday. The scorers were:—Smith, Glen (penalty), Whelan and Daly for the winners; Cullen and Horlacher (penalty) for Bohemians.

The unreliability of previous form as a guide was shown by the result of this match, as Bohemians, who had drawn twice already with the same opponents, were beaten even more decisively than the score suggests. Undoubtedly, the absence of McMahon, playing in the international at Glasgow, weakened Bohemians' middle line, as Andrews was not a successful deputy. Nevertheless, so poor a show did the home forwards put up that even had he been available it would not have materially affected the result.

In a remarkably fast game, considering the iron-hard pitch, Bohemians had as many scoring opportunities as had their opponents, but their shooting, particularly that of the inside forwards, was wretched. Barry, in the centre, was completely off his game and twice missed the easiest of chances in inexplicable manner.

The winners' forwards were uniformly good, with the wing men, Smith and Daly, outstanding, despite the fact that they did not get the usual strong support from their half-backs, who were decidedly erratic, though Comerford, who deputised for Kinsella, played a very sound game.

Rovers' defence was seldom in difficulties, but it was a much different matter with the Bohemian backs, who had a busy and frequently anxious time. McCarthy's fine positional play and clever footwork combined with some sound clearances by Morris, who found the elusive Smith a tough handful, were the redeeming features of the home team's display, for Morgan in goal spoiled some splendid work by a couple of bad lapses. At times play was decidedly robust, and the number of free kicks and penalties disconcertingly large. Teams:—

Bohemians—M. Morgan; A. Morris, J. McCarthy; P. O'Kane, P. Andrews, A. Horlacher; P. Ellis, E. Smee, K. Barry, W. Jordan, G. Cullen.

Shamrock Rovers—McCarthy; Gaskins, Burke; Glen, Matthews, Comerford; Daly, Flood, Whelan, Buchanan, Smith.

DUNDALK'S EFFORT TOO LATE.

DOLPHIN 2 DUNDALK 1

At Harold's Cross yesterday, J. Bermingham and Fallon scored for Dolphin, Goodwin for Dundalk. At one stage of the match there seemed a prospect of Dolphin winning decisively, but they were not nearly so good in the second half as they were in the first, and Dundalk came near to making a draw of it.

With the play almost continuously in their favour Dolphin secured a single goal lead in the first half. It would have been much greater had not Lewis made some brilliant saves. Dundalk were in the ascendancy through the second half, and it was only on rare occasions that the Dolphin forwards were permitted to burst away, yet they went further ahead, and the end was near when Dundalk became keener and reduced the lead. The fault with both teams was that there was not sufficient blend or forcefulness in the attacking. Both sets of forwards could have scored more goals had they been active in front of the posts. They did not receive adequate support, because of the inclination of the half-backs to keep the ball in the air.

Both goalkeepers got through a lot of work, Lewis, who was in his best form, was more confident than Diffen. All four full-backs were resourceful, but their tackling was much better than their kicking. Patton was the outstanding half-back, and the only one of the six who could consistently turn defence into attack. Fallon and Bell were Dolphin's most dangerous forwards, and here Dundalk were best served by McCourt and McCann. Teams:—

Dolphin—Diffen; Lennox, Doyle; Carr, P. Bermingham, Kendrick; J. Bermingham, Ward, Bell, Somers, Fallon.

Dundalk—Lewis; Clarke, Brannigan; Carroll, Patton, Hirst; McCann, Goodwin, McLoughlin, McCourt, Burke.

BRAY FORWARDS SHINE.

BRAY UNKNOWNS 4 DRUMCONDRA 0

At Carlisle Ground, Bray, yesterday. Williams, Jordan (2) and Bellew were the scorers.

Although scarcely so superior as the scoring would indicate, Bray were, nevertheless, well worth their victory over Drumcondra. Playing with dash and clear understanding, their forward line gave an object lesson to the visitors' weak set, whose efforts throughout were completely lacking in finish. Hutchinson, whose long-swinging wing passes were a feature, held Hunt so effectively that there was seldom trouble threatening the Bray goal from the centre, the only danger coming from the right wing, where Moone and Merry combined well in sporadic raids.

Merry, in addition to clever solo efforts, presented Hunt with a perfect through pass near the interval which the latter failed to turn to account, and a goal just then might have had a stimulating effect on Drumcondra. Williams had opened the scoring for Bray by heading past Hampton from Hannon's corner-kick, after 38 minutes' play. Close on half-time Jordan put Bray further ahead from a melée in the goalmouth.

After the interval Bellew rounded off a fine combined forward movement by beating Hampton at close range, and the best goal of the match came from a perfectly-timed swerving shot by Jordan from Rudd's through pass.

Despite the heavy toll against him, Hampton did well in the Drumcondra goal; and in an overworked defence Whale and McCosh were prominent. Fortune, a young newcomer, made a capable partner for Rigby at full-back for Bray.

Bray Unknowns—Frame; Fortune, Rigby; Williams, Hutchinson, Pettigrew; Bellew, O'Reilly, Jordan, Rudd, Hannon.

Drumcondra—Hampton; Johnston, Whale; Gallagher, McCosh, Jones; Moone, Merry, Hunt, Meehan, Reid.

DUNCAN'S HAT-TRICK FOR GLENTORAN.

Owing to Belfast Celtic having three players on the Irish team at Glasgow they postponed their Irish League game with Linfield, which will be played on Thursday. This left only six matches for decision, and the most important was that between Distillery and Derry City, which the Belfast side won by a goal to nil. Glentoran beat Larne 4-0 at the Oval, Duncan, their centre forward, performing the "hat trick." Portadown have been doing well, but were beaten by the only goal of the game at Ballymena. Coleraine won at Bangor by 2 goals to 1, and Glenavon defeated Newry Town at Lurgan by 3 goals to 1; while a Cliftonville team, which was not at full strength, lost to Ards by 2-0. Results:—

Distillery 1, Derry City 0; Ards 2, Cliftonville 0; Glentoran 4, Larne 0; Ballymena 1, Portadown 0; Glenavon 3, Newry Town 1; Coleraine 2, Bangor 1.

LAYERING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Garden Correspondent says:—

This is an excellent method of propagating shrubs that do not root readily or that utterly fail as cuttings, as the Rhododendrons for instance. It can be done at any time, but we have found the present season quite suitable, and, probably, with ripened wood the best. The method is to bring down a lower branch suitable for the purpose, and either notch or ring the part intended for insertion in the soil, where it is securely pegged. We prefer the ringing method, which consists of removing a half-inch ring of the outer bark, leaving the white inner bark intact, it being the vital element. It remains then to encourage rooting by genial soil, time doing the rest, although undue hurry to sever the layer from its parent until well rooted is to be avoided.

HANDLING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Poultry Correspondent says:—

This is a process very much overvalued. We must say we do not much believe in it. There are a few good points connected with it that all should know, but much of it cannot be depended on. Of course, those birds that are bad growers, with stunted appearance, deformed and bad shape, and that otherwise in appearance give a trained eye the impression that they are useless, must be culled out; but size cannot always be depended on, for both small and big birds may be good layers. Large combs are often deceptive. We know that when birds begin to lay the combs increase in size and redness, but the biggest combs do not always indicate the best layers. Whether a bird is up to type or not does not matter as regards its production of eggs, for birds that would be discarded in the show pen are frequently the best. The bright eye, alert bearing and general appearance, as known to the man who understands his birds, are better than special boxes, etc.
